Walkers Surging Along

Crowd estimates varied between 10,000 and 12,000 early today as participants in Victoria's second Miles for Millions walkathon surged along Dallas Road promptly at 8:30.

By 10 a.m. marchers were deluging the second checkpoint on the route, adjacent to Oak Bay Marina on Beach Drive.

Several who opted to run the 25-mile route were passing the University of Victoria by 10:30 and Don Nemeth crossed the finish line at the Legislative Buildings at 11:30.

The co-ordinating committee of the march has a $130,000 objective, half of the money raised to go to local charitable agencies, the other half to international agencies serving underdeveloped countries in Asia, Africa and South America.

Today's walkathon is expected to break records established by a similar march in 1967 when 12,000 persons brought in $108,000, the largest per capita amount of any Canadian city.

Youthful Tone to March

Adults were the exception in the swelling mass that packed around the starting line at Dallas and Cook. Tone of the march was overwhelmingly youthful—most of the marchers were from local elementary and junior secondary schools.

From every direction they streamed down to the starting point, and as the crowd got bigger volunteers wielding loud hailers urged them to stay back out of the path of traffic at the intersection.

At 8:30 a.m., without a word of command, the assembled thousands suddenly began to move, and within five minutes most marchers were on their way.

No one could confirm whether former lieutenant-governor G. R. Pearkes actually fired a starting gun at 8:30 as scheduled. He apparently got lost in the crush at the line.

The 81-year-old Pearkes did get a Saanich Police escort to the starting line, and was reported still walking at noon.

Late registrants continued to enter the march after 9 a.m.

Many walkers, remembering the 25-mile ordeal two years ago, came equipped with bandages, foot powder and extra pairs of shoes and socks.

Some carried portable radios, and as they moved out they listened to broadcast descriptions of the spectacle of which they were a part.

Pavement was rain-soaked, the sky was overcast and a cold wind was blowing. But at 8:35 the sun broke through with a promise of intermittent sunny periods throughout the day.

Civic Leaders Turn Out

A Gordon Head Junior Secondary mixed relay team put their extensive cross-country training program to good use and finished the walkathon first at a full run in three hours.

The 13 team members, who passed the baton at checkpoints, were: Debbie Reid, Peter Sivertsen, Nancy Griffin, Ian Hatter, Al McGillivray, Bob Boyd, Christopher Orme, Wes Mann, Margo Hall, Adrian Williams, Dave Hajnal, Barry Kelly and Don Nemeth.

School track coach Bob Shires said the runners were sponsored by the whole school and seven runners returned to the starting point to walk the 25-mile distance.

A number of civic leaders were out:

Mayor Hugh Stephen was sponsored at $1 a mile by Esquimalt Mayor Ray Bryant, who wasn't in the march because he opened a new Esquimalt drive-in restaurant today.

Oak Bay MLA Scott Wallace, representing the Oak Bay municipal council, was sponsored by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark and Premier Bennett, who happens to be one of Dr. Wallace's constituents.

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis and Minister of Municipal Affairs Dan Campbell walked.

Greater Victoria school board chairman Dr. C. B. Jameson and district superintendent A. J. Longmore were on hand.

There were several men among the leading group who left the main mass far behind. Larry Mann, 48, of 1381 Service, said he is an experienced jogger.

"I'm sponsored for a dollar a mile, and double if I make it under four hours," he panted at the Oak Bay Marina.

ANTI-WAR GATHERINGS LARGEST EVER

Peace Now! Engulfs U.S.

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — With President Nixon secluded in a sealed-off White House, more than 250,000 flying the Stars and Stripes and chanting "Peace now!" marched down Pennsylvania Avenue today in the biggest anti-war demonstration in U.S. history.

Refused access to the immediate White House area, the marchers deposited 12 flower-decked coffins containing placards with the names of nearly 40,000 Americans killed in the Vietnam war on the lawn of the executive mansion.

The crowd flowed down the wide "avenue of presidents" and massed on the grounds of the Washington Monument for a rally and folk-rock concert.

The police chief estimated the crowd at more than 250,000. And peace marchers were still pouring in by the tens of thousands at the time that estimate was made at mid-afternoon.

The largest previous peace march took place in New York City on April 15, 1967, when an estimated 125,000 persons followed the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. from Central Park to United Nations headquarters.

While the Washington march was nearing its end a second major demonstration was beginning in San Francisco where tens of thousands had converged from western U.S. centres.

Busloads of demonstrators began arriving Friday night from as far away as Denver, Seattle and Los Angeles for the seven-mile march through San Francisco to a rally in Golden Gate Park.

The influx was so great that Mayor Joseph Alioto and aides held emergency meetings to discuss the possibility of opening public buildings for visitors unable to find housing.

Backers of the moratorium expected 40,000 persons to come from Los Angeles alone, many of whom planned to arrive just before the march today and leave immediately after the rally.

POLICE READY

But police minimized the size of the turnout. They anticipated only 60,000 persons for the march, although they assigned 350 uniformed officers to be on duty, including 50 motorcycle patrolmen and the 12-men horse patrol in the park.

Today's march down Pennsylvania Avenue — and the one in San Francisco — climaxed three days of demonstrations in support of an immediate, complete U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam.

The Pennsylvania Avenue march was sober and orderly. Complying with terms of their parade permit, leaders cut off the flow of marchers entering Pennsylvania Avenue at 12:41 p.m., and diverted the thousands still waiting to a more direct route down the grassy mall to the monument grounds.

Protests Staged Around World

From Times News Services

Symbolic protests against the Vietnam war were staged in all the continents Friday night and this morning to express sympathy with the moratorium demonstration in Washington.

Riot police wielding clubs repeatedly charged demonstrators protesting the Vietnam war in crowded Paris streets today.

More than 500 protestors were arrested.

At least 15,000 people took part in different demonstrations in Paris in defiance of a French government ban. Protests also took place in 42 other cities throughout France.

The police charges here were restricted to the fashionable Rue de Rivoli area where about 5,000 demonstrators mingled with shopping crowds.

Shoppers and bystanders dashed for safety in nearby cafes and department stores as the police clashed with the demonstrators.

Anti-Vietnam war groups staged protest demonstrations in London and other cities throughout Britain today.

About 1,000 demonstrators, mostly students, marched round and round Grosvenor Square in front of the United

MARCHES A RED PLOT CHARGES GOVERNOR

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — California Gov. Ronald Reagan claimed Friday night the Vietnam moratorium demonstrations actually were planned in Communist East Berlin earlier this year with representatives of North Vietnam present.

Reagan, a strong backer of the Nixon administration's Vietnam policy, told a local Republican fund-raising dinner:

"I'm sure many young people have been deluded into believing that they're trying to save lives.

"Unfortunately, these moratoriums were planned last June in a meeting in East Berlin with North Vietnamese present."

$50,000 Drug Haul; 3 Persons Charged

Two young men were charged in court today with possessing narcotics for trafficking, following seizure of about $50,000 worth of hashish in two police raids Friday.

Allan Lee Sawin, 22, of 3255 Glasgow, and Stephen Partridge Nichols, 20, of Berkeley, California, were remanded until Monday for plea.

Sawin was represented by lawyer Robert Price.

Judge William Ostler set bail at $10,000 for Nichols and $7,000 for Sawin.

Immediately after court adjourned, a juvenile was charged in connection with the same incident before judge in chambers. He was also remanded without plea.

The three were arrested after RCMP, assisted by city and Saanich police, raided two homes Friday afternoon.

The raids were the result of a month-long investigation conducted by Cpl. Dan Creally of the RCMP, chief of the drug squad.

Cpl. Creally said 4½ pounds of hashish were seized when police raided a Victoria home, and 6½ pounds during a fair on a Saanich home.

He estimated the value of the haul at about $50,000 on the street.

Hashish is a common name for cannabis resin. It is a derivative of marijuana, and is dark brown or grey.

The largest previous haul of narcotics on the Island has been eight ounces of hashish.

Cpl. Creally said Esquimalt police forces also assisted in the investigations.

Hashish usually comes from the Middle East through Europe.

Yankee Clipper Sails to Moon—Minus Major Safety Feature

By HOWARD BENEDICT

HOUSTON (AP) — Resting after a hectic first day in space, the Apollo 12 astronauts raced today beyond the halfway point of their journey to the moon and prepared to eliminate one of the major safety features of previous lunar voyages.

Charles Conrad Jr., Richard F. Gordon Jr. and Alan L. Bean reached the mid-point at 1:39 p.m. PST—their spaceship Yankee Clipper 129,833 miles from both earth and moon—shortly after they were to awaken from a long sleep.

They retired about 2 a.m. after an 18-hour day in which they shook off the effects of a frightening electrical surge during their Friday launch at Cape Kennedy.

Commander Conrad, who said the surge may have been caused by lightning, and his co-pilots thoroughly surveyed the command ship and the attached lunar-landing craft for possible damage from the electrical problem, which caused a brief loss of some systems 45 seconds after launch.

They found all systems intact and Apollo 12 continued toward the moon and man's second lunar landing.

At 3:15 p.m. today the astronauts were to fire their spaceship engine to alter their present course, which would automatically return them to earth if they took no further action.

Apollo 12 was launched on this so-called free-return trajectory, which was flown by the three previous American moon missions, Apollos 8, 10 and 11. On this path the spacecraft whips around the backside of the moon and then is pulled automatically by earth's gravity back to a landing in the Pacific Ocean.

The earlier Apollo astronauts used this trajectory to ensure getting home in case their spaceship engine failed to fire when they attempted to brake into lunar orbit.

Now, after three flights, the space agency has enough confidence in the engine to attempt the non-free-return trajectory on Apollo 12.

The 10-second burst from the engine today increased Apollo 12's speed by 44 miles an hour and adjusted its arrival point at the moon so astronauts Conrad and Bean next Wednesday can attempt a pinpoint landing on the eastern edge of the Ocean of Storms near an unmanned Surveyor spacecraft that has been there 2½ years.

Even if the main engine failed to insert Apollo 12 into lunar orbit, the astronauts could fire the lunar-lander engine to break out of the non-free-return path and head back to earth.

On the remote chance that both engines failed, Apollo 12 would loop around the moon and head back toward earth, but would miss by 58,000 miles and speed out into permanent, fatal orbit around the sun.

The only bothersome problem, Conrad reported, was ice between the triple-layered window of the command module, the viewport vital for the critical docking and for lunar photography.

The 39-year-old commander said ice was forming on the inner surface of the outside window.

"I don't know where it came from," Conrad told the ground.

Conrad and Bean are to spend 31½ hours on the moon, making more detailed exploration of the surface than was possible for Apollo 11. They also hope to make a pinpoint landing so future flights can be made to more rugged moon terrain.

Legalize Pot, Young Liberal Tells Probers

WINNIPEG (CP) — The federal commission on non-medical use of drugs heard arguments from all sides in favor of legalizing marijuana during its two-day hearing that concluded here Friday.

". . . Legalization (of marijuana) would be a significant step toward a return to law and order in this country," said the president of the Canadian Student Liberals, Tom Burnes of Winnipeg.

"Legalization would take the trade of this weed out of the hands of organized crime."

He said marijuana does not lead to heroin addiction, is not as powerful as alcohol and apparently has no physiological effects.

Mr. Burnes called for a moratorium on drug prosecutions.

He said that while his group, which includes 60 university Liberal clubs in Canada, advocates free use of marijuana, there should be a dividing line between hard drugs and soft drugs.

He said if youths believe marijuana is in the same category as heroin, they may progress to the harder drug. A vigorous education program could establish the distinction between the two.

The question of whether drugs should be included in criminal law also was raised.

Barney Sneidman of the University of Manitoba said society must accept the fact it is in a "pill-popping" age and drugs should fall within the realm of public health.

The Manitoba Medical Association agreed.

In a brief to the commission, the association said the entire area of "chemical comforts" requires careful appraisal.

"The terms of reference should include all chemicals used by man which affect the mind, whether prescribed by doctors or self-administered," the association said.

"The arbitrary boundaries which place such chemicals in legal or illegal, moral or immoral categories, based on the age of the user or the possession of a prescription, are open to question.

"The readjustment of the legal apparatus is required to allow treatment, free from legal involvement, for the immature and confused, as well as to allow research by the medical profession."

The association said that in Winnipeg, the number of people who use marijuana, LSD, amphetamines, heroin and sniff glue has increased during the last five years from hundreds to thousands.

The association said a multi-discipline professional co-ordinating task force should be established under the auspices of the Manitoba government to study the drug problem.

At a one-hour session held at University of Winnipeg, the commission was told it should impress upon the government that persons in jail on marijuana offences are not criminals.

The crime is not against society. "If there is a crime it is against themselves," one student said.

Atlantic Region MPs Continue to Hit CNR

OTTAWA (CP) — Atlantic region MPs were prominent Friday as the Commons continued second reading debate on a routine government bill to provide the CNR with $201,700,000 in capital financing for the period Jan. 1, 1969, to June 1, 1970.

Much of the money has already been committed by the CNR but both Atlantic region and western MPs have been able to use the legislation as an occasion to rake the CNR and CPR policy with their criticism.

The debate began Thursday, just a week after the Canadian transportation commission announced it has received applications from both rail companies to abandon 31 passenger routes — in the case of CP Rail, almost its entire passenger system.

The applications for abandonment are a stage in the procedure set out in the 1967 transportation act and qualify the railways for government subsidies of up to 80 per cent on losses suffered on lines maintained in the public interest.

The announcement has led many speakers in the debate to accuse the railways of being callous, cavalier and of having "reneged on their moral commitment" to the communities they have served over the years.

Thomas M. Bell (PC—Saint John-Lancaster) demanded public hearings on the applications for abandonment and a full-scale investigation by the Commons transportation committee.

Much has also been made of the arrangement of 1881 in which the federal government gave the CPR $25,000,000 and 11,000,000 acres of land to build a line to the West.

Gordon Ritchie (PC—Dauphin) said the proposal to pull out of the passenger business now is "farcical and insulting."

CP Rail, he said, has made handsome profits over the years but now is seeking "to get out of the obligations" that were the reason for the concessions in the first place.

He suggested that in retaliation, Manitoba and the city of Winnipeg may withdraw perpetual exemptions from property taxation given to the company in the past.

Mr. Ritchie added that if the CNR should drop its Winnipeg-Churchill route and subsidiary lines it would "isolate central and northern Manitoba from the mainstream of Canadian life."

. . . MORATORIUM

The monument rally featured anti-war speeches interspersed with greatly amplified renditions by leading folk-rock combos and the cast of the broadway musical "Hair." Rev. William Sloane Coffin Jr., chaplain of Yale University, opened the rally with a prayer for peace and the proclamation: "We are here because we love our country."

HUMAN BLANKET

The crowd on the monument grounds stretched like a vast human blanket over an area at least three blocks wide and three blocks long. It was good-natured, well-behaved.

People over 30 were scarce — and black people even scarcer. Most of the demonstrators were young, white and hairy.

Among the more mature participants were Sens. Eugene McCarthy, (D-Minn.), George McGovern (D-S.D.), and Charles E. Goodell, (R-N.Y.; Mrs. Coretta King; folk singers Pete Seeger and Arlo Guthrie; composer Leonard Bernstein; pediatrician Benjamin Spock; and a group of clergymen.

The march down the avenue began at the foot of the Capitol at 10:19 a.m. (EST). The last contingent of marchers reached the monument grounds almost exactly three hours later.

Inside the White House, heavily guarded for blocks around to prevent marchers from approaching, President Nixon held a two-hour meeting with foreign policy advisers, then watched the Ohio State-Purdue football game on television.

If he looked out of an upstairs window, he could see the massive crowd around the Washington Monument, dramatizing by their presence their conviction that the United States should get out of Vietnam now.

Although the climactic event of the three-day anti-war demonstration in the United States capital began with no outward signs of trouble, the army stepped up preparations to deal with any violence.

A splinter group of demonstrators shattered the tranquillity of the protest Friday night in a rock-throwing confrontation with police that brought a barrage of tear gas in response. The group tried to march to the South Vietnamese Embassy.

The army placed several thousand more troops on alert for quick movement into the city to back up the 9,000 paratroops and marines already occupying most of the main government buildings.

Just before the march began, McCarthy told those assembling at the foot of the Capitol they were a better measure of the feeling in the country against the war than the 52,000 telegrams the White House has said it received supporting Nixon's policy.

McCarthy said the marchers were carrying "a clear message of moral and intellectual concern to the White House."

Despite all the power of the president, he said, Nixon has no right to say who is an American and who is not.

Leaders of today's carefully planned demonstration had won their marching permit with a promise of non-violence. They quickly disavowed the actions of the militant group—estimated by police at upwards of 3,000—whose illegal march led to the first disorder of the three-day anti-war campaign.

. . . WORLD

States embassy here carrying anti-war placards.

Most of them wore black armbands and carried white cards, each with the name of an American soldier killed in Vietnam. The cards were dropped into a black-draped coffin in the street directly opposite the embassy.

Three Opposition Labor party members of Australia's Parliament today led a march of about 1,000 anti-Vietnam demonstrators bearing the names of Australians killed in the Vietnamese war.

Dr. James Cairns, member of Parliament and the party's "shadow" minister for trade, joined PMs Gordon Bryant and Dr. Moss Cass in the march to Melbourne City Square, where they watched a trio of conscientous objectors burn their draft cards.

Dr. Cairns said the burnings meant he and other politicians joined hands with young Australians who would rather go to jail than be conscripted for fighting in Vietnam.

About 1,000 persons, mostly Americans, gathereed Friday night in Paris to hear North Vietnamese peace negotiator Tran Cong Tuong denounce the "trickery and ferocity of the Nixon administration" and praise the antiwar demonstrators.

About 200 demonstrators in Buenos Aires Friday night attempted to approach the U.S. embassy, carrying anti-war slogans. But Argentine police using tear gas prevented the demonstration and dispersed the protecters before they reached the embassy.

In Amsterdam about 300 antiwar demonstrators held an orderly protest march, chanting "Nixon murderer" through the centre of the city.

About 50 Amercian students and ex-servicemen in West Berlin held a peaceful demonstration outside the U.S. mission.

In Madrid, young Americans wearing black armbands picketed in the U.S. embassy parking lot.

In Dar es Salaam, a group of Americans and Tanzanians held a silent vigil outside the U.S. information Service building, carrying placards in English and Swahili and wearing black armbands.

And in the tiny country of Lesotho in southern Africa, a small group of Americans living here joined the peace activities in a quiet protest at the U.S. Information Service bureau in Maseru.

In Germany, demonstrators with torches and banners maintained an all-night torchlight vigil in front of the U.S. embassy.

In West Berlin, a protest group pledged to burn a dog named Putze with napalm but police said they would intervene.

Author Gore Vidal was to address a prayer vigil of Americans in Rome's Piazza Navona and the Communist Newspaper L'Unita forecast demonstrations in 14 Italian towns.

There were peaceful demonstrations Friday in Austria, Czechoslovakia, The Netherlands and Denmark.

In Buenos Aires, Argentina, police arrested eight persons after dispersing a goup of 50 Americans and Argentine anti-war demonstrators attempting to march on the U.S. embassy.

In Kobe, Japan about 60 Americans wearing black arm bands marched on the U.S. consulate where they delivered a withdrawal demand.

U.S. Ambassador Henry A. Byroade received an estimated 75 to 100 Peace Corpsmen stationed in The Philippines and accepted a petition calling for an end to the war.

In Saigon, radio listeners heard Trinh Dinh Thao, a leading Viet Cong official, express best wishes to the protesters in a broadcast from Hanoi.

There were demonstrations in at least seven Canadian centres, including Victoria

In Vancouver, more than 1,000 persons carrying candles marched through the streets. Irene Foulks of the Voice of Women organization, said the march was not anti-United States.

$500 Fine Set on Dope Charge

Many responsible people disagree with the law against smoking hashish, Judge William Ostler said in court Friday.

"There is considerable lack of unanimity with respect to this drug and the legislation regarding it, but that is no excuse for breaking the law," he told Kenneth Buckley, 21, of 1215 Stellys Cross Road.

He fined Buckley $500 for being in possession of hashish in the washroom of th eTudor beer parlor, Esquimalt, on Oct. 27.

Police said he threw a cube of hashish "towards the toilet" when approached by a plain-clothes officer.

Defence counsel David Skillings said Buckley's attitude, that smoking hashish should not be illegal, "is becoming extremely typical today."

Counsel said Buckley had a good employment record and had taken a computer programming course. The amount of hashish in his possession was slight and "I can see no cause for incarceration."

OPPOSE DUMPING

Carpenters on Vancouver Island oppose an application by Utah Mines Ltd. to dump waste from a proposed copper operation.

They voted today in Nanaimo to demand the pollution control board deny the firm's application.

Representatives of eight locals from the Island and Powell River said in a resolution: "There is considerable evidence that these wastes can seriously affect the sea life and may even destroy a potentially vital source of food for future generations."

They will express this concern to the provincial ministers of mines and health and the federal minister of fisheries.

They asked the B.C. Federation of Labor, the Building Trades Council and all Vancouver Island labor councils to support them in their opposition to Utah Mines' application.

Top Management Meet Friday

The Administrative Management Society will hold its annual top management night Tuesday at 5:30 at the Red Lion Motor Inn.

Robert Bonner, former attorney-general of B.C. and now senior administrative vice-president at MacMillan and Bloedel Ltd., will speak about the forest industry.

Narrow Vote Margin Ends INCO Walkout

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — A 128-day walkout by 16,000 steelworkers which resulted in a world-wide shortage of nickel ended Friday night with narrow acceptance of a new contract with International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd.

The men began returning to work at midnight after voting 5,031 to 4,865—a majority of only 50.8 per cent—to accept a contract raising average wages to $3.99 an hour from $3.06 an hour over three years.

Homer Seguin, president of Local 6500, United Steelworkers of America, called the 166-vote majority "a rather close vote" but said he is confident the men will abide by the results.

Still off work are the 1,700 members of Local 6200 at Inco's refinery in Port Colborne, Ont. Picketing continues at the refinery.

Jim Babirad, president of Local 6200, said his local's position would be reviewed today and a vote among the members may be taken.

Mr. Babirad and other officials of his local arrived here Thursday to try to persuade the Sudbury workers to hold out for more money. They were backed in their opposition to ratification by six members of the seven-man Sudbury negotiating team.

URGED REJECTION

Mr. Babirad and his supporters handed out leaflets during the voting Friday, urging rejection and claiming the contract would deny the men job protection and cost them several hundred dollars in wages in the years to come.

Ratification by the big Sudbury local is expected to lead to a quick settlement on similar terms of a 78-day strike by 3,200 members of the independent Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union against Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd. operations here.

A strike by 13,500 steelmen against Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. in Hamilton was settled Oct. 20. Another 6,700 striking steelworkers ratified a contract Nov. 4 with Algoma Steel Co. Ltd. in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

The Sudbury contract provides increases of 43.9 cents an hour in the first year, 24.2 cents in the second and 20 cents in the third, plus a five-cent cost-of-living bonus.

When fringe benefits are taken into account, the total worth of the contract to the steelmen is $1.25 an hour. Straight time earnings on the lowest rate will be $7,245.36 a year on Aug. 23, 1971.

The impact of company-paid health and welfare plans, incentive bonuses and increased premiums for overtime, shift work, holiday pay and pensions brings the total cost to the company to $1.45 an hour.

Dock Chief Rejected

VANCOUVER (CP) — Only two of the officers who helped work out unsuccessful settlement agreements for British Columbia's 3,200 longshoremen will stand next week in a special leadership election.

The two were nominated in a convention Friday at which union members approved a slate of new officers in an attempt to settle internal differences.

Andy Kotowich, Canadian-area president who earlier offered his resignation then reconsidered, was rejected in a run-off vote against successful candidates Leo Labinsky of the New Westminster local and Bob Peebles, business agent of the Vancouver local.

The two current officers still running are Bev Dunphy, first vice-president, and Frank Kennedy, secretary-treasurer.

The leadership convention was part of a last-ditch effort to iron out union difficulties and arrive at an acceptable settlement with the B.C. Maritime Employers' Association.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

The pacific disturbance giving occasional rain to the southern interior this morning moved out of the province by noon. Cooler moist air is moving into B.C. behind the disturbance.

A beneficial result of the invasion by this cool air is the breakup of the fog over the lower mainland but it will also give widespread showers to all areas. Snowflurries are now occurring in the central interior where temperatures are cooler.

Arctic air which lies over northern B.C. and the Yukon will begin to push southward tonight and will give snow and lowering temperatures to the Cariboo on Sunday.

DOMINION PUBLIC WEATHER OFFICE 9 A.M. FORECASTS

Valid Until Midnight Sunday

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLETT JR.

The retired Wyoming cowboy who lives down the road from us rode over the other day with Fatima, a six-month-old part-Arab filly that is one of the most beautiful animals in the neighborhood. Fatima started to frisk around. She could hardly be kept in check on her halter and even her mother, who was carrying the cowboy, was nervous.

"It's going to storm a bit," the cowboy said. I looked at the sunny skies, with few clouds, and found it hard not to scoff. His venerable years keep me polite at all times. He noted my skepticism.

"I know you don't believe me," he explained. "But when a horse acts up and you can hardly keep it still, the weather is charged with something. We used to call it electricity and I think that's what it is. At any rate, you see if it doesn't rain before it gets dark."

And he was right. It did rain before dark.

BUYS WEEKLY, LAUNCHES NEW DAILY

Down Under's Whiz Kid Crashes Fleet Street

By JOHN LeBLANC

LONDON (CP) — "The hell with them," Rupert Murdoch said amiably as he talked of reluctance of Fleet Street press lords to admit a brash young Australian into the inner circle.

The interloper with a reputation as a whiz-kid Monday will launch a new British daily despite some of the world's fiercest competition for newspaper survival. The prospect apparently doesn't bother him any more than his lack of credentials in the club.

"When I first came here," Murdoch said in an interview this week, "they patted me on the head as if to say, 'There's a good boy.'

"Now I'm outwardly treated with great friendship but I think they'd like it if they could cut my throat—in a nice way."

Murdoch, 38, runs a string of financially-happy Australian papers ranging from sex-sensation publications to the country's only national daily. He is the first big new operator to crash Fleet Street since Canadian Roy Thomson, now Lord Thomson, took Newspaper Row by storm 10 years ago.

Already he has taken over here the weekly newspaper with the biggest circulation in the English-speaking world, and Monday brings the dawn of his tabloid Sun, the first new national daily launched here in many years.

Outspoken Murdoch doesn't think much of Thomson's dictum that Britain has not enough readership for the existing dailies and that some of the weak sisters will have to fold.

"Just because Lord Thomson hasn't been able to make a financial success of The Times doesn't mean someone else couldn't," Murdoch said. "Currently The Times is the weakest sister, undoubtedly the biggest money-loser anyway."

Murdoch talked in the quiet executive suite of the News of the World, a paper that peddles sensation to more than 8,000,000 readers a week.

The News of the World has been a British institution for generations and Murdoch's surprise takeover of it early this year was one of the journalistic sensations of the century.

Murdoch claims he has added 500,000 to the circulation.

He also has been spending much time on the front pages of his newspaper rivals for such stints as buying the memoirs—for a reported $50,000 or so—of Christine Keeler, a fun-loving lady whose liaison with a Conservative cabinet minister six years ago touched off one of the biggest political scandals in many years.

Some of Murdoch's newspaper opponents—not averse themselves to running exposes on prostitution—threw up their hands in horror. The Press Council—the newspaper industry's self-appointed guardian of ethics—censured News of the World in advance of Christine's series appearing.

Murdoch professes to be hurt, though the flare-up of publicity did his paper's circulation no harm.

After two years on London's Daily Express, in 1954 Murdoch took over at the age of 24 his late father's modest newspaper holdings in south Australia, then netting about $90,000 a year. By 1960, he had multiplied the profit by 10 and by the same year he bought the ailing Mirror newspapers, which he developed luridly and profitably.

Rhetoric of Debate Pushes Logic Aside

Funny things happen to politicians on the way to the debating chamber.

Over a cup of coffee or in corridor conversation they're quiet, logical men prepared to listen to reason and equally prepared to be reasonable.

Hume

Get them on their feet in a council chamber or committee room and logic sometimes flees.

Take Ald. Tom Christie in the swimming pool debate.

Opposed to the proposal from the start (Christie was one of the early "save the Crystal" advocates) he stuck to his guns throughout last Thursday's council meeting.

But logically? Not from this observation point.

Christie stated categorically that the cost of the pool was too rich for the city's blood. Had he stayed with that one point he could have been disagreed with, but admired for a solid stand.

Instead he succumbed to the desire to develop his argument and back it with a challenge on the Central Park site. And at that point he lost his way.

Trimmed to the bone a summation of his stand comes out this way:

He is against the pool because it is costing too much money. He is also against the Central Park site becuase parkland is too precious to use for this sort of project. Topaz Park would be a better site. If we are going to build this pool it should be built in Topaz Park.

Christie wasn't alone in confusion.

Ald. Clyde Savage was also against the pool because he felt it would "become another Memorial Arena." Possibly his fears are justified.

But his logic certainly isn't.

In summation: He is against this pool because it's going to end up another arena with the youngsters crowded out. He has been against this concept from the start and he's going to vote against it today. He is not against spending $1 million or even $2 million or more. What we need is two pools, one isn't enough.

So be it. But shouldn't swimming pools be built one at a time?

Maybe it was all summed up best by Ald. Ian Stewart who commented on a motion to refer the whole thing back to square-one and further studies: "I could go along with the motion to refer back to committee if there were some specific reasons given for doing so. Are there any specific reasons to refer?"

There was silence in the council chamber.

To regional matters.

Faced with the toughest chore of its young career the Regional Hospital District Board still hasn't come to grips with the problem of communicating with the public.

Some time next year, probably March, the district will be asking the people to approve the spending of between $30 and $50 million to build desperately needed acute-care hospital beds.

That referendum must be approved. The situation is already critical. There is no more time to waste.

The referendum will be approved, and solidly, IF . . .

Regional authorities permit the public to become aware of the complexities of the problem of siting.

Permit the people to read about, or listen to, the differing points of view which lead ultimately to decisions.

Accept the fact that people today are better informed than they have ever been, and that they have the ability to grasp opposite points of view and form their own conclusions.

The referendum will be defeated, solidly, IF . . .

●

Regional authorities continue to follow their present line which says "the people have the right to know of a decision, but they don't have the right to know how we argued, debated and fought before we made that decision."

The regional directors still seem to believe that stories on conflict would destroy their cause.

Possibly one day, long before next March, they will realize that by revealing the battle lines, opening up contentious debate, they will win people to their cause.

Pacific Press Dispute Reported Near Settlement

VANCOUVER (CP) — Contract negotiations between Pacific Press Ltd., owner of The Sun and The Province, and five newspaper unions will resume Monday with the prospect of an early settlement.

Following a seven-hour bargaining session Friday, the Joint Council of Newspaper Unions reported "It is council's opinion that we are very close to a settlement."

Eradicate the Cancer

A ROYAL COMMISSION IN Quebec has confirmed earlier evidence that branches of the organized crime that has a vicious hold on the United States have become firmly established in that province as well as other parts of Canada. The Mafia type of infiltration, whereby underworld activities are financed and expanded through orthodox business fronts, has become a sordid part of North American urban life.

It has long been said by criminologists that no crime can flourish without at least some assistance from police or government officials. This takes the form of bribery and other connivance. So in its report, the Quebec commission observes that "without a certain dose of police corruption" organized crime could not exist in Montreal. Gang rivalry in that metropolis keeps the murder rate high; it also keeps a cancerous grip on many aspects of the city's life.

It seems to be a natural trend in fighting crime that the police throw a cloak of secrecy over all their activities—in fact, over the broad problem as well. But this in many ways is to the benefit of underworld characters. There could be nothing more effective than full publicity to discourage gangsters, those who co-operate with them, and those members of the public who without any deliberate criminal intent support them through illegal gambling and other avenues.

One thing is clear. The present encroachments of organized crime in Canada should be halted at almost any cost while the situation is still manageable. This country cannot afford to suffer the sociological disease imposed by the underworld, whether disguised or not. It is a disease which the people of the United States are forced to pay hundreds of millions of dollars a year, not to cure but to support.

Let's Get It Built

THE CIVIC POOL COMPLEX TO replace the famous Crystal Garden appears to be well designed for varied types of use and should be a valuable asset to the whole community. After many months of discussion and research it is well that City Council has now called for tenders, with the prospect of early implementation. The program deserves support.

That is not to say that some other proposals made in the course of debate do not also have merit. The matter of siting smaller swimming pools near schools is well worth looking into. But such a program should be viewed as auxiliary to the larger centralized swimming facility, not as an alternative. This community can well use both types of pool accommodation and eventually no doubt will achieve them.

Parks Administrator Warren had a strong case in objecting to the use of Central Park as the site for the civic pool building. The case for preservation of the green area has become obscured in arguments about the geographical location of the facility. The general Central Park neighborhood is a good one for the pool; it is the loss of the open green area — such an invaluable asset in any growing city—which is the cause of valid objection.

In deciding to build on the park land, City Council has hidden a large part of the real cost of the project. For while the park property may be considered as "free" in as much as there need be no actual outlay of cash, the loss of nearly a quarter of the park—without any definite plan for its replacement—represents a sorry deduction from Victoria's outdoor assets which could have been avoided.

But the formal decision having been made, the pool project should go ahead now without late-hour arguments about whether there should be a pool at all. Next year's council, with title to other properties in the neighborhood, should give thought to their use as a children's free playground.

Squares Lose Out

PUBLIC WORKS MINISTER W. N. Chant is quoted as saying that a large public square in Vancouver would be a mistake because it would be a good place to start a riot. As it turns out, the square in question is owned by the province, which plans to build its high-rise B.C. building on the site.

However, Mr. Chant has a point. European cities are chock-full of squares and there have been a few riots in some of them over the centuries. Wenceslaus Square in Prague, Czechoslovakia, is a recent example. Whenever Europeans become unhappy with the government or the way things are going they are apt to take to the squares. It just isn't considered a democratic thing to sit in one's house and brood about the situation. But when the people are reasonably well satisfied, as most Vancouverites appear to be, the squares can become places of beauty. They may have banks of flowers, trees, monuments and best of all, people sitting around enjoying the square life.

Not entirely anti-square, Mr. Chant suggested that smaller downtown squares would serve the purpose better because it is much easier to control crowds in smaller areas. That may or may not be true. Perhaps Mr. Chant should recall that he is public works minister, not people control minister. British Columbia will probably never need the latter portfolio unless there are too few places for people to enjoy themselves.

Man and Image

WHEN BOBBY HULL ABANdoned his second annual retirement from professional hockey, the decision was news for the sports pages of this continent—and perhaps an invitation to a broader public to study man-and-image philosophically.

Bobby Hull is the super-star, the Golden Jet. As such he commands one of the highest incomes in the performing end of hockey—and the golden image seems to have inspired the concept of still higher returns, apart from direct salary. But his image is based on hockey. Remove Mr. Hull from hockey and his value as a gimmick to encourage sale of cars and commercial gain from other enterprises automatically withers. This point seems to have occurred to the Golden Jet as he made his apologies to the club with which he has an unexpired contract.

It may be useful to the image-worshippers to ponder a while the distinction between man and image —and perhaps achieve a higher appreciation of the man. In these days when substance is so frequently screened by a synthetic gloss, it is desirable to remember that Superman, in whatever guise, is still a figment of imagination.

LETTER

Debacle?

Re Mrs. Osbourn's letter of November 12. The lady says that the Inter-School swim meet was a debacle. Webster's defines a debacle as — (a) an overthrow or rout, (b) a great disaster. Depending on which school one favors, one or the other of these definitions is appropriate, but that is irrelevant.

Was it unfair that Oak Bay won? Did they cheat? Granted, other schools must be rather frustrated that one school has dominated in a sport for 19 years.

Is Oak Bay to be disqualified for its proficiency? If so, "let's expel the Montreal Canadiens from the NHL and Saskatchewan from the CFL. After all, we should give other teams an opportunity to win.

If one is willing to do this, in the end, mediocrity is exalted and excellence goes unrewarded. What is achieved by eliminating competion from competitive sports? If a school sets an athletic standard, then surpassing it is a goal to be strived for by other schools.

Does Mrs. Osbourn propose that Oak Bay be disallowed from swimming competition? If so, let's be consistent and exclude Victoria High or Mount View from sports in which they excel.

Her letter is nothing more than a sour grapes statement and, "as the parent of a former swim-club member," she should be more sporting in her outlook.—David Todd, 1936 Allenby.

CRITICISM AND COMPASSION

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Reading Between the Lines on the Nixon Face

TO the thoughtful observer, the face of President Nixon in the camera's cold eye is even more interesting than his policy. As anyone can see, less than a year of office has worn and grooved his outward features into new planes and furrows as a terrain is altered by a slowly moving glacier. What, we may well wonder, has happened to the man behind the mask when the glacial motion of history suddenly quickens and, for familiar reasons, threatens all human life on this tiny planet?

Hutchison

The question is important, since an American president, with his unique powers, must always alter history, one way or another, and Mr. Nixon has begun to alter it already, for better or worse. But if we can expect no answer to our question, no knowledge of his inner thoughts for some time yet, probably not until he has departed, we can guess from his face on television the agony which no smiles and wisecracks quite hide.

The presidential office, of course, is a man killer, a kind of ritual torture so cunningly planned and so ruthlessly enforced that no man would seek it nowadays if he were not gifted with a superhuman ego or an overpowering sense of mission. George Washington, who had neither in his simple times, confessed that "I would rather be in my grave than in the presidency," and his words ring down the centuries with increasing import when the responsibilities and burdens of the office increase beyond human endurance.

Thus the shattering physical change in Franklin Roosevelt as he stumbled to the end, the mere thousand days that prematurely aged the youthful John Kennedy as if he knew that his time was short, the haggard look of Lyndon Johnson once the failure of his life burst upon him — these visual records of success nearly always culminating in personal tragedy are revealed with merciless precision by the camera. Yet they do not tell us more than a fragment of the story.

Likely to Mislead

It will be fully told, we assume, when the secret records are opened by historians long hence. Will it indeed? Not in the opinion of Sir Robert Menzies, Australia's contemporary great man. As he says in his memoirs, the official documents are more likely to mislead than to inform posterity because they cannot reveal the private, unrecorded conversations, the unseen moments of decision, the ever-shifting motives of statesmen who are only men briefly elevated above their fellows and then swept away.

In the meantime the public, having elected its governors, shows no pity for them. The most stupid and ignorant voter does not hesitate to judge the most complicated problem and the ablest leader by standards never applied to himself.

A neighbor of mine whose life is a squalid ruin watched Mr. Nixon's last television speech and announced that the president was a disaster to the whole world. "Trudeau is a bust," I am informed by another man who has broken his wife's heart, destroyed his family and seldom done an honest day's work.

Few Canadians could quote the prime minister's serious speeches, but everybody recalls his angry explosion against the key-hole press. The public, or a large part of it, was deeply shocked though we all indulge such fits of temper almost every day and no one but our intimates hears about them, or cares. With a prime minister it is different, as if he belonged to another, and higher, species. His failings are writ large in the press, his virtues usually played down because they make no headlines. A house is seldom interesting unless it catches fire.

The average citizen — and especially the average journalist like me — expects from his governors far more than any man, however gifted, can possibly deliver and expects it as a natural right, a constitutional guarantee. While the human crisis deepens everywhere these demands grow by a terrifying geometric progression until a visitor from outer space doubtless would conclude that we are all crazy.

Perhaps we are, and certainly the behavior of nation states often makes individual lunacy look harmless by comparison. Still, the visitor would be wrong. For in fact, beneath its visible fury and impossible expectations, a free society like Canada really knows that the statesman is only a man and quietly accepts his humanity though damning him from the housetops. After all the screaming, most prime ministers are re-elected, not with enthusiasm but with a grudging sense of justice seldom publicly admitted. The eternal cussedness of things in government is recognized by the common man because he has encountered it in his own life.

Something else will escape the creature from some other world. It is that the people's collective verdict on any man long in politics generally proves to be more accurate than that of any skilled psychiatrist or any historian of the future. Therein lies the validity and the hope of democratic process, as demonstrated over and over again in our time.

People's Judgment

Once, long ago, I brashly mentioned to the young John Diefenbaker my belief that the people's judgment on a policy might often be wrong but on a man, as a man, was mysterious, intuitive and well nigh infallible.

Mr. Diefenbaker, his own tragedy still far ahead, seemed to doubt my theory. Neither he nor I could foresee then that it would be confirmed by his subsequent experience in government with a brutal clarity. It will be reconfirmed later on, favorably or unfavorably, in the case of his present successors in their turn. From a court unorganized, uncodified and almost incomprehensible there is no appeal.

Conventional Arms Imbalance Lowers SALT's Savor

ON Monday, in Helsinki, there begins what is potentially the most significant East-West negotiation of our time: strategic arms limitation (SALT) talks between the United States and the Soviet Union. The subject of the negotiation is no less than the balance of power in the world — the question whether, and if so, how to stabilize, perpetuate, and perhaps institutionalize the present equality in strategic striking power between the two great nuclear giants.

Frye

For many years, beginning in 1945, the United States had massive superiority in this field. The commanding American position continued well beyond acquisition by Moscow of nuclear and thermonuclear weapons.

It enabled John F. Kennedy to face down Nikita S. Khrushchev in 1962 over Cuba missiles, and win.

Some time in the late 1960s, however — probably about 1968 — the Soviet Union caught up. It would have required massive new expenditure by Washington to have recovered its dominance, if indeed that dominance could ever have been regained. Congress probably would not have voted the money.

'Sufficiency'

President Nixon did not ask for it. He settled instead for "sufficiency" — enough power to deter nuclear attack. Sufficiency replaced superiority as the doctrine and objective of the 1970s.

That meant that, for the first time, a meaningful negotiation with the Soviet Union to freeze the nuclear status quo was possible. No such negotiation could have taken place, seriously, while the United States had superiority; no government in Moscow would have frozen itself indefinitely into an inferior posture.

But what is possible is not automatically desirable. In the present case, an agreement to stabilize the nuclear balance would be desirable only if it did not leave the Soviet Union dangerously superior in the non-nuclear realm.

To a greater extent than is generally realized, the Soviets are gaining non-nuclear dominance. The curve of their imperial power is rising as the curve of American (and other western) power declines.

This is true in the Middle East, in the Indian Ocean, in Southeast Asia and — most significantly of all — in Europe.

NATO is frittering away its military might. Canada has announced the intention to pull out half her NATO forces. There is much pressure in the United States to do the same, applying to Europe the same do-it-yourself philosophy that is coming to govern American policy toward Asia.

Indeed, an influential and quite possibly dominant, current of opinion in the United States wants a pull-back from American overseas commitments virtually everywhere. Moratorium marchers are symptomatic of something with much wider applicability than Vietnam.

Put these facts together and the implications are sobering. On the one hand, American nuclear might is being neutralized as a stabilizing influence in the world — as a weapon with which to help curb Communist expansion. Its neutralization may now be formalized and perpetuated in a Treaty of Helsinki.

At the same time, the capacity of Communism for expansion by other means is being increased, both absolutely and relatively. American conventional might is being withdrawn, or threatened with withdrawal, from contested ground in much of the world.

The danger therefore is that there will be a very significant adverse shift in the world balance of power.

Few Americans appear to realize as yet the full implications of the new isolationism which is currently in vogue. When they do, they may react indignantly.

But if by then there is a SALT treaty, without any corresponding change in the terms under which East and West compete for influence in the world, it may be too late to repair the damage. It will be a very different globe from the one we know today.

Europe Sensitive

Europe could feel the impact more quickly than Asia. The political shape of the continent in the 1970s will be profoundly affected by the relative military power of NATO and the Warsaw Pact.

If NATO were to erode sufficiently, the Russians or East Germans might even be tempted to try a quick grab for West Berlin. Without American nuclear superiority, there would be neither atomic nor conventional power with which to frustrate it.

None of this has happened. It may never happen. But so long as Vietnam, the Middle East, Berlin and other major political issues remain unsettled, it will not necessarily be to the West's advantage to come to terms at Helsinki.

It is always heresy, in many circles, to question the wisdom of a disarmament agreement. But the United States might be better advised to keep the option of seeking, once again, the nuclear superiority which did so much to stabilize the world for more than a generation.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

Few cities in the world have, almost at their front doors, a natural attraction to rival that which the annual spawning of salmon at Goldstream provides for Greater Victoria.

Here, during the fall, the fish come back to the grounds where they were hatched, fulfilling their life cycle and reproducing their species. Both coho and chum come to the stream, generally at different times — the coho first on their rush to the higher reaches of the river. These are shy fish, inclined to seek hiding places under overhanging trees or eroded banks. They seem to prefer restricted areas in which to spawn, frequently in small backwaters or even ditches.

When the coho arrive they may remain in the deeper pools for some time before moving upstream, and when they do, it is usually in pairs. They stay mostly in their own pairs till the spawning is complete, and as a rule the female will pick her mate and will fight off any other that intrudes.

The eggs are hatched out during the beginning of the new year and the tiny little fingerlings will remain in the stream for a year before going out to sea.

When in the sea they feed on shrimp and herring and wander far out into the ocean in search of food, storing up energy to enable them to go back to their original spawning beds.

Their life cycle is three years. The little fry can be seen in the pools and shallows during the summer and should never be molested.

The chum salmon, coming in the stream a week or so later, are a different type of fish and have different habits. They are a more "open" water animal. They do not pair off as consistently as the coho, and yet will fight for their own territorial grounds. They like coarse gravel in which to deposit their eggs. Often you will see more than one male fertilizing the eggs and the female does not object.

When the eggs are hatched in the early spring the baby fish stay in the river for a short while only — long enough to use up their attached yolk sacs. Then out to the ocean they go and stay for four years, following the same pattern as the coho and returning to the ground where they were hatched.

These fish are plankton feeders and live in the green pastures of the sea. Their flesh is not so pink as others and yet may have more nourishment.

The run at Goldstream has been very poor for coho and fair for chums. This is no doubt the result of such a small amount of water running down the river both now and during the hot summer days, for the fry must have fresh clean water to survive, and at this time of the year enough water to enable them to go back to their own spawning grounds.

A Member of the Press Gallery Answers Commission Critics

By DOUGLAS FISHER

On Sunday noonhour, CBC radio has a public affairs program, one of whose features is a weekly critical comment by Doug Collins on the press.

Collins is a bluff, direct and aggressive man who has not yet made in Ottawa the impact his past record in Vancouver and his talents merit. As an aside, his autobiographical account of his escapes and wandering during the Second World War in Eastern Europe, published last year is one of the best personal reminiscences by a soldier I've read.

●

Last Sunday, Collins took off on the failure of the gentlemen of the press gallery in Ottawa to respond to the chapter about them in the second volume of the report of the task force on government information.

He noted that the press coverage and interpretation of the report had been generous in both space and skepticism about the over-all analysis and the recommendations.

Collins thought the points made about the press gallery's failures were sound.

He almost seemed to suggest a conspiracy of silence by the members in their ignoring of the chapter.

My reaction to Collins' argument was to feel rather put upon. When I first got the report I skimmed through the table of contents, spotted the bit on the press gallery and read it first.

●

I thought it so catty and the recommendations so banal that I threw the volume across the room in an excess of exasperation.

Later, some more stable colleagues, who began with the more literate and persuasive first volume, cautioned me about being so absolute.

Since then I've read the whole report. There is still a lot to say against the report, but it makes many good points, particularly about the fetish for secrecy so cherished by ministers, deputy ministers and their minions.

Here are the recommendations which conclude the chapter on the gallery:

"We recommend that: 1. The Government give greater recognition to the function and requirements of the Ottawa press gallery, in particular, by facilitating access to official information, by improving existing channels of communication between the public service and the gallery, and by making more background available in the two official languages. 2. The Government should also give greater recognition of its responsiblity that official information reaches all sections of the Canadian public."

What that gobbledygook means I leave to the taskers. I can't fathom it. I don't feel most members of the gallery are worried about "existing channels of communication between the public service" and themselves beyond the simple generality that official Ottawa likes to keep everything as secret as possible and dispense only what it considers proper.

If there's anything the gallery doesn't need is more in the way of press releases. There'd be little need for "backgrounders" if ministers and their agents would be more candid and revealing in Parliament and in the official conferences they hold from time to time.

The point Doug Collins made much of is the exclusivity of the gallery.

●

Typically, the task force uses an anonymous quote to state a case for a larger membership for the gallery: "Far too many agencies and responsible individuals are denied access to regular information by the exclusiveness of that control. Much greater legitimate access is necessary in order to fulfil the citizens' right to information. While some sort of accreditation is necessary, the present basis must be substantially expanded."

Several months ago, the gallery changed its constitution to simplify and broaden the basis of membership.

Some of us in the membership pushed for this and a considerable number of the members would certainly like to see it wide open.

The real limitations are those of space and facilities. These are very tight and cramped and it's hardly the gallery's prerogative to demand more.

●

Further, there really is no way to keep any reporter out of the gallery providing he works for a paper, a periodical, a radio or TV station or a network or a press agency which covers parliamentary activities, or if you want to be more general, federal government activities.

Another charge introduced which doesn't make much of a point beyond the slur is that a lot of gallery members moonlight. As one of the busiest moonlighters, I'd argue that this is irrelevant. It's distasteful that one of the pieces of evidence offered to support the moonlight insinuation is taken from CBC records of hiring print reporters for radio and TV assignments.

One of the task force trio was in charge of such assignments so it is gratuitously insulting to have this sentence: "The members of the gallery—perhaps through their ability, or their near-monopoly on the collection of Federal Government news, or their availability and competence—tended to dominate the Ottawa segments of these shows."

There's no mention of the real reason why the CBC has had to call on the gallery: because it didn't and doesn't have the guts to let its own employees comment frankly and critically on what is happening in Ottawa. Another point of criticism is the line of "identical inspiration." This is the old bit about the boys exchanging copies of their work or discussing matters until a common front and remarkably similar stories emerge. An allied point, again raised by anonymous MPs and executive assistants: "They referred to the increasingly influential 'power bloc' among a few of the more competent members of the gallery."

Since the advent of radio and TV reporters into the gallery a decade ago, the old charge of identical inspiration is becoming less and less credible.

Most of the manifestations of it which critics think they see arise from several factors that have little to do with a tribal unity or the dominance of a few journalists.

For example, a variety of thoughtful interpretations are impossible when deadlines demand stories within minutes or a few hours of the matter being available.

Radio and TV with their capsule tapes and film gobbets ride the top of the news, the breaking stuff. They tend to wear out stories in a hurry without much detail or exegesis.

To a degree the print reporters follow along behind, most of them harangued by phone from their home editors, to keep up with the breaking stuff and also to write "think" pieces on short notice.

The wonder is not the similarity but the diversity, given the short currency of any subject or story and the short staffing.

●

I've run out of space before I've really warmed to my task of demonstrating on how inadequate is the report's analysis of the press gallery.

On another day I'll have to return to the major weakness of the task force report; that is, its failure to distinguish clearly between running political news with its vital importance to the public, politicians and their partisans, and government information, which as a problem to be attacked should be essentially centred on the ready access of the citizen to the services and requirements of the government departments, agencies, etc.

Arctic Clash Long Time Brewing

By TERRANCE WILLS

WASHINGTON — Former Prime Minister Lester Pearson nearly a quarter of a century ago wrote with prescient precision the scenario for the issue of sovereignty and jurisdiction in the Canadian Arctic.

In an article published in the respected periodical Foreign Affairs in July of 1946, when he was Ambassador to the United States, Mr. Pearson:

● Forecast the great oil and mineral discoveries that have made the Arctic economically voluptuous;

● Foresaw the threat of the militarily strategic Arctic becoming a Maginot Line between the two nuclear giants;

● Detected the incipient danger to the exercise of full future control by Ottawa over the Arctic by its co-operation with Washington in defence measures and discounted these bilateral activities as giving Washington any jurisdictional rights in the Arctic;

● Charted the course currently being followed by the Canadian government, from its belated assertion now that it owns all the waters between the islands and that there was never really any question of this, that the ice like the land is Canadian, that Canada does not intend to shut up the Arctic but to open it up to co-operative development with certain controls, and that these controls should be worked out through the United Nations.

'One Should Know'

"A large part of the world's total Arctic area is Canadian," Mr. Pearson wrote.

"One should know exactly what this part comprises. It includes not only Canada's northern mainland, but the islands and the frozen sea north of the mainland between the meridians of its east and west boundaries, extended to the North Pole."

This is known as the sector theory of sovereignty, which Russia applies in its Arctic, and on a recent visit to Washington, Mr. Pearson said he still favors this principle.

On that visit, Mr. Pearson also expressed concern over the speculation that nuclear weapons—he mentioned anti-ballistic missiles—might be positioned in the Arctic. Canada should resist this and if it cannot do so successfully at least ensure it controls the weapons, he said.

Mr. Pearson wrote in 1946: "So far as Canada is concerned, she does not relish the necessity of digging, or having dug for her, any Maginot Line in her Arctic ice . . .

"There is already an increasing, and in some of its manifestations, an unhealthy preoccupation with the strategic aspects of the north . . . Our country, we are inclined to boast, lies athwart the airways of the future across the top of the world. That is true, but it should give us cause to worry about how those airways are used, because they join the two greatest agglomerations of power in our world, the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A."

He advocated in the article an undefended border "down north" as well as along Canada's southern boundary. (The article is entitled Canada Looks Down North).

"This, however, depends in the last analysis, less on co-operation between the northern countries on Arctic matters, important and desirable as that is, than on co-operation generally between the great powers in the United Nations," he wrote.

Rich Oil Fields

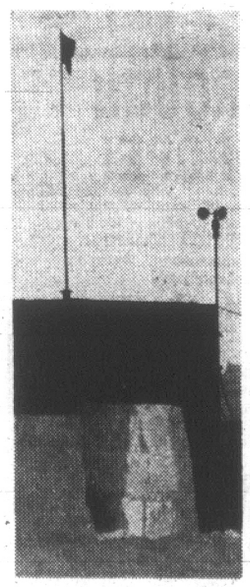
The issue of sovereignty and jurisdiction over the Arctic has been made popular by the discovery of the fabulously wealthy oil fields on the north slope of Alaska and the possibility of transporting the crude by giant tankers through the Northwest Passage to refineries in oil-hungry New England.

The experimental tanker Manhattan conquered the frozen passage this summer for Humble Oil and Refining Co., raising the prospect that the fabled frozen waters could become a realistic trade route and that the mineral wealth of the Arctic will be opened to exploitation.

"It is known that there is gold," Mr. Pearson wrote. "There are also lead, copper, tungsten, and oil fields which may prove to be among the greatest in the world. Above all, there are great deposits of radium and uranium ores, the rights to all of which, discovered and to be discovered,



Hoisting the Flag

have been reserved to the Canadian government . . .

"Canada, however, is conscious of the limitations on her own ability to translate these peaceful desires into realities. Here, as elsewhere, the hope for the future lies in the ability of the great powers, and of all other powers, to work together within the United Nations."

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau has repeatedly asserted that Canada alone has mineral rights in its Arctic, and this week he consulted in New York with United Nations Secretary General U Thant in pursuit of international measures to prevent pollution in the Arctic.

PEARSON

In the article Mr. Pearson stressed the role of aircraft rather than ships in opening the Arctic, but he did devote several paragraphs to the history of Canadian shipping in the North and combined this with the activities of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police to support his argument for Canada's sovereignty of the North.

Put Out Fires

"When a stratosphere liner of the future lands somewhere south of the Pole in its voyage from Europe to Asia, its passengers will find a Canadian flag, a Canadian government station, and probably a notice stuck somewhere . . . that they will be liable to fine or imprisonment or both if they do not extinguish their camp fires."

Mr. Pearson discussed in the article some of the joint defence projects undertaken in the North by Canada and the United States during the Second World War but concluded "the Canadian government, while ready to co-operate to the fullest extent with the United States and other countries in the development of the Arctic, accepts responsibility for its own sector."

The Silent Service

By RUSSELL BAKER

It was surprising the other night to hear President Nixon calling upon "the Great Silent Majority" to support him in standing fast in Vietnam.

Newsmen immediately hurried over to Great Silent Majority headquarters, a two-room office without telephone located in the National Press Club building. There, Charles F. L. Kunkel, executive secretary of the G.S.M., as it is known to Washington habitues, was the very picture of indecision.

To talk or not to talk?—that was Kunkel's question. Members of the Great Silent Majority are permitted to speak when they order meals and when they have been short-changed, but all other breaches of silence are sternly frowned upon and political discussion is, of course, taboo.

★ ★ ★

This is why membership in the Great Silent Majority is down to only 11 members (including Kunkel). Practically every American in the country finds it so difficult to resist the temptation to pronounce on politics that almost the entire population now belongs to G.S.M.'s rival organization, the Great Gabby Minority.

Still, that a President should at last dignify the G.S.M. by calling for its support in his time of need—this was an honor about which Kunkel could hardly afford to remain silent for long. And so, he wrote on a piece of paper that he was convening the entire Great Silent Majority to meet next day at a well-known delicatessen six blocks from the White House.

At the appointed hour, the Great Silent Majority gathered at a circular table under an extraordinary suspension of the rules permitting them to discuss the President's plea.

★ ★ ★

The first speaker said that he did not see how they could support the Vietnam policy "without making a lot of noise." If that was what the President had in mind, he asked, then why had the President begun his term "by asking us to lower our voices"? The President was being "logically inconsistent," he complained.

"You misunderstood what the President was really saying," the second speaker countered. "The President wants everybody who disagrees with his policy to lower his voice, but he wants noise from everybody who agrees with him."

The third speaker took a legalistic view of the question. The Great Silent Majority, he reminded his audience, was created by political correspondents in 1932 to serve "a purely journalistic function."

"We were established to keep our mouths shut," he explained, "so that political reporters would not know what we were thinking. Thus, when reporters have to forecast which candidate is going to win a given election, they can always hedge their predictions by writing, 'of course, nobody knows what the Great Silent Majority is thinking.' "

To endorse the President's Vietnam policy, he went on, would be a "betrayal" of the G.S.M. charter and would deprive reporters and pollsters of "an essential instrument for keeping them from looking like utter fools on mornings after elections."

The fourth speaker with a no-nonsense approach said that this was irrelevant in view of the "higher importance" now assigned the G.S.M. by the President. He demanded a show of hands on the question of how many supported and how many opposed the President's policy.

No hands went up on either side of the issue. This caused some confusion until a mild lady of about 75 explained it. "My goodness," she said, "if any of us had had opinions on anything, we would never have been able to stay silent all these years."

★ ★ ★

"That's not quite right for all of us," Kunkel replied. "Take me, for example. I've got opinions on a lot of things, but they're so half-baked and uninformed that I don't want to have my country's future dependent on them. When two men as well-informed as Senator Fulbright and President Nixon can't agree on the right thing to do, I'd shudder for the future of the country if they came to me to decide the question."

"I'm tired of this noise," said the final speaker. "If we keep it up, we'll look as silly as the Great Gabby Minority, and since they've got the votes anyhow, I move that we go home."

The motion was carried on a silent show of hands.

A Farce to Swim Out Of Mediocrity's Slough?

By ART STOTT

A letter to the editor in our paper Wednesday evening has left me puzzled. It was submitted by a mother who attended the inter-high swim meet at Colwood last week and came away with the personal conviction that it was a farce. It was a farce, she explains, because one school team contained competitors who were far more proficient than those of other schools and who, in her opinion, had "actively engaged in full-time training and receiving expert guidance in the finer points of competition."

Stott

"It is perfectly obvious," she wrote, "that such youths cannot be fairly matched against those for whom swimming is a casual, leisure-time activity. (Which is what a great many medical doctors and child psychologists are beginning to believe all sports should be.)"

★ ★ ★

She has also made the point that among requisites for proficiency in student competitive swimming "are parents who are willing and financially able to foot the bill" for intensive training and coaching. And she notes that dedication to this intensive training and coaching by the youngster may preclude his participation in other activities of youth.

These are familiar points. But why is it a farce when those who have achieved competency in their sport demonstrate it with victory over those who are less proficient? Is it likewise a farce when a well-coached school team in any other sport, or any other competition — musical, artistic or academic — proves ability?

Was it a farce when the school which won the aggregate honors at the swim meet, a relatively few years ago, turned out the top three students in the provincial matriculation examinations and placed five students in the top seven in British Columbia? Was it a farce for other students less competent to compete against them?

Is it a farce when anyone equips himself to the point at which he excels all others in the performance of any given activity? Or is it farcical for the less well prepared to challenge?

Have we, in fact, reached the point where the only desirable standard is mediocrity?

I'll go along with anyone who advocates participation in any worthwhile activity for enjoyment and, in physical recreation, for the benefits such participation provides. But I can't go along with the person who ridicules either the youngster who dedicates himself to excellence, nor the less expert who wants to compete against him. And I'm not at all convinced that the child of a couple whose means are modest is excluded from the training and coaching required to achieve excellence. There are, in this town and elsewhere, opportunities for the children of the less affluent to achieve that training and coaching if the children are dedicated enough and show the desire and potential ability to reach for the stars.

★ ★ ★

My interest is personal. I was around when Archie McKinnon and his helpers launched a bunch of youngsters, largely from Oak Bay, on the wave which led them to pre-eminence in school swimming — and they weren't all rich kids, even if Oak Bay is accepted as the economically privileged of Greater Victoria municipalities. I watched the youngsters in the Flying Y teams compete for their schools and I saw a lot of them reach national prominence in swimming. They didn't do it entirely on the fatness of poppa's pocketbook, though financial backing was certainly no drawback. And, apart from expert coaching and sensible training routines, they went ahead with major assistance from competitors who were better than they were at the start. You improve in sport, as a rule, as you go into higher class competition.

If anyone believes that these are considerations which should not intrude in high school competition, let him or her do some elementary research in swimming. The top performers in the sport nowadays usually hit their peak well before they are 20. The record books show that the champions start emerging in their mid-teens — high school age. If they haven't arrived by then, you can generally figure they missed the bus.

Since the world's best swimmers are showing up in the high school age bracket, it seems logical to find them swimming in high school meets. To me it is no moral crime to be good enough to win. And if some of the less adept are encouraged to work harder at swimming and become better swimmers through exposure to high grade competition, more power to them.

Unfeeling of me; perhaps, but as an old boy I don't mind Oak Bay winning. And I'm mean enough to want to know why they got licked on the mainland. Maybe that's why I'm puzzled by the lady letter-writer's description of the local meet as a farce.

E Minor—Plus Dash of A—Brews Sexy Piano Player

By AUDREY JOHNSON

A spotlight blooms in the dimming theatre. Into the circle of light steps a comely figure, golden hair piled high, flamboyant period dress bustle-backed and low scoop-necked.

She sweeps across to the piano, trim, net-clad ankles flashing, perches on the stool and begins hitting up a honkey-tonk tune.

She is very much the sexy, come-hither piano player of the Old West saloon. Except that the old saloon probably rarely had it so good.

She is also Christine Chester, Bachelor of Music, University of Victoria, involved in post-grad studies leading to the degree of Master of Fine Arts, majoring in theatre.

Christine and admirer (Bob Brand)

The current theatre division production, Two Gents, is the eighth at Uvic in which she has been involved as composer of incidental music but she does not often play so prominent a part in the performance of her own music.

Christine, doll-size, determined and dynamic, has known for a long while just where she is going.

At first music was the dominant thing in her life although theatre had cropped up heavily in both her parents' families.

●

An only child, she came to Vancouver from Manchester at the age of five.

After four years at the University of B.C. as a music student she returned to England to study British music at the Royal College of Music, Morley College and London University.

Two years later she was back in Canada and at Simon Fraser University the shape of the future began to emerge.

She was a secretary in Simon Fraser's Centre for Communication and the Arts when John Juliani asked her to find religious music of a specific period for his production of The Devils.

Not able to unearth just what was required, she wrote two choral pieces and so took the first step on what she hopes is to be her life work.

Wishing to return to university and complete her bachelor's degree, Christine considered the University of Washington but then was attracted by a course at Uvic entitled Text, Music and drama. She graduated last spring.

●

Her parents, whom she describes as fully sympathetic and co-operative with all her decisions, are still in Vancouver. So Christine baches in a house with three other girls, three cats, a goldfish, a piano, a lute and two guitars.

Carl Hare provided her with her first Uvic theatre music assignment in his production of The Bacchae.

Since then she has composed music for, amongst other things, Romeo and Juliet, Measure for Measure, Comedy of Errors, Hamlet and Merchant of Venice.

●

In discussing music for the theatre, Christine is careful to underline the differences between simply composing music, composing musical shows a la Broadway and the idiom she specializes in.

"When you compose for theatre, the music does not stand by itself. If it does overpower the production it is not good for it is simply another part of the whole — a contributing and enhancing factor.

"The music must satisfy not only the audience but the director, designers and cast."

"You must have a full understanding of the concepts of the director," she explains. For instance Two Gents' director John Krich had a triple concept — old style western, Victorian melodrama and silent film — all of which blend into an amusing whole.

"Next you have to look at the costumes and set design. You must note the number of set changes and what they are to know what transitional music is required, and discover the mood of any scenes in which songs are to be included."

Character themes are used extensively in Two Gents and to write these it is necessary to watch the actors for an understanding of how they are developing their roles.

●

By this time, says Christine, you know you will have to write "a lot of expandable, contractable stuff and you have more or less decided where you want the music and whether — or where — it is to be taped or live."

"You know that if actors are to perform the music you must keep it simple because it is rare to find an actor who is also a trained musician."

"When the music is for mood invoking it is better to use tape because the sudden intrusion of live musicians who are not characters would be distracting.

Chrstine says her best time for composing is between the hours of 7 and 9 a.m.

"I set my alarm, stagger out of bed, trying to keep my eyes open, sit in an arm chair with a cup of coffee and peer at my cue sheet. I have 73 cues.

Sounding Board

"Maybe I start with a song or a transition piece. After I get something written out I dash to the piano and try it and then call my roommates to come and listen ... the girls are very good. They tiptoe around, make my cups of coffee, listen and encourage me.

Christine says she doesn't need to be alone — just quiet.

The process goes on for several hours and then she sleeps when ideas stop flowing.

●

Next morning the whole procedure is repeated, and possibly the next, until the job is done.

Next thing is to get the director to hear it. Sometimes he disagrees with some part of the score but neither of us can really tell if it's going to work until we get it into rehearsal.

"That's when we know where the cuts or extensions come.

"And without fail," she adds wryly, "that's when the director will decide to add two or three additional music cues."

●

Now the copying from "my own special musicial shorthand which nobody else could possibly read" has to be done. It's a job the composer says she "loathes."

"By this time it's like charging up to the plane as it's about to leave the runway.

"Musicians have to be rehearsed and taping done and actors who may have to sing must be coached and calmed because they are in a panic and sure they can't possibly produce a musical note."

Then after opening night and the audience tryout: "How do I know whether it's been a success? If even two or three people go out of the auditorium humming one of my melodies — it's a success."

●

What turns Christine on? The same sort of stimuli that turn other kinds of artists on. Only where others might write a poem or produce a water color sketch, Chrstine's thoughts on the subject come in terms of music.

All musicians recognize that different tonalities suggest different textures, moods and colors.

"Looking at the charming design and color of Sylvia's costume in Two Gents, I thought of her song as E minor — with a touch of A minor."

Christine expects to gain her master's in the spring of 1971 and after summer work here in the third Victoria Fair — which she confidently expects will take place — she will return to England for further study of music in theatre.

"With my practical training in theatre here I could take a job as an assistant stage manager or on props," she explains.

After that, she hopes, a job writing music for theatre productions with lots of moving about on both sides of the Atlantic.

●

And if sometime Dr. Allen should ask me back to do a job here at Uvic I'd come like a shot," she says.

"I feel that with all the practical work I did at UBC — (besides her familiarity with keyboard instruments she has a working knowledge of most other instruments) — and what I have gained here in history, period and idiom, I have had the best of both worlds."

Carlos Montoya Plays Here Monday

Spanish gypsy, Carlos Montoya, is bringing his world famous flamenco guitar to Victoria Monday and playing it in the Newcombe Auditorium at 8 p.m.

Most-recorded flamenco guitarist in history, Montoya has made concert hall appearances almost every where.

The essence of flamenco — post-Montoya flamenco anyway — is improvisation. Though there are strict rules of rhythm and chord patterns the music must spring from the heart and soul rather than paper, says Montoya.

"If you stop to think about what you are playing the music just disappears.

"We gypsies are really unanalytical; you might even say unintellectual. You feel something; you make the guitar mirror your feelings."

Montoya was the first flamenco artist ever to stand on a stage alone and perform. Before, such music was used as backgrounding for singers or dancers.

In 1966 Montoya realized a life-long dream when he performed his Suite Flamenca with the St. Louis Symphony.

Tickets are being sold at the Student Union Building, University of Victoria, and Munro's Book Store on Yates.

YOUNG ARTISTS FEATURED

Two young Victoria artists are to be featured next Saturday in a dedication recital at St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church in Ladysmith.

This will be the first pipe-organ recital in the history of the up-Island town. The church has replaced the original one which was destroyed by fire three years ago.

Mary Chard, at 15 already a promising organ virtuoso, will perform on the recently installed two manual Casavant organ. She will be assisted by treble Jeffrey Finch.

Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Chard of Victoria, is a highly accomplished student. She has studied piano with Noel Smith and is at present a pupil of Robin Wood at the Victoria Conservatory of Music.

She has studied violin with Jack Kessler and for the past two years has been an organ pupil of Richard Proudman.

She recently won the Royal Conservatory of Music's silver medal for all of British Columbia in Grade VI organ examinations, junior and senior organ classes in the Victoria Music Festival as well as awards in piano classes and is the only competitor from Western Canada to enter the international competition for organists sponsored by the RCCO.

A Christ Church Cathedral boys' choir soloist, Jeffrey Finch sang the difficult role of Amahl in the Christmas 1968 production of Menotti's Amahl and the Night Visitors at the cathedral.

Mary will play works by Sweelinck, Teleman, Bach, Vierne and Brahms, including Bach's organ concerto in A minor. Jeffrey will sing Harvvest Song, Lord of the Dance and Pie Jesu from Faure's Requiem.

POP CONCERT PROGRAM BY SCHOOLS

A pop concert program shared by Lansdowne Junior and Victoria Senior Secondary School bands will be presented at McPherson Playhouse Sunday, starting at 2:30 p.m.

Lansdowne's "Gold" band under the direction of Brian Longworth, will perform nine numbers including Mort Stevens' Hawaii Five-O, the Herb Alpert arrangement of music from Bizet's Carmen, a Fiesta Calypso, Julie Styne's People and Caneva's Tarantella Capri.

With Axel Waldhaus directing, Victoria Senior's Symphonic Band selections range from a Concerto Grosso by Vivaldi to the Bach-Stauffer Fugue and Swing, Warrington's Dixieland Concerto, Rock Around the Clock and Soul Rock.

Trial By Jury Next Week

A performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's Trial by Jury will be a highlight of a program to be presented next Saturday by the choir of St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay.

Stage direction of the little one-act operetta is by Norman Tyrrell who is also playing the role of the judge. Other principals will be Trudy Flatman, John Bray and Tony Patriarche.

Members of St. Barnabas Church Choir are also taking part in the production.

The affair, entitled Fun Night, is under the direction of choirmaster Charles Palmer and will take place in the church hall, Elgin Road, commencing at 8:30 p.m.

METCALFE, DAGLISH AT PRINT GALLERY

Pop Art With Erotica for Trimming

By GORDON RICE

Loose, free drawing strokes and relaxed brushwork build up the color lithographs of Peter Daglish. There is an apparent ease in the way he has mastered the technique of drawing and painting on stone, in order to produce these impressions.

A certain relationship to children's art masks the real refinement of his work.

Eric Metcalfe's drawings and silk-screens exploit a lurid, pop-commercial imagery, given strange twists. His drawing style is hard and thin, and his prints are printed in flat, even colors, with some use of regular, repetitive texturing. His style in general is a marked contrast to the soft expansiveness of Daglish's stuff.

The two men are exhibiting at the Print Gallery in Oak Bay, until Nov. 29. They both make use of sexual imagery and suggestions, but with quite different approaches (if you are looking for real erotica, however, you can go elsewhere; this is hardly black cat material).

Metcalfe presents the overt sexual "come on" approach seen in television commercials, but here the message is not softened so much.

It has all the necessary makings of Pop Art, with the oft-used surrealist sexual trimmings (tubes of toothpaste being squeezed, etc).

In each print the women's faces stare straight at us, with the typical blandness of the posed commercial shot.

Some of the figures are presented from the breasts up, as in advertising cameos. Other poses are quite contorted, with much use of straps and girdles in the approved North Hollywood manner. Metcalfe's outlines are as thin as a pen line, usually wavy, sometimes blocky.

He seems to be mainly interested in presenting somewhat literary ideas, those connected (again) with the sex-pop vogue, reminiscent in a way of the work of Tom Wesselman, et al. Thus any familiarity with the general style will make Metcalfe's work quite familiar.

The thin, skimpy shading, the repeated faces, the kinky sex images, the arbitrary color, all convey an approach that will work definite reactions, pro-or-con, in the viewer.

With Daglish's work one's estimate will probably be harder to make. They are approachable, his prints, with their casual, easy look.

Closer inspection reveals a studied calculation, however, or we might say, a deliberation; an alternating between contemplation and rapid execution of idea, in full, easy strokes.

His images, and their placement, have a definite sexual component, but it should be added that they have other possibilities too; that is they can evoke many things, suggest much more. That is, Metcalfe will present us with a scoop of ice-cream which through its execution is obviously also a breast.

With Daglish a form comes across probably as a one definite image to begin with (a palm tree, or a tower), but rendered in such a way as to also suggest all sorts of other images, vegetable, sexual, child-like, mechanical, et cetera.

Daglish uses large stencilled letters, and words (reminiscent of Johns, Rivers, and Rauschenberg) as evocative pictures in themselves, and with considerable poetic force.

That is, he will select two or three words, such as "calm", "palm", and "alarm", with an eye (and an ear) to their visual and phonetic similarities, and their diverse associations.

The words are printed large, and then fall into association with pictures which directly or obliquely relate to the words.

The letters then also function as building blocks, so that the whole picture becomes visual, rather than literary; in fact the words are too simple to demand in us a backlog of literary research.

As I say, they could almost remind us of children's illustrations (by or for), except for the extended range of poetic incongruities and the high artistic flair which lies behind their easy-going appearance.

Daglish also shows here a wall hanging (a woven piece), and some photographs and one example of his cardboard sculpture. The large cardboard sculpture pieces remind one of odd-ball parade floats, and are very playful.

Metcalfe may hit his best level in the less prominently featured pen drawings, those in ball point ink. The thin linear outlines seem to have here considerable interest in themselves, that is, in the strictly visual sense, as drawing.

Perhaps drypoint engraving would hold some interest, and prospect, for the artist.

'You Are Hereby Granted Title to Mrs. Woodley'

By VINCENT CANBY

NEW YORK (NYT) — "Paint Your Wagon" is an amiable, $20 million musical. That's a high price to pay for something that is more an expression of good intentions than evidence of sustained cinematic accomplishment.

However, because amiability is never in over-abundant supply, especially in Hollywood super-productions, the movie can be enjoyed more often than simply tolerated.

In some ways, in fact, the very weaknesses of "Paint Your Wagon" are its virtues. There is something quite cheerful about its book, which is so casual that it stops being a story after intermission and becomes, instead, a frame for some amusing comedy "set pieces."

APPEALING

Its three stars — Lee Marvin, Clint Eastwood and Jean Seberg — are not singers, but they are appealing performers and they come on with such legitimate, graceful good humor that they disarm the sort of criticism demanded by more aggressive personalities.

"Paint Your Wagon," which made its Broadway debut in 1951 was never one of Lerner and Loewe's major works. It falls behind "Brigadoon," "Gigi," and, of course, "My Fair Lady," but its score is miles ahead of those of most of the other musicals of the 1950's, except those by Cole Porter and by Rodgers and Hammerstein, who somehow discovered the terrifying secret of transforming sugar into gold.

MINING CAMP

Working from an adaptation by Paddy Chayefsky, Alan Jay lerner, the screenwriter, and Joshua Logan, the director, have abandoned Lerner's original Broadway book while retaining the locale, a rustic mining camp, fearfully short of females, during the height of the California gold rush.

What there is of a coherent story concerns Ben Rumson (Marvin), a boozy old prospector given to gargantuan fits of melancholy; his best friend, Pardner (Eastwood), an equally tough but younger, comparatively prim, prospector, and Mrs. Elizabeth Woodley (Miss Seberg), the No. 2 wife of a passing Mormon whom Rumson buys for $800 and marries in what is, in effect, a claim-staking ceremony.

"You are hereby granted exclusive title to Mrs. Elizabeth Woodley," says the "preacher," "and to all her mineral resources."

When Rumson leaves town for several days on community business (to kidnap a wagonload of what are referred to, respectfully, as "French tarts"), Rumson's wife and his best friend fall in love.

CRISIS RESOLVED

This crisis is resolved by the older man taking the younger one into the marriage partnership, which proves satisfactory to all concerned — and works so pleasantly that it shortstops dark considerations of rather peculiar psychological implications.

All of this takes place in the first half of the film and is just about the sum and substance of the so-called book.

The score, which is supplemented by a couple of new songs by Andre Previn, who comes close to capturing what seems like an antique style, is lovely in a high-class schmaltzy way.

TALKS NUMBERS

Marvin talks his numbers well. Eastwood sort of croons his in an early Frankie Avalon mode, and Miss Seberg rather decently lip-syncs someone else's voice.

Structurally — and stylistically — the film looks like something Logan might be trying out in New Haven — 20 years ago. Although the movie was shot entirely on some beautiful Oregon locations, the scenery never has much more effect than would theatrical backdrops.

Most of the time, however, "Paint Your Wagon" is easy to take, as amiable as Marvin, Eastwood and Miss Seberg, whose contemporary movie presence give an old property brand-new cool.

Thieves Like Funland Too

LAKE COWICHAN — Thieves find the new amusement centre, Funland, so enjoyable they robbed it for the second time since it opened six weeks ago.

Owner Peter Edwards estimated his loss at $500 in property damage and stolen goods.

Cigarettes and confectionery items worth $150 as well as $90 in silver from rifled games and vending machines, were taken by the thieves.

Entry to the building was gained through a washroom window in the rear.

Project Five To Follow Man's Fate

NEW YORK (NYT) — This, at long last, is the month of "Man's Fate."

Director Fred Zinnemann, who has not been represented on the screen since the award-winning "A Man For All Seasons" in 1967, promises that he will finally put his film version of Andre Malraux's 1933 novel about a communist attempt to gain control of Shanghai before the M.G.M. cameras.

The cast, including Eiji Okada, the hero of "Hiroshima, Mon Amour," Liv Ullmann, Max von Sydow, Peter Finch and David Niven, is presently poised, ready for action, in London. Later, they will go on location in Singapore and Malaysia, returning to London in April to seal their "Fate."

But Zinnemann is concerned with more than the fate of "Man's Fate." He has another project under way — "Project Five." Why is it called that? Because if is the fifth Zinnemann movie to go out under the Columbia Pictures banner.

Young Canada's Book Week

Books

By JUDI FREEMAN

Janet Lunn is perhaps best known in Canada for her charming but pointed reviews of children's literature.

As one of that field's leading critics, Mrs. Lunn has written for numerous publications, contributed to CBC Radio and lectured to librarians and other groups.

At last she has a published children's novel of her own — Double Spell—which more than adequately meets all the criteria Janet Lunn herself demands as prerequisites for good children's literature.

DOUBLE SPELL by Janet Lunn. Peter Martin Associates Ltd. $4.95.

Double Spell is just what its title indicates. Twins Jane and Elizabeth fall under the spell of an old doll sitting in the window of an antique shop on Toronto's Yonge Street. Why the doll should pick them as her owners is a puzzle to the twins and to the shopkeeper, too.

Strange things immediately begin to happen but for a while the twins can explain them away onto their large, down-to-earth family and the big old house they have inherited.

Before the tale of twins is over, the young reader will be led into the 1840 world of "muddy little York," will understand the tension between twins who aren't sure they like being twins and will feel a trace of the supernatural which children relate to more readily than adults.

A footnote to Janet Lunn's first novel is a Canada Council decision to grant her money for research and travel for her second children's novel before Double Spell went to the printers. (Ages 11-14.)

PIRATE ROCK by Danid Walker. Collins, London and Toronto. $3.75.

What else can two boys do but investigate when mysterious things happen on their summer job?

David Walker, author of Maritime tales, has written an entertaining tale for children who like mysteries.

Brothers Keith and Nelson Kelly—the artistic and the practical—jump at the chance to crew Frank Belcher's speedboat on the Bay of Fundy.

High fences, strange bulges under jackets and the sound of an underground ventilation system lead the "linked brothers" down tunnels of danger and death.

Not only does the novel have a believable ending but the author's use of humor and sarcasm reflects boys' companionships to a tee. (Ages 11-14.)

SIMON'S SONGS by Barbara and Ed Emberley. Prentice-Hall, Inc. $4.75.

When Simple Simon met the pieman going to the fair, everyone knows what Simple Simon said to the pieman. But just what did he do when his boat began to sink?

Why "he did not cry or shout; he simply drilled another hole to let the water out."

These are the tales of Simple Simon in an updated version of the witless fellow's adventures.

Barbara Emberley has researched and adapted the tale for her young readers. Her husband, Ed, has illustrated each undertaking with enchanting woodcuts in the primary colors of red, blue and green. He achieves a silhouette toy-like effect by using pieces of balsa wood pasted on illustration board.

This book, with strong bindings, is well-suited to preschoolers who enjoy poring over pictures. (Ages 3-6.)

CINDERELLA by Alan Suddon. French by Claude Aubry. Oberon Press. $3.75.

This is a book to be read and loved by today's child, oriented as he is to splash, pop art and TV.

Twenty-nine collages done with humor illustrate the author's version of Cinderella. Suddon, fine arts head for the Metropolitan Toronto Central Library, made the collages for his children first and then assembled them for the book. His adaptation of Cinderella, with French translation, is the original tale with variations from a father who has re-told the tale to his children many times.

For instance, after Cinderella has waved goodbye to her step-mother and two ugly step-sisters who are off to the prince's ball, she sits down in her kitchen corner for a snooze, only to be awakened by a laugh from a stranger dressed in a red and white candy-striped dress.

"Who are you," she gasped.

"I'm your fairy godmother."

Cinderella had heard of fairy godmothers but she hadn't expected one to look like this.

"I know what you're thinking," laughed the fairy godmother. "I used to go round in a long black dress, but I find it more fun this way."

And so goes the story of Cinderella, right through the glass slipper bit to the wedding gifts which Cinderella really liked, "especially the five electric kettles." A very good re-working of a favorite folk-tale. (Ages from 3 up.)

From Double Spell

IVANKO AND THE DRAGON by Marie Halun Bloch. Illustrated by Yaroslava. McClelland and Stewart. $5.95.

Ivanko and the Dragon is an old Ukrainian folk tale collected by Ivan Rudchenko in the 1860s. Marie Halun Bloch, who has translated the tale, has been ably assisted by her illustrator in presenting a book for children which carries all the old world flavor of the Ukraine.

The most easily recognizable stamp is the faintly modernistic but still Ukrainian embroidery and design with which the clothing of the large illustrations is decorated.

This folk tale is a popular one. Ivanko is a stick of wood brought to life by the love of his parents. When he grows up he becomes a fisherman and gives all his fish to his mother. The dragon is a menace which Ivanko manages to avoid until, one day, the dragon is too clever and catches him.

But the dragon comes out the loser in the end and Ivanko returns to his parents. (Ages 4-7.)

MAILA AND THE FLYING CARPET by Denis and Alain Trez. Macmillan. $4.95.

Maila is a spoiled young prince who doesn't want the elephants and toys given him by his father, the Rajah. More than anything, he wants a flying carpet. When he does get one he immediately flies off into adventure.

The text is short and young readers will get a lot of enjoyment from the crayoned drawings of elephants, zebras, peacocks, and, of course, Maila and his flying carpet. (Ages 3-4.)

MAGIC NUMBER by Harold Goodwin. Prentice-Hall, Inc. $4.75.

Magic Number is a story about conflict between domestic and wild animals. Vaguely reminiscent of Thornton Burgess' animal series or Kenneth Grahame's Wind in the Willows, the book has the drawings and tone of English children's books.

The patio pets want to keep the patio and the pool all to themselves during the hot summer days but the wild animals get all upset and form a group, Eaters of Noxious Insects General Management Associates or ENIGMA, to force the issue.

The pets become CRUMBs, Committee to Restore Universal Moral Balance, and war is declared. The book would make fair fare for a series of bedtime readings. (Ages 3-5.)

TOPS by William Wiesner. Macmillan. $5.50.

Even shooting marbles is no fun when you don't have anyone to play with, says Tops, the giant of the forest. So he sets out to find something to do. Large colorful pictures with a very simple story make this a book for the very young child. Some parents may object to the highly moralistic ending but the youngsters won't know the difference. (Ages 3-4.)

Family Reading Aloud Best Way for Durrell

By ANTHONY JENKINS

When My Family and Other Animals first appeared some thirteen years ago, Gerald Durrell confessed (with tongue in cheek) that once his family had been introduced in the first chapters it was "only with the greatest difficulty, and by excercising considerable cunning" that he managed to devote a few pages exclusively to animals.

Judging by the title of this new book, he has attempted to redress the balance—the "relatives" are put after the animals—but in actual fact, the family has again refused to be pushed off the page, and the result is a cheerful reprise along the old hilarious lines.

BIRDS, BEASTS, AND RELATIVES by Gerald Durrell. Collins. $5.95.

Not that this book is strictly a sequel to the first one. It covers the same time period, the Durrells' stay on Corfu before the Second World War, and it is made up of episodes that did not appear the first time around. How this all came about is "explained" in an arch little conversation-piece that prefaces the book.

The family, huddled by an unruly fire in a London winter, thinks fondly back to the sunshine of Greece.

"I do wish you'd stop harping on Greece," said Leslie. "It reminds me of that bloody book of Gerry's. It took me ages to live that down."

And all of them agree, except Mother: "I thought the title was rather funny, dear . . . The only thing I thought was that he hadn't used all the best stories."

Naturally, if he had used all the scandalous details the first time around, the family would have sued him en masse.

"Faced with such a firm and united family, bristling in their resolve to prevent me at all costs, there was only one thing I could do. I sat down and wrote this book."

GERALD DURRELL

The scandals, of course, are about as ribald and earthy as a TV family "sitchcom." A couple of them are extremely funny in an exaggerated, farcical way.

Margo, the spotty, adolescent sister, becomes so fat that she's sent to a London specialist. Instead of seeing him, she ends up with some loony relatives attending seances in a private hotel. Then there's the time Mrs. Durrell is wooed by a brandy-breathing, hard swearing old sea-dog.

The family remains its old self: Mother, a delicious mixture of vagueness and concern; Larry, brashly arty, with a penchant for inviting assorted down-and-outs to stay at impossible hours of the night; Leslie, engrossed in experiments with gunpowder; Margo, all spots and fat.

The main trouble is that Durrell, in his efforts not to repeat the old material, has had to give short shrift to those minor characters who were the highpoints of the first book.

One particularly misses Spiro, the taxi-driving Jack-of-all-trades, who drifts through this book with his "Gollys, Mrs. Durrells," but who is not given much to do.

Those who like animals, though, will find the book a delight. Durrell's gift as a writer is that he manages to see the animal world as a comic reflection of the human one, yet his descriptions are never mawkishly sentimental and are always razor-sharp in the way they reveal the essential characteristics of the creatures he portrays.

Like its predecessor, this is one of those books that seems funniest when it's read aloud and shared with someone else. I doubt whether many families read to each other any more, but this book screams for that custom to be revived.

LIBRARY FAVORITES

Each year the Canadian Library Association sponsors Young Canada's Book Week to emphasize the pleasure and value of bringing books and children together. The Victoria Public Library compiled this list for the Times of a few of the most-requested books in the young people's sections.

Children

CURIOUS GEORGE. Ages 3-5 — A mischevious monkey gets into one scrape after another when the Man in the Yellow Hat brings him to the city to live. (By H. A. Rey).

THE MOUSE AND THE MOTORCYCLE. Ages 8-10 — A young mouse named Ralph discovers he can ride Keith's toy motorcycle, and pb-pb-b-b-b, he's off. (By Beverly Cleary).

CHARLOTTE'S WEB. Ages 9-12. A lovable pig named Wilbur is rescued from a cruel fate by a beautiful and intelligent spider. A classic fantasy, ideal for reading aloud. (By E. B. White).

CHARLIE AND THE CHOCOLATE FACTORY. Ages 10-12 — Charlie Bucket, who usually has only cabbage soup to eat, is chosen for a tour through the fantastic Wonka Chocolate Factory, with such things as rivers of chocolate. Sophisticated, hilarious and poetic fantasy. (By Roald Dahl).

FROM THE MIXED-UP FILES OF MRS. BASIL E. FRANKWEILER. Ages 10-12 — High comedy and sustained suspense as run-away 12-year-old Claudia and her kid brother escape detection while living for a week in New York City's Metropolitan Museum of Art. (By E. L. Konigsberg).

Teen-agers

FLOWERS FOR ALGERNON (Harcourt $4.95) — A thought-provoking book giving a first person account of Charlie Gordon (IQ 68) who undergoes a new form of brain operation for the cause of science. Afterwards he becomes increasingly smarter until he is a genius viewing life from the far end of the intellectual spectrum. Unfortunately this state is not permanent and at the end we leave Charlie where we found him — and possibly declining even further. (By Daniel Keyes).

THE OUTSIDERS (Viking $3.95)—A teen-age author probes the problem of class hostilities between groups of "haves" and "have-nots". The fourteen-year-old narrator, youngest of three orphaned boys who are trying to stick together as a family, tells how it looks and feels from the wrong side of the tracks. He tells of guerrilla raids into their territory by the well-heeled enemy from the residential district and the beating that led to a murder charge and two deaths. It's a story that covers many emotions and one which has been much discussed. (By Susan Hinton).

THE PEANUTS TREASURY (Holt $4.95) — A whole, large book full of Schulz's inimitable "Peanuts" cartoons. So popular that it is either passed from hand to hand or spotted amongst the returned books and seized upon before it has a chance to get back on the shelves! (By Charles Schulz).

2001, A SPACE ODYSSEY (New American Library $4.95) — Though lacking the fantastic color effects of the movie on which this book is based, this is still a vivid and tantalizing story of man's reaching into deep space. It leaves scope for individual speculation as to just how the author intended us to interpret the story. (By Arthur Clarke).

THE BUTTERFLY REVOLUTION (Putnam $4.95)—An ironic story told thorough the diary entries of a boy who was sent to summer camp because his parents felt he should become more like other normal boys instead of being so bookish. They could not of course have known that at this particular camp there would be revolt and anarchy, closely followed by dictatorship, violence and terror, into which their son is inevitably drawn. The judge before whom he finally appears asks in exasperation "Why can't you behave like other normal boys?" (By William Butler).

Beatrix Potter And Her Friends

By AUDREY JOHNSON

For any child who has loved the tales of Peter Rabbit, Squirrel Nutkin, Benjamin Bunny, Miss Moppet, Tom Kitten and the rest, and who is now emerging into the age of realism, this book is a must.

It is the delightful and touching story told in a simple youthful style, of Beatrix Potter, the creator of all those charming animal characters, their quaint adventures and their pen-and-ink and water color likenesses.

In her introduction the author states that "the conversations are what I imagined them to be, but I think They were pretty much like you'll read them in this book."

Otherwise she says the story is "as true as I could make it."

That she bent every effort in this direction through research over a long period and that she has succeeded remarkably in capturing the mood and atmosphere of a well-to-do upper middle-class home in turn-of-the-century London, is certain.

NOTHING IS IMPOSSIBLE. (The story of Beatrix Potter). By Dorothy Aldis with drawings by Richard Cuffari. McClelland and Stewart, $5.50.

It is poignant drama far more affecting than any TV script, to read of the early childhood and teen years of Beatrix Potter — a period which occupies two-thirds of the book's 154 pages.

A sad and secluded childhood, devoid of the loving consideration of parents and companionship of other children, turned the little girl to her preoccupation with small animals, to her fantasies concerning them and a lifelong devotion to them.

Autobiographical touches through quotations from her quite recently deciphered journals, help to bring to life the charming personality of the shy, gifted girl.

The delicate pen and pencil drawings are numerous and exactly right for the mood and subject of the book with its genteel humor, strong vein of courage and warmth.

Two Indian Legends

Indian legends are often simple, dramatic and naive enough to appeal to youngsters of tender years.

These two — The Mountain Goats of Temlaham and How Summer Came to Canada— are retold in few and direct words with big splashy, stylized illustrations that occupy most of the page areas in gorgeous, glowing color.

THE MOUNTAIN GOATS OF TEMLAHAM . . .

HOW SUMMER CAME TO CANADA . . . Pictures by Elizabeth Cleaver. Legends retold by William Toye. Oxford University Press. Each $3.95.

Elizabeth Cleaver, a Montreal artist, has based her style for these two books on a child's own factual, uncluttered approach to the business of illustrating.

Mountain Goats is a legend of the Tsimshian Indians of British Columbia, while How Summer Came belongs to the Micmac Indians of eastern Canada.

In each case Miss Cleaver has researched and applied designs and colors relative to the areas and tribes concerned.

How Summer Came to Canada is little more than a pleasing fancy but The Mountain Goats of Temlaham which relates how the goats took revenge on the Indian hunters who had become wanton killers for sport and insensitive to suffering and destruction, implants an idea that is more than a little relevant to present and future time.

Recommended for ages five to eight.

She Takes Brownies, Fairies Seriously

By SUSAN MAYSE

Speck the Brownie is a book of surprises.

The first surprise is the cover announcement, "written and illustrated by Elmay Crow". The next is that the book is produced, in her Victoria home, by direct process lithography.

SPECK THE BROWNIE AND HIS FRIENDS by Elmay Crow. $3.95.

This combination makes it a totally hand-made book, right from the binding of the pages to the printing and to the contents.

Speck the Brownie is made up of five stories told in rhyming verse, illustrated with colored drawings reminiscent of, and derived from pictures using different colors of ball point pens.

Mrs. Crow has fitted her style to the medium, direct engraving on to litho plates, ingeniously.

Working with four basic colors in a crosshatched and shaded style, she has evolved a whole rainbow of shades. The sketches are whimsical, representing fairies and brownies a hand's-breadth high in a magic world of talking animals.

The verse tales too, are surprising—very happily so.

Mrs. Crow has avoided the cloying sweetness of other writers of fairy tales who paint the little people as intolerably prissy goodie-goodies.

ELMAY CROW

Speck and his friends are believeable.

Perhaps because Elmay Crow, although she has four children of her own, never really left all her own childhood behind her.

She takes the brownies and fairies seriously, and is aware how important they are to small children.

It would come as no surprise to learn she leaves a saucer of milk out for them regularly.

The stories told in Speck and his Friends are enjoyable —they're fun to read—the kind of children's tale you find yourself engrossed in when reading aloud to a small child.

I can think of no better gift from a doting granny to a child of three to eight.

Three Seasons on Podium Prove Gati's the Man

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Back in British Columbia's centenary year and in the 26th season of Victoria Symphony Orchestra, the Symphony Society was seeking a conductor. Otto-Werner Mueller had resigned after the start of the season.

Notice in appropriate publications had brought a flood of about 40 applicants. Of these four were invited to appear as guest conductors at regular concerts and a fifth conducted a special concert on the university campus.

Laszlo Gati was the first of the five guests to appear.

Now he is in his third season with the orchestra and it has become abundantly clear that his selection by the symphony committee was a question of finding exactly the right conductor for this orchestra in this community at the particular stage of its development.

★ ★ ★

On Sunday and Monday, Nov. 23 and 24, on one of its rare occasions without guest soloist, in a program of familiar music, audiences will have an opportunity to savor fully the great progress the orchestra has made under Gati.

At its greatest strength numerically, the Victoria Symphony now has many more permanent professional players and has virtually escaped its dependence on importing key players from the Mainland.

Intensely dedicated to the well-being of the orchestra and its enrichment, with his keen ear for string quality — he himself is a fine violist—one of the formerly weaker sections of the orchestra has improved out of all recognition.

★ ★ ★

As a result, public interest which has grown steadily since the Hungarian-born Montreal conductor established himself here, is now at an all-time high.

As a tribute to his work and to the orchestra itself, which has responded admirably to his presence, it would be fair and right if there were not one empty seat at the Royal Theatre when the spotlight swings fully onto the orchestra next weekend.

The program:

Rossini—The Thieving Magpie.
Khachaturian—Gayane Ballet Suite.
Borodin—In the Steppes of Central Asia.
Dvorak — Slavonic Dances Op. 46, Nos. 1, 3 and 8.
Moussorgsky — Night on the Bare Mountain.
Liszt—Les Preludes.

Jules Feiffer Film Next for Nichols

NEW YORK (NYT) — Mike Nichols, who has been caught up with "Catch-22" for over two years, is about ready to graduate to another film project.

He will direct "Carnal Knowledge" for Joseph E. Levine's AVCO-Embassy pictures, beginning here in April.

"What's 'Carnal Knowledge?'" It's an unproduced play by Jules Feiffer about the relationship between two men over a period of several years.

"Nichols will be the boss — the director and the producer — for the first time," said Levine. And he richly deserves it," he added, perhaps thinking of those $40 million receipts from AVCO-Embassy's "The Graduate." "We don't even care who's in the film. We don't need stars in a Nichols' film."

Nichols agrees. "Joe Levine's right," he said. 'No big name stars, but we have been talking with Jack Nicholson, who did such a fine job in 'Easy Rider.'"

PROMOTION for Victoria actor, Anthony Jenkins, from professor to king has been achieved by Victoria Operatic Society. A University of Victoria professor in real life, he played Professor Higgins in VOS production of My Fair Lady last spring, will go on stage at McPherson Playhouse Nov 25-29 as the king in The King and I, being directed for VOS by Allan Purdy and Tudor Jones.

New Musical Fad Looms From Depths of Africa

By HOLLIE WEST
The Washington Post

America may be on the brink of a new musical fad. It's all contained in a small wooden instrument, no larger than a cigar box, with attached metal keys called reeds.

The device, a kalimba, produces a chime-like sound similar to that of a music box.

"But it's not a music box—it's voluntary and the music box is mechanical," said Dr. Hugh Tracey, who designed the instrument.

Already more than 20,000 kalimbas have been sold in the U.S. and sales continue to soar, said Tracey. He adapted the native African instrument to Western musical concepts about 15 years ago.

WESTERN, TOO

Tracey said his small workshop in Johannesburg, South Africa, cannot keep up with orders for the instrument. He has four Africans constantly working there.

"Look, I can play Bach on it," said Tracey as he plucked a distinct baroque melody. "Any western music can be played on it because I have given it the Western diatonic scale."

The kalimba got a big boost in this country three years ago when Tracey's sons, Andrew and Paul, played instruments of the kalimba family in the musical revue, "Wait A Minim!" which the two wrote.

Most persons find it easy to play. "Anyone who is all thumbs can manage it," said Tracey.

500 YEARS AGO

The kalimba is a native African instrument that can be traced back at least 500 years and it may go back 1200 years. "We know of it being used in musical ensembles 400 years ago, or during the time of Henry VIII," said Tracey, who has studied African music since 1931 when he left his native England.

Tracey never has studied music formally in the Western sense. "I studied in the bush," he explained. "I got my doctorate the hard way."

The original instrument is designed to fit the African musical concept: It does not change keys or modes and produces a fuzzy sound. Many of them currently are being used by American jazz musicians in western contexts and are called African thumb pianos.

SOFT SOUND

Tracey worked 10 years perfecting his adaptation. The western-styled kalimba can change keys by having its reeds adjusted and it has a clear, soft sound. He uses a special African wood with a high resonating capacity.

The wood comes from the pterocarpus tree, which is found in semi-tropical regions. To make the reeds, Tracey uses a special high grade steel.

"I used a scientific approach in making the instrument," he said. "The Africans use a scientific approach in making many of their instruments, but their way is more empirical."

Tracey said his main purpose in introducing the instrument to the west is to acquaint people in Europe and the United States with African music.

He is in the U.S. primarily to promote interest in this music. He lectured at the University of Maryland and spoke to a class at Howard University. Tracey was in Montreal recently at a joint meeting of the African Studies Associations of the U.S. and Canada.

GRANT HELPS

He founded the African Music Society in 1947. Its purpose is to encourage the study and composition of African music. His current work includes supervision of a codification and textbook project for gathering African musical materials. The project is financed by a $145,000 Ford Foundation grant.

"The recognition by whites of African material is a calm little point in our work," said Tracey. "Everyone knows about the sculpture, which has been overemphasized. There are so many grotesque things being shown. People need to know more about the music. This is important for the intrinsic and essential recognition of the African people."

Pied Piper Coming

Two forthcoming Bastion Theatre productions have been cast and one—a full-length holiday musical for family entertainment—will soon be in rehearsal.

The Pied Piper is Marge Adelberg's version of the popular fantasy and will have Bill Hosie in the title role which he has already played in a special short adaptation during a 1966 school tour.

Others in the cast are Sylvia Hosie, Marge Bridgeman, Margaret Martin, Stuart Kent, Murray Price, Valerie Smith, Tom Cox, Barry Flatmand and Mark Smith.

Citizens and children of Hamelin will include Doreen Crook, Matt Webster, Tim Webster, Tony Carter, Blake Carter, Diane Massam, Suzanne Salmond, Erica Peavy, Carole de Girolamo and Terri Love.

MATINEES

Howard Denike will conduct the orchestra and Wynne Shaw's dance studio will provide ballet numbers. Director is Peter Mannering.

The Pied Piper will play matinees Dec. 26, 27, 29, 30 and 31 and Jan. 1, 2 and 3, with evening performances on Dec. 26 and 27 and Jan. 2 and 3.

First of three spring productions will be Shakespeare's comedy, As You Like It, which will be seen in February with Karen Austin playing Rosalind and Barry Flatman as Orlando.

Others cast in lead roles will be Stuart Kent, Colin Bowen, Don Jacobs, Hugh Henderson, Bill Hosie, Kyra Smitz, Anne Crawford and Susan Belford.

There will be special performances for junior and senior secondary school students under the Youth Series plan which has been made possible by financial assistance from the Greater Victoria School Board.

'Sleeper' Sparks Market Activity

By NICK FERRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Much to the surprise of about everyone, Canadian stock markets this week received the federal government's white paper on tax reforms with a stunning welcome.

For the previous two weeks, markets drifted lower in anticipation of what reforms the white paper might propose.

But the capital gains tax proposal and suggested reductions in tax concessions in the oil and mining industries apparently were discounted in advance as markets rocketed to their best advance on record Monday, following up on Tuesday with their second-best advance.

Profit-taking Wednesday began to nibble away gains although markets came through with solid advances.

However, the profit-taking moved into full gear Thursday and markets recorded large losses. The reversal seemed to die away Friday as small gains were posted.

But it was a sleeper in the white paper—a proposal to credit shareholders of widely-held Canadian companies with one-half of the corporate tax paid by the companies on profits from which dividends are paid—that touched off the barrage of buying of Canadian dividend-paying stocks.

The result of the proposed plan could be a tax rebate from the government for taxpayers in a less-than-50-per-cent bracket.

Ginter Wins Legal Fight Over Label

OTTAWA (CP) — Brewer Ben Ginter of Prince George, won from the Supreme Court Friday the right to continue using the term "Pil" for his product, over allegations by Carling Breweries B.C. of copyright infringement.

The court decided in favor of Ginter's Tartan Brewing Co. immediately after hearing the case. The reasons for judgment will be written and made public later.

The Carling Breweries B.C. case included the fact that it uses the word "Pilsner" on its labels.

---

In Vancouver, Ginter said he will institute legal action a gainst Carling Breweries B.C. Ltd. for damages as a result of its action.

Bond Market Depressed

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian bond market's future was not improved during a week of moderate trading, as some issues declined almost two points.

The government's white paper on taxation released last week proposed taxing capital gains, thereby removing the tax advantage of discount bonds and adding further to the already depressed state of the market.

Prices were generally down ¼ to ¾ of a point.

Most Toronto dealers feel that the market will see a further decline before a rally comes.

Bill Mavor Joins Truck Loggers

The Truck Loggers Association has appointed former Victoria reporter W. J. Mavor as public relations officer.

Mavor was with the Council of Forest Industries, and before that worked in public relations for B.C. Telephone and Alcan Ltd.

The Truck Loggers Association, based in Vancouver, represents more than 300 members engaged in the logging industry.

Panarctic Finds Oil

CALGARY (CP) — Panarctic Oils Ltd. has announced that it has encountered oil in a 21-foot sand horizon on Melville Island, 1,500 miles north of Edmonton.

The company said further drilling is needed to determine if the find is of commercial value.

The oil was encountered at 4,650 feet by a rig at Drake Point.

The rig was testing zones that were potential sources of a blowout to identify the one that had caused the company's first Drake Point well to go out of control for 17 days in July.

The original Drake Point well had to be abandoned after it ran into blasting action from large quantities of sand and gas when drilling was resumed and the rig was pulled off the hole because of the danger of fire and the possibility of cratering. Panarctic moved the rig 1,200 feet to the southwest.

THE CORPORATION OF THE DISTRICT OF OAK BAY
NOTICE OF ELECTION

Public Notice is hereby given to the electors of the Municipality of Oak Bay that I require the presence of the said electors at the Municipal Hall on Monday, the TWENTY-FOURTH day of NOVEMBER, 1969, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon, for the purpose of electing persons to represent them as:

| | |
|---|---|
| Mayor (1) | — for two-year term |
| Aldermen (3) | — for two-year term |
| School Trustee (1) | — for two-year term |

The mode of nomination of candidates shall be as follows: Candidates shall be nominated in writing by two duly qualified electors of the municipality. The nomination-paper shall be delivered to the Returning Officer at any time between the date of this notice and noon of the day of nomination. The nomination-paper may be in the form prescribed in the "Municipal Act", and shall state the name, residence, and occupation of the person nominated in such manner as to sufficiently identify such candidate. The nomination-paper shall be subscribed to by the candidate.

In the event of a Poll being necessary, such Poll will be opened at the MUNICIPAL HALL, and at ST. PHILIP'S CHURCH (in the Church Hall on the lower floor, being at 2928 Eastdowne Road), on the SIXTH (6th) day of DECEMBER, 1969, between the hours of EIGHT A.M. and EIGHT P.M. An ADVANCED POLL will be open at the MUNICIPAL HALL, ONLY, between the hours of NINE A.M. and FIVE P.M. on each of the two days immediately preceding the day of election (December 4th and 5th), of which every person is hereby required to take notice and govern himself accordingly.

The only persons permitted to vote at the Advanced Poll are those who, being duly qualified electors, sign a statement that they expect to be absent from the Municipality on Polling Day.

Given under my hand at Oak Bay, B.C., this 12th day of November, 1969.

E. H. HART,
Returning Officer.

Worldwide

Worldwide Energy Co. Ltd. had net earnings of $217,644 or seven cents a share in the first nine months of 1969, up from $146,025 or five cents a share in the same period last year.

President Robert B. Tenison said Friday that gross revenues were up 18 per cent to $1.5 million compared with $1.3 million a year ago.

Earnings before taxes were $369,107 or 12 cents a share compared with $259,245 or nine cents a share.

Kamad

Kamad Silver has been approved for trading on the interim list in the mining section of the Vancouver Stock Exchange, commencing on Monday.

Last week, Kamad announced an increase of indicated ore reserves, now totalling 217,204 tons — and development work is continuing. Values in silver, lead, zinc, copper and barite are estimated at $40 per ton.

The property is located in the Barrier area, 40 miles northeast of Kamloops.

Falconbridge

Falconbridge Nickel Mines plans a $7.6 million development for southwest African copper deposits discovered by its South African subsidiary Falconbridge South African Exploration.

Several million tons of ore are estimated to be contained in the deposit near Windhoek, where a prospecting shaft will be sunk.

Nearly $1.5 million will be spent by March by the subsidiary, with the larger sum following if mining proves feasible.

Rio Algom

Rio Algom Mines Ltd. net earnings from operations rose substantially during the nine months ended Sept. 30, going from $5 million in 1968 to $9.7 million, or from 37 cents to 74 cents a share.

But with an extraordinary item last year the net went up to $9.1 million or 69 cents a share.

Revenue from operations in the three quarters of this year amounted to $122.9 million, against $109.8 million in 1968.

Rio Algom has agreed to finance up to $5.4 million for pre-production development of Lornex Mining Corp. Ltd. copper-molybdenum property in the Highland Valley.

Wescorp

A rights offering and proposed investment in a new company are outlined by Wescorp Industries Ltd. in its report for the year ended June 30.

Subject to approval of authorities, the company will offer the right to buy one new share for $9 for each four common shares held on the record date to be determined. The offering will be underwritten to yield $200,000 for increasing equity in Pacific Automobile and Fire Insurance Co. and to acquire new undertakings.

A $100,000 investment for 31 per cent interest in North American Electronics Ltd., of Rockford, Ill., is being considered.

Earnings per share are up from $1.29 to $1.33.

I.P. Measurement

I. P. Measurement Ltd., a new Canadian company to provide owners and managers with complete information on pension fund investments, has been set up in Toronto using computer facilities of the Financial Post.

Several elements such as risk, rates of return and other objective performance indicators will be added together and illustrated to assist the decision-making process.

Confidential client relationships will be maintained by means of "no-name" comparisons, the company said.

New Imperial

Officials of New Imperial Mines Ltd. report that favorable prices and increased copper production contributed to the company's highest quarterly earnings ever.

In a report to shareholders the company lists net earnings for the quarter ended Sept. 30 at $1.5 million or 24.4 cents a share, compared with $412,000 or 6.7 cents a share for the same quarter last year.

Total earnings for the first nine months of 1969 were $3.7 million.

Thomson

Thomson Newspapers Ltd. announced Friday that its consolidated net profits for the nine months ending Sept. 30 were $7.35 million compared with $5 million in the same period last year.

For the nine months, profits from a common share are 49.1 cents, after dividends on the 6¾-per-cent preference shares. The figures compared with 33.7 cents for the nine months ending Sept. 30, 1968 after a three-for-one stock split in 1968.

Net sales for the nine months were $75 million compared with $67 million for the same period in 1968.

Mining Interests See Tax Conflict

By AB KENT

A head-on clash between mining interests and both the federal and provincial governments looms as a result of proposals put forward in the white paper on taxation.

The Mining Association of B.C., representing 75 of the biggest companies with operations in the province, has already requested a meeting with provincial taxation authorities to determine effects of the white paper proposals intended for 1971 and later.

"We can see conflicts between the white paper proposals and present provincial tax legislation," said K. E. Steeves, chairman of the association's taxation committee..

Premier Bennett, reacting to the white paper, has failed so far to come to the defence of mining, which industry spokesmen say would be hard hit, especially in a developing environment like B.C.

The premier has made only generalized comments on the tax proposals, but has indicated that he likes the intent. On mining he has siad he would not disagree with the principles involved in changes, but perhaps on the extent of them he can see room for modification.

"In British Columbia great new areas are soon to be opened up in the northwest part and there will be a great need of capital to develop the mining and other industry," Bennett said.

"But while I'm not discouraged by the white paper, I don't see it as established policy—it isn't going into effect tomorrow. There's time for discussion and change," he said.

The mining association fears that proposed elimination of incentives to mining development will hurt because risk capital can be invested elsewhere in the world.

Steeves said the finance minister has "assumed that provincial governments will support his proposals," and points out that the white paper leaves many unanswered questions.

It is the association's intention, he said, to make further investigation as recommended by the government, and to make representations to Ottawa. Ottawa.

SUFFER MORE

B.C., said Steeves, "stands to suffer more than other regions of Canada if Finance Minister Benson's white paper on tax reform is implemented."

Mining has depended on the tax-holiday period during initial production, on a generous depletion allowance and on foreign investment capital, all of which would be cut under Benson's proposals.

Also, said Steeves, mining companies have relied on marketable securities for financing. With a proposed capital gains tax, securing funds will be made more difficult.

Capital gains tax on income from the sale of mining properties, also in the white paper, is opposed by the mining industry and the B.C. and Yukon Chamber of Mines, which acts as spokesman for prospectors.

This tax would fail to recognize a prospector's personal contribution toward realizing a once-in-a-lifetime gain, so the discovery of new mining prospects would be discouraged.

GREATEST GAMBLER

"It is ironic," commented chamber manager Thomas Elliott, "that the man who wins the Irish sweepstake or the city of Montreal's lottery can still walk off with his winnings untouched by the tax collector, whereas the prospector, the greatest gambler of them all, is to have his winnings taxed."

A special committee of the chamber is doing a detailed study of the white paper to outline its views on mining tax changes proposed.

Another important representative body, the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants, also is giving the white paper proposals careful study, but not without difficulty.

"The proposals outlined appear to be remarkably simple, but such is not the case," said institute president J. E. Maheu, in Toronto. "They are deceptively simple. The statement leaves a great number of questions unanswered and not until we have thoroughly considered the implications of these—and hopefully, receive some government clarification—will we be able to give our opinion."

TAX 'JUNGLE'

He said the only people who thoroughly understand the white paper are those who wrote it.

But he noted the white paper appears to be hard on small business and that capital gains tax could be fairly high during the initial years of gradually reducing rates of personal income tax.

Maheu said he hoped in the interests of efficiency and elimination of the federal-provincial tax "jungle" that the provinces will make every effort to integrate their tax systems with the federal government.

There was still a risk, however, that Canada could become a "nation of bookkeepers" with tax reform. "I do see a lot of record keeping resulting from the white paper—perhaps more than the government is willing to acknowledge," Maheu said.

Committee Will Study Auto Pact

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada and the U.S. ended two days of closed talks on the controversial auto agreement with announcement of a subcommittee to study what the leader of the U.S. delegation termed "sticky and difficult statistical problems."

Philip H. Trezise, assistant state secretary for economic affairs, said in a brief statement delivered at a news conference Thursday night that the talks were "full and frank and constituted a very useful exchange."

The Canadian delegation, headed by Maurice Schwarzmann, assistant deputy minister of industry, trade and commerce, issued no statement.

Trezise said the group would meet again "at an early date, probably soon after the new year."

Meanwhile, the subcommittee would meet in Ottawa Dec. 15.

Presumably the statistical problems it will come to grips with are the different interpretations both countries put on the comparative progress Canada has made since the limited free-trade pact was signed in 1966.

The U.S. takes the attitude that Canadian progress has been sufficient to permit the dropping of certain "transitional" restrictions built into the pact to weight the balance temporarily in Canada's favor.

Canada Bread Loses Big Deal With Loblaws

TORONTO (CP)—Canada Bread Co. Ltd. of Toronto says it will lose $6,000,000 a year in sales because it no longer will be the primary supplier of bakery products for Loblaw Groceterias Co. Ltd.

In a letter to shareholders, Canada Bread said it will remain a secondary supplier and understands that Weston Bakeries Ltd. of Toronto is to become the primary supplier.

The letter says the company —which has supplied Loblaws with bakery products for 40 years—was assured by Loblaws that quality and service were not a factor in the change. It does not speculate on the reason for the change.

Weston is connected with Loblaws through its parent, George Weston Ltd. The parent company's wholly-owned subsidiary, Perrin Investments Ltd., owns 50 per cent of Loblaw Companies Ltd., which in turn owns 99 per cent of Loblaw Groceterias.

MORRISON SELLS CAR DEALERSHIP

A 13-year-old Victoria auto dealership was sold Friday to a former Alberta businessman after a year of negotiation.

Morrison Chevrolet Oldsmobile Ltd. opened today under the name Cornell Chevrolet Oldsmobile Ltd., after its new owner Cornell M. Babie, who has sold his previous interests in General Motors dealerships in Edmonton and Peace River.

Newell Morrison and Babie in a joint statement said the deal was concluded for cash, the amount of which was not specified.

Both companies are registered under federal charter.

Morrison said he was continuing an auto lease business under his own name from a building on Frances Avenue, adjoining his former used car lot between Douglas and Burnside on Finlayson.

Cornell Chevrolet Oldsmobile will operate on the opposite side of Finlayson where Morrison built a new showroom, offices, parts and service departments 4½ years ago.

Since the sale of the used car property to the Denny restaurant chain, used car sales have been integrated with the main property at the Burnside end of the block.

Morrison remains owner of the land, and no plant or staff changes are planned.

Babie, who is 36, took up residence here a week ago.

Morrison began his car career with the former Wilson Motors, of which he was comptroller in Victoria before buying the firm's Duncan branch in 1951.

In 1956 he took over the Victoria business of Wilson Motors which he operated downtown on Yates at Quadra for nine years.

They Were Stepping High —For the First Few Miles

A ribbon of noisy humanity wound its way around Ross Bay in brilliant sunshine this morning.

The beginning of the Miles for Millions walkathon could only be described as exuberant.

There is a warm intensity about thousands of people jammed shoulder to shoulder with a common task.

Whatever their personal reasons the marchers were united in purpose, to walk 25 miles for charity.

•

Perhaps the weather had something to do with it.

The day began with a slight shower, but by the end of the first mile, the sun had broken through.

Cries came up from hoarse young students, proclaiming the presence of their high schools on the march.

Some carried banners and others had knapsacks crammed with enough food and supplies for a week's march.

Most were teen-agers, but among the thousands were retired couples and entire families.

Photos By Bill Halkett, William John

Many wore black arm bands.

"It's to stop the war in Vietnam," 14-year-old Gloria Tweed, an Esquimalt Junior High student, explained.

Several of the marchers brought their pets with them, among them a goat.

By all a.m., most had passed the seven-mile mark at Cattle Point.

There was less jubilance then, and the high intensity had faded.

The marchers were concentrating on ignoring blisters.

"Wore the wrong kind of socks," said Earl Levy, freshly down from his United Appeal perch in the Mayfair Centre clock tower.

"But I'll be there at the finish if I have to come in bare-footed."

•

Susan Pauwels, a 10-year-old Metchosin elementary school student, admitted that her feet were a little sore too. "But I'm going to keep going," she said. "I'm getting 69 cents a mile."

Footwear varied from heavy boots, to running shoes, and all the marchers were prepared for rain. Several carried an extra pair of shoes.

Along Gonzales Bay, several teen-agers decided to walk along the edge of the water and found themselves with wet feet.

Empty march patrol cars and army vehicles indicated there were few dropouts during the first miles.

•

Many stopped at Uplands Park for lunch and a change of socks.

The spirit could be summed up by 14-year-old Guy Finnegan, a disabled child at George Pearkes School.

"Twenty-five miles is a long way. But it's a beautiful day for a walk."

One retired couple said they went for walks each day and decided to see how far they would be able to go today.

"We're not planning to complete the whole route," they explained. "We'll just see how we feel."

After eight miles, they were still walking and at a brisk pace.

Crime Rate Rockets in City

Stolen property in Victoria hit a whopping $157,766.50 at the end of September, more than double last year's total.

This is just part of the rocketing crime picture shown in statistics released by city police Friday.

Other older figures compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show Victoria ranked eighth among 30 cities in the 50,000 to 100,000 population in number of Criminal Code offences.

TROUBLE SPOT

The only bright note from the DBS figures is that the city police are showing the way in solving crime. Victoria ranks first among the 30 cities in number of offences cleared by charge.

Biggest trouble spot is break-ins — 542 of them in the city to the end of September this year contrasted to a total of 281 in 1968.

Both the city and Saanich are currently suffering a rash of break-ins.

Last year city police cleared up 22 per cent of them, recovering almost $24,000 in stolen property. To the end of September the files had been closed on 24 per cent and recovery has been over $27,000.

In addition to the 92 per cent leap in break-ins in the first three-quarters of the year, crimes of violence are up 46 per cent and false pretences offences have climbed 28 per cent.

Detective-Inspector William Andrews said Friday he is unable to point to specific reasons for the surge in crime.

"We'd like to alert people to keep closer watch, on homes, apartment buildings, and to report to police immediately if they see anything suspicious."

Deputy Chief Ray Maitland added that merchants can do their part by insuring their premises have secure locks and dark alleys are better lighted.

Other statistics contrasting crime in the city this year and last:

- Two murder cases this year, one of them solved, in contrast to no murders last year.
- Six rape cases to the end of September, three of them resolved, where there was only one (unsolved) in 1968.
- Fourteen robberies, four of them cleared, compared to 11 all last year, one of which was cleared.
- Two hundred sixty two assault cases, with files closed on 208, while last year there was a total of 182 with 124 cleared up.

Gun-Wielding Bandits Rob Hotel Night Clerk

Two men held up a night clerk at the Queen Victoria Inn, 655 Douglas, early this morning and escaped with $270.

They wore silk stockings over their faces and entered the lobby through a north side door, city police said.

One man pointed a .22 rifle at the clerk, Leslie J. Thompson, and said "give me the money."

Thompson, who lives at Suite 203, 934 Collinson, told police they forced him into the office behind the desk.

They then attempted to open the locked cash register.

They failed and told Thompson to open the till.

Police described the men as being in their early 20s. One was about five feet 10 inches, the other five feet, seven. They wore brown clothes.

Driving Laws 'Confusing'

The tough new laws aimed at drinking drivers which the federal government puts into force Dec. 1 are confusing and will take court decisions to clarify.

That's the opinion of J. W. Anderson, senior prosecutor for Greater Victoria.

"The more you look at it the less clear it becomes," he said Friday of the Criminal Code amendments.

One of the problems is that two new sections don't provide for more severe penalties if the accused has a history of drinking and driving offences.

MAJOR CHANGE

They deal with the major change — authority for police to demand a breath test of a suspect.

The question then is: can an impaired driving charge be laid under the old section which does provide more severe penalties for repeaters if a breath test has been conducted under the new law?

Anderson does not see a clash between the amendments and the section of the provincial Motor Vehicle Act which provides for roadside suspensions where there is evidence a driver's blood-alcohol reading is .08 per cent or higher.

Such a reading is now a federal offence under the new law.

The Criminal Code changes are being put into effect while other related provisions approved by Parliament are being delayed.

This has the effect of introducing law altered from that approved by government, Anderson points out.

The provisions yet to be introduced require the accused be given a breath sample so that he can have it analysed himself.

But as Justice Minister John Turner explained Friday, no suitable container is yet in existence although it is hoped one will be available in the not too distant future.

Bigger Bonus Ruled Out

Esquimalt Mayor Ray Bryant has been told the provincial welfare department won't increase its Christmas bonus.

The mayor was trying to arrange an appointment with the new welfare minister, Phil Gaglardi, when "responsbile provincial authorities" told him not to bother. They said the department had already decided the $10 for heads of families and $4 for single people they gave last year is enough.

NOT ENOUGH

But the Greater Victoria municipalities decided last year the grant was too small and increased the $10 to $14. They wanted the province to do that this year, and sent Bryant to ask for it.

"I'm disappointed in the decision of the government not to increase the grant because at its present size it is obviously inadequate," Bryant said.

He said the fact that municipalities had to give a supplement is proof of its insufficiency.

Ask The Times

Q. Who holds the Canadian and world calf roping championship and what was the time? J.G.Y.

A. The Canadian champion is Jim Gladstone of Cardston, Alta., while Dean Oliver of Boise, Idaho, is the National (U.S.A.) Finals Rodeo champion. Championships are not determined on a time basis—since conditions vary from one rodeo event to another — but according to total winnings. This year Gladstone won $4,603 and Oliver won $37,634.

Arthur Mayse . . .

WE HAVE WITH US TODAY a large, personable Texan, Kelly Covin by name, who in January of 1968 launched himself on a race against time. He had a book to write, and enough money socked away to finance 18 months of family living.

It was a close race, but I'm glad to report that Kelly Covin has won it.

His documentary novel, The Thirteenth Juror, has been accepted by Dell Publishing Company of New York, with a hard-cover edition scheduled for next September.

Advance on royalties is $6,500, and the prospects are bright for sales that may give the book a place on best-seller and book club lists.

★

But that isn't all. Motion picture rights to The Thirteenth Juror, an exploration in depth of Alabama's notorious Scotsboro Case, have been bought by Aurora Productions of Hollywood for $50,000.

And that isn't quite all, either. The chances are better than so-so that author Covin may also be signed to produce the film script — a chore that would bring down another golden shower.

★

Meanwhile, in his home by a lake deep in the Saanich Peninsula Highlands, Covin is jockeying into position for a run at his next book. This will be a non-documentary novel.

Lest anyone be tempted to think that such breaks as I've outlined just sort of happen, here's how Covin goes about writing a book or a television play.

First, he kicks his ideas around for a while.

Then he writes a plot outline.

Next, he works out capsule treatments of his characters. He adds assorted bits of business, snatches of dialogue, and any diagrams or maps necessary to the project.

He emerges from these preliminaries with a file that may run to 100 pages.

Only then does he begin the actual first-drafting of his piece. While he's on a project, he works at least four hours a day, including Sundays. If this daily stint seems short, you may take it from me that a writer can function effectively only for a limited stretch.

When his time is up, Covin goes for a brisk two-mile walk.

★

The next stage of the job is revision. When all's as it should be, Carroll Covin — who by this time has read her husband's latest endeavor and offered useful criticism — types a send-away draft.

Finally, the manuscript is mailed off to test its chances on a U.S. market that rejects far, far more than it accepts.

I have omitted the worries, doubts, occasional mental anguish and spoiled paper that are also the lot of a writer at work.

Covin, now 47, was a teenager in Los Angeles when he first pondered the case of nine Negroes variously sentenced for rapes which he believes they did not commit.

★

He got his introduction to writing on a high school newspaper. When he was nineteen, he managed to persuade a Hollywood agent into reading his first script.

"The worst play I ever read in my life," was the agent's verdict, "but keep writing."

This Covin did, as and when his earlier years as a salesman allowed. Twelve years ago, persuaded by a Vancouver Island-born neighbor who kept talking about this earthly paradise, the Covins moved north to Nanaimo. Kelly opened an office equipment store there. Three years later, he shifted his business to Victoria.

The writing break-through came in 1966, when he sold his first three series-scripts to American television. But he had not forgotten the Scotsboro injustices, and in 1967, he turned out a TV documentary on the subject. CBC rejected it with pious zeal.

"They told me they didn't want to appear to be attacking a friendly country," Covin explains.

In 1968, he sold his share of the office equipment business to his partner, and as a free-lance writer, buckled down to his book.

When we talked shop over coffee on Friday, Kelly Covin was on top of the world, but still firmly in possession of his cool.

★

If the screenplay contract comes through, he expects to go down to Hollywood on a short-term contract. But to him, as to Carroll and their 15-year-old daughter Carin, Vancouver Island is home, and so it will remain.

FABULOUS FRENCH FACE of Claudine Longet appears Sunday in The Bold Ones, 10 on Channel 5. She plays the wife of a man who confesses to a crime of which she has been accused.

CORNY GAGS, GENTLE RIBS AT BUREAUCRACY

Laugh-Insky Big Thing With Muscovite Public

MOSCOW (UPI) The jokes are never racy and to a Westerner they are barely funny, but Russia's equivalent of the U.S. television show "Laugh-In" is the biggest thing on the screen.

The semi-weekly show — called "13 Chairs" and set in a fictitious Polish restaurant—occupies a prime Sunday night time slot and regales Soviet viewers with dated rock and roll music and wisecracks about bureaucrats.

The Soviet Union has nothing like America's rating system, but Russians agree that "13 Chairs" is everybody's favorite variety show and probably draws a huge audience.

The apparent reason for its popularity is a slick sheen of miniskirted modernity, even including some American music, and patter of jokes that poke gentle fun at some of the Soviet government foibles.

●

In a typical show last weekend, a Russian-comedienne with long hair and short skirt twirled around the tables miming an American rendition of "Gypsy in My Soul."

Earlier, a pair of actors put on a skit in which a writer went to a small town with a mandate from his writers' union to work there. A bureaucrat demanded his certificate from the Writers' Union, obviously hoping the writer would not have it and would leave him in peace.

When the certificate was produced, the bureaucrat demanded more certificates, each one more impossible to obtain. They included a document proving he was married and proving he had not been married to anybody else, papers testifying to his good health, and even one detailing the diseases he had in childhood.

Finally the writer went away, defeated.

Besides theses short skits, the favorite part of the show for Russian televiewers comes at the end when, similar to America's "Laugh-In" show, all the members of the cast deliver quick jokes while dancing.

Sample:

"I woke up last night and saw somebody taking money out of my purse, and I nearly clubbed him with a hammer."

"But why didn't you go ahead and do it?"

"I didn't want to become a widow."

It breaks them up in Moscow.

Firm's Chief Says Not So

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Pare, president of Imperial Tobacco Co. of Canada Ltd., denined Thursday that the industry has any interest in the production or sale of marijuana cigarettes.

He was commenting on a statement Wednesday in the Ontario legislature by George Ben, Liberal member for Toronto Humber, who said there is a "deliberate corporate attempt to cut down losses of failing tobacco sales by diversifying into marijuana production as soon as this can be made legal."

WEEKEND'S TOP TV SHOWS

Tonight

MOVIE TO WATCH tonight is at 11:15 on Channel 8. It's Cat Ballou, the hilarious western comedy in which Lee Marvin made his mark as an actor, winning an Oscar for his role as the whisky-soaked gunfighter. Even if you've seen Cat Ballou, it's worth watching again. If you miss it tonight, however, it's on Channel 6 Sunday at 11:20 p.m.

★ ★ ★

APOLLO MISSION. If the moon shot is continuing on schedule regular programs on all networks may be interrupted for special reports.

★ ★ ★

DON MESSER'S JUBILEE. 8:30, Channel 12.

JACKIE GLEASON SHOW. 7:30, Channels 7, 12. Most of this "Honeymooners" entry is quite funny but some of the spark seems to have gone out of the series along with 80 pounds of pure Gleason. Oddly enough, those missing pounds form tonight's plot. In Hawaii, Ed. Norton and Ralph Kramden run into a gambler named Charlie Pineapple (Donald O'Connor) who needs some quick money to pay off a debt. Pineapple sells the duo a formula which is guaranteed to make it possible for fat people to eat and lose weight. It's typical "Honeymooners" fun and the show is at its best when the lines are a direct lift from goodies of the past.

★ ★ ★

ANDY WILLIAMS SHOW. 7:30, Channel 5, Jimmy Durante, popping up in blackouts singing "When I'm 64," and surrounded by pretty girls, is the main inducement tonight. Following Jimmy are Prof. Irwin Corey, a cookie-begging bear, and Australia's import, Rolf Harris, singing about a kangaroo (what else!). For the young crowd, Andy booked the Grass Roots rock group and Jackie De Shannon. Williams' vocals range from "Maria" to "Baby, It'sYou."

★ ★ ★

SATURDAY NIGHT AT THE MOVIES. 8:30, Channel 5.- "Fortune Cookie." (1965). Walter Matthau's Academy Award winning performance as best supporting actor is a joy and carries this uneven Billy Wilder comedy. Jack Lemmon takes a back seat, or more literally a wheelchair, to Matthau's portrayal as his money-hungry brother-in-law, who sees a chance to score big when Jack is knocked down by a football player while performing his job as a TV cameraman.

Sunday

MOVIE TO WATCH Sunday evening is at 12:20 a.m. on Channel 4. It's Pete Kelly's Blues, a saga of the jazz age directed by Jack Webb. Band racketeers attempt to extract extortion money from Pete Kelly's Big Seven in a dingy 1927 Kansas City speakeasy.

★ ★ ★

CBC WEEKEND. 10, Channels 2 and 6. Finance Minister E. J. Benson is scheduled, to discuss public reaction to his White Paper on taxation. A report on Apollo 12 will be included if the mission continues on schedule.

★ ★ ★

WALT DISNEY. Channels 2, 6; 7:30, Channel 5. "Varda, The Peregrine Falcon." Good bird hour traces birth and migration of the almost extinct peregrine falcon. Wrapped in a simple story about a Florida Indian capturing Varda to hunt game for the table, the show contains grand flying footage of the fierce predator along with Alaskan sequences of the falcon nesting grounds. The program also makes a pitch, a first, on the hazards of DDT which causes sterility, thin eggshells and death to the winged predator.

ED SULLIVAN SHOW. 8, Channels 2, 6, 7, 12. Douglas Fairbanks makes a rare appearance on a variety show and sings two songs from "My Fair Lady." The other "singers" on the show include young Karen Wyman, Carol Lawrence, Jerry Lee Lewis, and the Creedence Clearwater Revival group. Comedy is in the capable hands of Moms Mabley and Jack Carter and dance buffs get a treat when Edward Villella and Patricia McBride of the New York City Ballet perform a pas de deux.

BILL COSBY SHOW. 8:30, Channel 5. "The Substitute." The highlight of this simple half hour is the scene in which Bill Cosby has to take over a sex eductaion class for girls as a substitute. His monologue during this scene makes up for the thin romantic yarn which comes before and after.

LESLIE UGGAMS SHOW. 9, Channel 7. Leslie has Dick Van Dyke once again as her guest. Dick and Leslie try "Singing in the Rain," Van Dyke plays a tune on musical drinking glasses and reappears with magic tricks in the weekly "Performer's Choice" spot. "Mayberry's" Ken Berry hoofs to "What's New, Pussycat"; David Frye is back with his impeccable impersonations; and the Sugar Hill family wonder about Mama's new suitor.

MISSION IMPOSSIBLE. 10, Channel 7, 12. First rate episode and a special effects triumph. Mission agents go to great pains recreating an underwater submarine trip, hoping to scare a World War Two SS man into disclosing the whereabouts of stolen Nazi funds. The agents hijack the prisoner, place him in the fake sub and then begin their theatrical production. It's fascinating stuff. The sub rocks and movesup and down to exploding depth charges as stage managers Barney and guest Lee Meriwether push buttons, and Jim Phelps becomes a cruel, merciless sea commander.

From My Side Of the Tube . . .

By WALTER McKINNON

Less than four months ago, homo sapiens took a giant leap forward. He ceased to be a terrestrial creature when an American named Neil Armstrong placed a foot on the surface of the moon.

The technical sophistication of television allowed millions of human beings to witness that historic turning point in the evolution of the species. And television is the only communications medium which could have accomplished such a feat.

Today three more Americans are in space, somewhere between their home planet and the moon. With them vicariously through television coverage is the entire race of man.

Today in Washington, D.C., hundreds of thousands of dissident Americans are marching in vigorous protest against American involvement in the Vietnam war. All four U.S. networks have pointedly avoided scheduling any live coverage of this massive demonstration of public thinking.

And therein lies the paradox which is television. The only medium which could present instantaneous coverage of a human being's first footstep on a celestial body more than 240,000 miles from this earth is incapable of presenting objective live coverage of another significant happening right in its own world.

The reason? Curiously, it's the same technical sophistication which allowed the superb coverage of Apollo 11. Television's biggest asset, it also becomes its biggest handicap.

Television is not basically a news medium. Despite the continued boasts of its people, the camera and the microphone, in certain situations, cannot avoid giving a distorted view of events.

To the viewer at home, the world appears cut to fit that small, glowing panel in the corner of the room. A minor scuffle between a handful of militants during a protest, for example, when transmitted to the screen at home is translated into civil insurrection.

Because there is violence in one small section of Washington that is where the television cameras are put into operation. The microphone picks up the sounds of chaos, the viewer it told there are 200,000 demonstrators and is drawn to the assumption that every one of them is rioting.

Television in such situations is creating news events rather than presenting factual information.

U.S. network officials, in avoiding live coverage of Moratorium Day demonstrations, are admitting to themselves if not to the world that their medium does have its limitations.

Bill WALKER

Cleaning out the bottom drawer, or did you know that coach Bill Gadsby of the Detroit Red Wings was fired by owner Bruce Norris last year, as well, but was rehired the same day . . . and wouldn't it make more sense, really, for the National Hockey League to transfer the Oakland franchise to Vancouver, and the Pittsburgh franchise to Buffalo, and go with what they've got? Wouldn't it, really? Because then the buyers, even at $6 million, would be getting more than they would be getting in that other church auction that's coming up next spring. . . . And it is also said that Medicor tried to buy the Toronto Maple Leafs last year, but the price was too stiff.

And how times have changed: the umpires in the recent world series received $6,500 for five days work, and there was a grievance or two against some of them, too. Meanwhile Hank Soar received $200 a game for working the 1938 series . . . and now the story out of Los Angeles is that coach Hal Laycoe has become the newest admirer of young Bobby Orr . . . "He could score 100 points," admits Hal . . . and also the Hockey News says that ex-Leaf Lou Jankowski is thinking of becoming a playing coach . . . his Jersey team is having troubles winning . . . And shouldn't there be an award for the Oklahoma City team of the Central League? . . . It is the first professional team to make the wearing of hockey helmets mandatory.

Then there's the following interesting statistic for all skiing enthusiasts: The left leg is more likely to suffer in a ski accident than the right, according to the Swiss National Accident Insurance Fund . . . and the ratio of injuries is almost two to one in favor of the left leg . . . There was no explanation . . . but there was the other note that skiing is more dangerous than soccer, and from the same source.

And still more nonsense . . . or the things that arrive in the mail these days. But read on regardless; you may be able to use the following bit of info some day.

If you are a hard-working fisherman, the kind who doesn't like to quit even when the fish aren't biting, frogging may be just the spare-time sport for you. No special equipment is needed to catch frogs. All you need is a good flashlight, a burlap bag, and a quick hand. This is the most sporting way, by hand. And it usually takes two persons to frog by hand.

One operates the boat, easing gently up to the frog while his partner leans over the bow, flashlight trained on the frog's eyes, ready to grab the frog when he's within range. But careful, frogs are slippery critters and unless held tightly will jump and be gone. And don't let the frog fool you by going limp. That's his trick. If you relax your grip, he's gone. But when you do get one, stuff him in the sack, natch, and try again.

Not only are frogs good eating. But it's an exciting way for two to spend the night. Oh, boy!

●

No, I haven't found the Gyro Cup for elementary school lacrosse. It's not at South Park where Dusty Mair thought it was. You see Dusty was a member of the South Park team that won the championship in 1928, and did they have the last laugh on Oaklands. Oaklands, somehow, had been declared city champions, and had beaten Vancouver for what was tantamount to the provincial championship, and had returned home, ready to accept the trophy which had been engraved and the medals which had been struck in their honor. But wait, said South Park, we were undefeated in league play and should have the right to challenge the false champions. It was agreed and South Park defeated Oaklands, necessitating new medals, and Dusty has his medal to prove it.

And the inevitable story. This one came out of the background one day while staffer Ernie Fedoruk was entertaining and it concerned former Maple Leaf coach Frank Mario.

As most hockey fans will recall, Mario used to carry a giant-sized notebook whenever the Maple Leafs played, but he also had a smaller notebook in his inside pocket which few were privileged to see. The big book was for statistical figures for the big boss; the little book was Frank's own and he studied it incessantly, intently and always.

Ah, so!

●

Well, it seems that one night, a few years ago, when the Leafs and company were down in L.A. for a league game, and general manager Punch Imlach of Toronto had come out for a look-see at the club, and the Leafs had lost, and it was suggested that some form of relaxation might be in order, all agreed.

Naturally, there are several places in the L.A. area which cater to this type of trade, and although the bodies on display were not of the same proportions as the billboard advertised, the performers were eager, and the entertainment was of the swinging kind, with emphasis on development.

Everyone was sitting around, some on the edges of their chairs, the better to study the talent; most were sipping at a $1.45 shot of bourbon they couldn't see, because it was so dark in the [illegible] and the jokes were becoming ruder by the minute from all present except Mario.

He was leaning over the flickering flame of a dirty yellow candle, studying his little book, and his figures and still trying to figure out how the Leafs had lost, four hours earlier.

And so the joke was on Frank. But is it today?

For Frank Mario is with the scouting division of the St. Louis Blues and his little book has probably produced many of the reasons why those Blues have won two western division titles and are headed for a third.

His figures don't lie.

Centennials Clipped 3-1; Kamloops Here Tonight

Victoria coach Doug Anderson is delighted with his team's performance on the road and now he looks for the Cougars to be more ferocious in their home den.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Returning to victory circle in Bowler-of-the-Week contest is Stan Gallop, who has captured men's fivepin award in fifth week of annual competition sponsored by the Times. Stan topped division by mauling maples for 372-314-249 — 935 series in Men's Commercial League at Gibson's Bowladrome.

The Cougars won their fifth game in seven road starts by shading Vancouver Centennials 3-1 in B.C. Junior Hockey League action at Vancouver on Friday.

The Cats have a 2-2-1, won-lost-tied record at Memorial Arena, and that's where they'll be tonight for an important date with the league-leading Kamloops Rockets. Game time is 8:30.

The Rockets, returned to hockey's good graces earlier in the day, remained at the head of the parade although losing a 4-2 decision to the Buckaroos in Kelowna.

ROYALS ROUTED

In another game Friday, Penticton Broncos humbled the winless and visiting New Westminster Royals 7-2.

Kamloops remained two points ahead of second-place Vancouver while Cougars jumped into third, another two points off the pace.

Goals by Scott Munro and Bruce Cowick in a 19-second span early in the first period proved enough for the Cougars. Defenceman Gerry Bond, scoring into an open net, clinched it in the final minute of play.

Neil Murphy scored Vancouver's only goal, breaking away at centre ice while Cougars were caught changing players. Rob Acquiline of Vancouver was serving a penalty at the time.

JOHNSON GREAT

At Kelowna, goaltender Ken Johnson stole the show with a 48-stop effort as the Bucks handed Rockets only their second loss this season. Johnson was outstanding in the second period when he turned away 20 shots.

Doug Manchuk, Larry Lenarduzzi, Bruce Wik and Chuck Carigan scored for Kelowna. John Senkpiel and Oliver Stewart, the latter scoring with only 34 seconds remaining, counted Kamloops' goals.

At Penticton, the Royals showed up with only 12 players —including two goaltenders— and the weak bench took its toll. Royals battled Penticton to a 2-2 draw in the first period, then the Broncos took over. The Royals managed only one shot on goalie Fred Whitlow in the final period.

Buffalo, Vancouver 'For Sure'

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Vancouver and Buffalo will be granted expansion franchises in the National Hockey League soon after the Dec. 1 deadline for filing applications, says the Buffalo Courier-Express.

Hockey writer Charles Barton quotes a "highly-placed NHL source" as saying the Buffalo group headed by millionaire sportsmen Northrup and Seymour H. Knox III "has met every condition laid down by the league," including the promise of a $6,000,000 admission fee.

VANCOUVER CLOSE

"Vancouver interests are close to meeting the conditions," Barton writes. He quotes his source as saying:

"There isn't any doubt in the minds of most knowledgeable hockey people that the Knox brothers will be awarded a franchise for Buffalo, and that the Medicor Corp. of Minneapolis will obtain one for Vancouver."

Blues Try Again To Shatter Hex

By Canadian Press

St. Louis Blues get another chance tonight to break the jinx that has held them winless in 20 regular season and playoff games against the National Hockey League champion Montreal Canadiens.

And with the Canadiens on the road for the last week, this should be one of the best chances the Blues have had to add a victory to their record of four ties and 16 losses with Montreal.

St. Louis has won the West Division championship in both seasons since the 1967 expansion and leads the division again this year. But the Blues are the only team in the league who have never defeated the Canadiens at least once.

Montreal, with a one-point lead in the East Division, moves on to Chicago Sunday night where they could run up against Bobby Hull in his season debut.

SOLITARY WORKOUT

The all-star left winger Friday rubbed elbows with his team-mates for the first time this season in a team practice and then worked out by himself, practising his blistering slap shot that helped earn him a record 58 goals last season.

Hull's contract dispute with the Black Hawks was resolved Thursday but he was not expected to play tonight when the fifth-place club seeks to extend its four-game winning streak against the visiting Oakland Seals.

Wren Blair, Minnesota North Stars general manager, will still be directing his club as coach tonight when they play host to Detroit Red Wings. Blair announced Friday that Bernie Geoffrion, assistant general manager and chief scout with New York Rangers, has turned down a contract to coach the North Stars.

WANTS TO QUIT

Blair said Geoffrion told him he didn't have the desire to coach hockey again anywhere. Geoffrion started last season as coach of the Rangers but had to give up the job when he was sidelined by stomach ulcers.

Blair said he would still like to get out of the coaching job "if the right man comes along."

Philadelphia Flyers, who meet the Maple Leafs in Toronto tonight, Friday recalled Serge Bernier and Rosaire Paiement from their Quebec AHL farm club. The two will go against the Leafs in place of injured centres Jim Johnson and Garry Peters.

The Leafs, mired in the East Division cellar, will be trying to break out of a four-game losing slump.

TOUGH TIGER ACTS LIKE 25 — EARNS ANOTHER TITLE SHOT

Andy Won't Forget Name

NEW YORK (CP)—Dick Tiger looked more like 25 than the pension-age battler some believe he is when he battered Andy Kendall in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Kendall of Scappoose, Ore., didn't belong in the same ring with the likeable old warhorse. Only his incredible ability to take punishment kept him on his feet for the full 10 rounds.

"Some say I am 50 years old," Tiger said in a pre-fight interview. "What's the difference. I still don't look it and I feel 25. I hope I can fight until I'm 80 or 90, just so they will remember my name."

EXCITING ROUND

The fourth round was the most exciting of the fight. Tiger was staggered by a Kendall right-hand sucker shot at the start of the round and they battled toe-to-toe in a vicious 15-second exchange in mid-ring until Kendall was rocked back on his heels from a savage left-right combination by the Biafran. There were several similar exchanges in the round but they all ended with the same result.

Kendall's best round was the fifth. Tiger was taking potshots, landing thudding left hooks and occasional straight right hands for the first two minutes of the round. But Kendall came to life in the last minute of the round with his only overpowering two-fisted attack of the night to slow Tiger down.

JUST HUNG ON

But that proved to be the end of his attack. Except for an occasional wild desperation punch that got through Tiger's guard, Kendall seemed content to try and hang on and go the distance.

Both referee Jimmy Devlin and judge Frank De Gesu scored it 9-1 for Tiger, the former middleweight and light heavyweight champion. Judge Bill Recht had it 8-2 while The Canadian Press had it 9-0-1 for Tiger.

A crowd of 6,083 contributed a gross gate of $26,000. Tiger received $15,000 for his efforts while Kendall earned $5,200.

Both Tiger and Kendall were knockout victims of light heavyweight champion Bob Foster and a rematch with Foster was promised to the winner.

ARMSTRONG RESIGNS AS COACH OF ESKIMOS

EDMONTON (CP)—Neill Armstrong resigned today as coach of the Edmonton Eskimos after six years with the Western Football Conference Club.

Jack Baker, president of the Eskimos, made the announcement at a news conference. A successor was not named.

Baker read a joint statement which said: "The board of directors of the Edmonton Eskimo Football Club and Neil Armstrong announce the termination, by mutual consent, of coach Armstrong's contract with the club, effective immediately."

Armstrong, 42, a native of Tishomingo, Okla., had an over-all record of 37 wins, 59 losses and three ties with the club since replacing Eagle Keys, now head coach of the Saskatchewan Roughriders, before the 1964 season.

Eskimos, with a 5-11 record this season, missed the playoffs for the first time since 1965.

Hornet Reign Comes to Halt

NANAIMO — Nanaimo had three valid reasons and "some odds" on its side, but the north champions' victory over the defending titleholders Friday still has to rate as the soccer shock of the season.

Nanaimo astounded the high school set by upsetting Mount View Hornets 5-4 to claim The Daily Times Trophy, emblematic of Vancouver Island supremacy.

Nanaimo thus becomes the first up-Island team in memory to carry the Island banner into the provincial final against the mainland's representatives.

And the up-Island champions made it because they had Ray Clark, coach Ian Smith and strong "support" from the Mt. Benson Legion minor soccer organization.

CLARK SPARKLES

Also not to be forgotten are the odds, which suggest Nanaimo was long overdue.

Clark, the Island's juvenile soccer boy last season, was Nanaimo's sparkplug. He scored Nanaimo's first two goals, set up the winner with about five minutes remaining, and was a going concern all game.

With the score tied 4-4, Clark headed a ball that put winger Rod Simpson through Victoria's defence for the winning goal. Pete Achurch and Brian Mayes scored Nanaimo's other goals.

Co-captain Tom Somner scored three of the Mount View goals, including a pair on penalty shots. Left winger Rick Matte scored the other as Hornets overcame a 4-2 deficit to tie the match in the second half.

Smith, in his second season as Nanaimo's coach seemed to provide a stabilizing effect. The London native played amateur soccer in England before coming to Canada about six years ago. His father was Surrey's coach at one time.

Smith also had to laud the Mt. Benson program, which supplied Clark and five other players.

Smith also was impressed by Hornets who, he said, "lacked-only goal-mouth finish" in being deposed as the Island's best after a two-year reign.

Ken Sully Wins

QUEBEC (CP) — Beverly Boys, 18-year-old Canadian Olympic diver from Oshawa, Ont., Friday took first place in the women's one-metre event at the Canadian open winter diving championships.

Ken Sully, 18, of Vancouver took the men's one-metre event.

Foes of Tour Try to Break Police Line

SWANSEA, Wales (Reuters) — Anti-apartheid demonstrators battled with police today in the angriest clash so far seen on the South African Springboks rugby team's tour of Britain.

A crowd of more than 800 tried to storm through a line of police drawn up outside St. Helen's Stadium where the Springboks were meeting Swansea for the fourth match of their tour.

At one point, the demonstrators forced police into the road.

But reinforcements were rushed up and the demonstrators were forced back.

Elder Takes Jump Event

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's Jim Elder Friday night won the first of 13 international jumping competitions at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair.

Elder, 35, of Aurora, Ont., guided The Immigrant over a 13-obstacle course in 53.9 seconds without a fault before a crowd of 6,000.

Elder's victory in the International Stakes over three teammates and four riders each from the United States, Mexico and Argentina, gave him $325 in prize money and 17 points toward the Canadian championship.

MALONEY TO SCOUT FOR CANUCKS . . . — . . . AFTER 21 PRO HOCKEY SEASONS

Slick Phil Sheds Skates for New Job

VANCOUVER (CP) — Phil Maloney, a clever veteran of 21 years in the hockey wars, is hanging up his skates to take a scouting position with Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League.

Joe Crozier, general manager and coach of the Vancouver club, which is expected to move up to the National Hockey League next season, announced Maloney's new assignment Friday night at Phoenix, Ariz., after the Canucks had dropped a 4-2 decision to the Roadrunners.

Crozier said Maloney will scout junior leagues in British Columbia and on the Prairies for the Canucks.

Maloney, 42, broke into professional hockey in the 1948-49 season at Hershey of the American League.

The Ottawa native began the first of two stints with Vancouver in 1955, the latest in the 1961-62 season.

His career also included NHL stints with Chicago, Boston and Toronto.

Although he spent most of his career in minor leagues, Maloney was rated by some hockey experts as one of the game's slickest and most effective centres.

His skills twice brought him recognition as the WHL's most valuable player—in 1955-56, when he also won the league's scoring championship, and again in 1962-63.

In regular-season play with the Canucks, Maloney played 818 games, had 326 goals, 597 assists and 923 points.

In 364 American League games with Hershey and Buffalo, he scored 134 goals and helped on 249 more for 383 points. His career high in points, 102, was recorded in Buffalo in the 1960-61 season, when he was also named that league's most valuable player.

In 158 NHL games, he chalked up 28 goals and 43 assists for 71 points.

And in 52 games in the Quebec League with Ottawa, he added 17 goals and 27 assists.

It adds up to 1,392 games, 505 goals, 916 assists and 1,421 points.

That's not counting playoffs, in which Maloney rang up 112 games in various leagues, 42 goals and 68 assists for another 110 points.

Curling Tips

By Ron Northcott

(Three-time World Champion)

Playing any end, when the seconds or thirds are shooting and the skip is calling for a quiet hit on "A".

THE STRATEGY — Always keep the following points in mind and play accordingly: Don't be wide of the broom and miss not only "A" but "B" also. This is a cardinal sin. Just as bad a mistake would be to be light and stop short of "A." When settling in the hack for your shot, be sure you have enough weight and don't be wide. Even if you don't get by "B" it will be a useful shot unless you should raise "B" into the house.

Keep these points in mind. Know what you are trying to do with every shot, and the usefulness of your shots will improve tremendously.

★ ★ ★

TODAY'S TIP — Keep your game easy and as basic as possible early in the season.

You can't possibly have "feel" for your shots early in the year, nor will you have the confidence that builds up slowly. And remember, your sweepers will not be at their best because it takes them a few weeks to get in top shape and sharpen their judgment on weight.

Bunny Hints Canada Could Lose Tourney

MONTREAL (CP)—At 69, John F. (Bunny) Ahearne has more zest for battle than some of the hockey players 50 years his junior he controls as president of the International Ice Hockey Federation.

He was up to his old tricks here Friday night when he threw what had been billed as a routine news conference into a tizzy with dire and thinly-veiled threats that Canada's position as host for the 1970 world hockey championship may not be as secure as Canadian officials had supposed.

Ahearne is here with several members of his IIHF directorate for a meeting that was reportedly called to ratify, among other mundane matters, the final playing schedule for the championship.

The 1970 tournament opens here March 12 and runs through to March 20, then the teams move to Winnipeg for the second half of the event March 22-29.

"We're here to try and get the 1970 world championships off the ground," Ahearne said. "This is a very, very important meeting and I hope it will not be too important.

"There will be problems to face and with goodwill and understanding it will succeed."

CAUSES SURPRISE

His remarks caught Earl Dawson, of Rivers, Man., president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, and other Canadian delegates completely off base.

At first the IIHF president refused to elaborate, but later he directed his questioners to a statement made last Tuesday in London by Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee.

Brundage said the whole future of the Winter Olympics will be discussed at a meeting of the IOC in Amsterdam in May.

"We're trying to keep commercialism out of the Winter Olympics," Brundage said. "Now we have the problem of the ice hockey federation allowing pros to compete. This is a new problem."

CAN USE NINE PROS

Canada gained permission from the IIHF to use nine professionals, who have not played in the National Hockey League this season, on its national team for the 1970 tournament.

Now Ahearne apparently is worried that countries like Sweden may withdraw from the tournament—in the aftermath of Brundage's remarks—because players who play against Canadian pros could be declared ineligible for the next Olympic Games.

However, Ahearne said, he had come here to help not to hinder Canada's cause.

"Brundage said that is his personal opinion."

POINT TO CALENDAR

Canadian officials hastened to point to the fact that the IOC meeting is not until May, while the tournament will be completed in March.

But apparently Ahearne feels that if there is enough fear of reprisal from the IOC by some countries, they may balk at coming here in 1970 and Canada could possibly wind up without a tournament.

If things can't be ironed out today, it is likely a full-scale meeting of the IIHF congress would have to be called by the president.

Canada has indicated it will approach the IIHF in Winnipeg again in March with a proposal for an open world hockey tournament.

Ahearne said he is almost certain "goodwill and understanding" will overcome this immediate barrier.

RUSS JACKSON

Leo Recalls Last Season And Lauds Ottawa Heroes

TORONTO (CP) — When someone asks coach Leo Cahill how his Toronto Argonauts stack up against Ottawa Rough Riders, he mutters things like "don't go and say we are not concerned."

Cahill won't try to predict the outcome of the Eastern Football Conference two-game total-point final between the Argos and Rough Riders here Sunday.

And there is a reason for his tight-lipped philosophy.

Last season, Toronto met Ottawa in the final and a number of Argos made disparaging remarks about the Rough Riders.

Coach Frank Clair of Ottawa clipped out each newspaper article, underlined the prophesies and hung them up in his dressing room.

The Argos won the first game of the series and then lost the second game and the berth in the Grey Cup final.

Cahill believes Ottawa was fired up by the Toronto players' statements.

So, Cahill has adopted a hail-the-hero approach and mentions all the Rough Riders' merits, reserving special praise for Ottawa quarterback Russ Jackson.

"When I'm asked about Jackson's strong points, I usually say his toughness, mentally and physically, is what makes him so effective."

"He gets the ball to the proper people at the proper time. If he's unable to do that, then he does it himself."

The Argonauts lost 200 yards when Jackson ran the ball in three regular-season victories by the Rough Riders over Toronto.

Now Cahill must defend against Ottawa receivers, rushers and Jackson's running. In the previous three games, Jackson simply ran the ball when his receivers were covered.

VANOY OR DYE?

Cahill will probably be forced to sit out either corner linebacker Jimmy Dye or defensive end Vernon Vanoy. Both are instrumental in containing Jackson.

But he must designate one of them as his 14th import, which means he could not send that player into action unless he first takes out one of the other 13 imports for the remainder of the game.

Cahill solved the problem last week in defeating Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the EFC sudden-death semi-final by sitting out rookie halfback Dickie Moore and moving Dick Thornton out of the defensive backfield and into the offensive halfback position.

REGULAR ROLE

But this weekend, Thornton will be back playing his regular defensive halfback role and Moore will probably be used as one halfback along with Bill Symons.

Cahill, however, isn't tipping his hand in that direction either and he probably won't until he sends his team onto the field for the 11 a.m. PST kickoff.

The game will be televised nationally by the CBC network.

HORNETS HOPE TO SHATTER FARMER SKEIN

Saanich Chew Hornets will be trying to crack the victory streak of Oak Bay Farmer Construction when the two clubs tangle at Centennial Stadium Sunday in a sudden-death battle for the playoff championship of the Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League.

Hornets won the provincial crown last season but finished second in the Island league this year to Farmers, who carved an unbeaten path through the league schedule and semi-final playoffs.

Winner of Sunday's game, which starts at 1:30, will meet the Mainland champions in a two-game series for the provincial title.

Kapp Invading Packer Land

By Associated Press

Minnesota Vikings are setting their Kapp for Green Bay.

Volatile quarterback —Joe Kapp leads the Vikings into the Land of the Packers in one of the top National Football League games Sunday.

The Vikings, leaders in the Central Division, hold a two-game lead over the Packers and Detroit Lions.

Green Bay coach Phil Bengston admits he has a toughie in the explosive Vikings and their league-leading quarterback and ground-rattling front four.

"You can roll out or bootleg to combat a vicious defensive rush," Bengston says, "but you still have to block them."

When the teams met earlier this season, the Viking defenders spilled Bart Starr eight times and Minnesota won 19-7.

RAMS MEET EAGLES

Elsewhere in the NFL Sunday, Los Angeles Rams play Philadelphia Eagles, Washington Redskins are host to Dallas Cowboys, Cleveland Browns are at Pittsburgh Steelers, San Francisco '49ers play at home to Baltimore Colts, St. Louis Cardinals visit Detroit Lions, New Orleans Saints are playing New York Giants in New York and Chicago Bears drop in on Atlanta Falcons.

Starr, who sat out most of last Sunday's game with a sore arm, was listed as a doubtful starter against Minnesota. Backup man Don Horn, in his second year, probably will get the call.

"Bart has been throwing with less pain in his arm," Bengston says, "and while this is encouraging, it's no assurance he will start Sunday."

The Packers also are in trouble at centre, where starter Ken Bowman is out with a broken thumb.

Kapp, who came to the NFL from British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League, is the architect of Minnesota's point-a-minute offence. The Vikings demolished Century Division leader Cleveland 51-3 last week behind Kapp's mastery.

Vikings Connect In First Match

TACOMA — A six-goal spree by Dave Armstrong provided the spark Friday to carry University of Victoria to an 18-14 victory over Eastern Washington State College in the opening round of the Pacific Lutheran College water polo tournament.

The Vikings were scheduled to play Central Washington in their second-round match today in the eight-team knockout competition.

New Man at Helm But Bays the Same

Don Horwood has replaced Gary Taylor as head coach, but Oak Bay is operating in the same old, and winning, fashion in the Inter-High School Senior Boys' Basketball League.

Defending league champions, the Bays won their second straight game for their new coach by romping to a 50-32 victory over Mt. Douglas Rams Friday.

Holdover Walt Burrows displayed a sparkling outside shooting touch to pace Oak Bay with a 23-point performance.

Doug Walton added 16 points for the Bays, who led 27-13 at the half.

Jim Hunter was Rams' high scorer with nine points.

Cubs Clipped By Nanaimo

Nanaimo Buccaneers slipped by Victoria Cubs 5-4 Thursday in a Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League game at G. R. Pearkes Arena.

Ray Mounsey, Mark Purdy, Dan Young and Jerry Caldwell scored for Victoria while Rich Dutka (2), Ray Clarke (2) and Murray Randall scored for Nanaimo.

Brentwood Clubs Win Two of Three

Host Brentwood teams went two-for-three Friday in Peninsula Basketball League action. Brentwood's pre-midget boys defeated Cordova Bay 4-2 and the bantam girls defeated Saanichton 52-10. Saanichton downed Brentwood 15-6 in a pre-midget girls' game.

View Royal teams chalked up victories in earlier games this week.

Playing on their home court, the View Royal juvenile girls bombed Sidney 50-5 and the Views nipped Saanichton 14-13 in a midget boys' game.

At Cordova Bay Wednesday, View Royal bantam boys trimmed the host club 57-29.

Carmichael Hits Three for Eagles

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Phoenix Roadrunners and San Diego Gulls both crept closer to idle Portland at the top of the standings with wins in Western Hockey League action Friday.

They wound up with 18 points, two behind the Portland club, as the Gulls took their sixth road game 4-1 over Seattle and Phoenix, playing on home ice, clobbered Vancouver 4-2.

But the breath taker of the night was at Denver, where Dave Rochefort slapped one in with just three seconds left to play to capture a 4-4 tie for Salt Lake City.

Bruce Carmichael churned out the other three goals for the Golden Eagles as they caught the Spurs, one point up on them now in fifth place.

McCARTEN SPARKLES

Carmichael got two markers in the third period and assisted on Rochefort's to top off the late offensive show.

Denver's Wilf Martin scored twice and Ed Hoekstra and Gord Vejprava got one apiece.

In Seattle, the Gulls' Jack McCartan let in the first goal of the night as Art Stratton got a pass from behind the net, then held out every other shot for a total of 34.

The winning goal for Phoenix came from Morris Stefaniw on his first of the year.

Ede's Know-How Helps As Rifles Clip Rivals

George Ede knows how to pull the trigger, and it was his experience that helped most Friday night as Queen's Own Rifles shot down North American Stockers 3-2 in Vancouver Island Hockey League activity at the Sports Centre.

Completing the twin-bill action that attracted 1,154 fans, University of Victoria Vikings shaded Butler Brothers 4-3 to gain a share of first place.

Ede was the whole show for Rifles. He's one of Canada's nationally-rated biathalon performers — a cross-country ski sport that includes shooting while racing.

He used skates Friday, but Stockers might have preferred him to go on skis. Ede scored the first three goals of the game to provide Rifles with their first victory.

ROZON HELPS

Sharp netminding by Joe Rozon also played a prominent role for coach Harry Groom's Rifles. Dennis Ferrill counted both Stocker goals in the second period, and Rozon came on strongest in the heotic-but-scoreless third period.

Hugh Trask's deflected shot that eluded Butler goaltender Ed Hastings late in the third period enabled Vikings to pull out their win. Trask also opened scoring while Bob Buie and Bill Westover counted other goals for Joe Iannarelli's Vikings.

Paul Bion, Orv Coulter and Mike McAvoy counted for Butlers.

GUYLE FIELDER
. . . couldn't stay away

Golden Guyle, 39 Ends Retirement

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Salt Lake Golden Eagles of the Western Hockey League obtained centre Guyle Fielder in a straight player exchange with the Seattle Totems, team officials announced Friday.

Fielder, who will be 39 later this month, will come out of retirement to play for the Golden Eagles. He retired before the season started.

In exchange, the Golden Eagles gave up right wing Bobby Schmautz.

Fielder played the last 12 years with Seattle, and before that had played in the National Hockey League with the Chicago Black Hawks, Boston Bruins and Detroit Red Wings.

The Golden Eagles sought out Fielder, who has been running a hotel at Williams Lake in B.C.'s Cariboo district, as a replacement for centre Billy McNeill, 33, whose career may have been ended by a broken leg suffered in a WHL game at Salt Lake City last Tuesday.

Fielder holds the WHL single season scoring record with 122 points, and the league record for most assists, 95.

The nomination-paper may be in the form prescribed in the "Municipal Act", and shall state the name, residence and occupation of the person nominated in such manner as to sufficiently identify such candidate. The nomination-paper shall be subscribed to by the candidate.

In the event of a poll being necessary, such poll will be opened at the Municipal Hall, 1229 Esquimalt Road, Esquimalt, B.C., on SATURDAY, the 6th day of DECEMBER, 1969, from EIGHT O'CLOCK A.M. to EIGHT O'CLOCK P.M., and an ADVANCED POLL will be opened at the aforesaid place on THURSDAY and FRIDAY, DECEMBER 4th and 5th, 1969, from NINE O'CLOCK A.M. to FIVE O'CLOCK P.M. at which the only persons who will be permitted to vote are those who, being qualified electors, sign a statement that:

(a) they expect to be absent from the Municipality on polling-day, OR

(b) they are, for reasons of conscience, prevented from voting on polling day, of which every person is hereby required to take notice and govern himself accordingly.

GIVEN UNDER MY HAND at Esquimalt, B.C., this 14th day of November, A.D. 1969.

P. CAIRNS,
Returning Officer.

Viking Coach Eyes Outside Shooters

First big test of the season comes up this weekend for the University of Victoria basketball Vikings and coach Bob Bell will probably be checking on the accuracy of his long-range snipers.

Vikings, who dropped a decision last weekend to the touring Harlem Clowns, will step into more serious action tonight and Sunday in a pair of games with Vancouver Reps, who are campaigning in Mainland senior "A" ranks.

Vikings tangle with the Reps at 8 tonight and at 1 p.m. Sunday. Uvic Jayvees, rated contenders for the Canadian junior hoop title, will also be in action on both exhibition programs, meeting Vancouver Grocers tonight at 6 and at 3 p.m. Sunday.

With such big, strong rebounders as Tom Hatcher, Stan Piper and Brian Brumwell available for duty, the Vikings will probably be able to hold their own under the boards against most rivals.

Still uncertain is the strength of the outside shooting required to give the varsity squad a balanced attack. Thus Bell can be expected to pay extra attention this weekend to the shooting skill of people like Corky Jossul, Al Glover and Barry Burch.

NOTICE

In the Matter of By-Law No. 2943 Being the "Sewer Construction and Improvement Loan Authorization By-Law, 1969."

TAKE NOTICE THAT:

A. The Corporation of the District of Saanich proposes to borrow funds to undertake the construction of extensions and improvements to the sewer system serving that area of the Municipality of Saanich defined in By-Law No. 2900 being the "Sewerage Consolidation and Enterprise Establishment By-Law, 1968".

B. The amount proposed to be borrowed for the said construction is $950,000.00.

C. The length of time within which the proposed debt would be repayable is 20 years.

D. Unless within thirty days of the 17th day of November, 1969, not less than one-twentieth in number of the owner-electors petition the Council for the submission of the By-law authorizing the said borrowing for the assent of the owner-electors, being By-law No. 2943, "Sewer Construction and Improvement Loan Authorization By-law, 1969", the Council may adopt the said By-law.

"G. HAYWARD", Municipal Clerk.

City Players Start Strongly

VANCOUVER — Victoria and district players fared well in Friday's opening action at the Vancouver Lawn Tennis Club's invitational squash tournament.

Five of the six Island players entered won.

Hugh Irving and Julian Greenwood downed the Vancouver pairing of John Creighton and Stan Mandell in "A" doubles. Guy Screetch and Gerry Davis also scored in "C" class doubles.

Phil Green of Victoria defeated Ron Mackie of Vancouver in "D" singles while R. Simmons of Vancouver beat P. Stevenson of Shawnigan Lake.

NATIONALS WIN

CALGARY (CP) — Canada's national hockey team scored two goals in the first period and went on to defeat University of Calgary Dinosaurs 4-1 in an exhibition game before 3211 fans Friday night.

B.C. Harness Racing Has Uncertain Future

VANCOUVER (CP) — The future of lower B.C. mainland harness racing was left undecided this week following rejection of winter harness racing next year at Exhibition Park.

In a letter to the B.C. Standardbred Breeders' Society and the B.C. Racing Commission, the B.C. Jockey Club which operates Exhibition Park said it was unable to commit the club to "a proposed winter harness racing meeting."

The letter was signed by Jack Diamond, co-president of the Jockey Club. Diamond said the club reached the decision reluctantly after careful consideration which included two feasibility studies, and analysis of projected income and operating costs.

The letter said a track conversion program could not be undertaken at the time of year available for such conversion without endangering the present racing base, now exclusively thoroughbred.

Ernie Kehler, who operated the 1969 summer meet at Ladner, has declared himself out of the game for ever. There are no firm plans by any other group to operate a 1970 summer meet at Paterson Park.

Distaff Clubs On Mainland

Both Victoria teams in the Inter-City Senior Women's Basketball League hit the boards in Vancouver this weekend.

Victoria Maplettes, defending Canadian champions, take on Mt. Pleasant Legion at the University of British Columbia tonight and then face Simon Fraser University on the Burnaby Mountain campus Sunday afternoon.

University of Victoria Vikettes take on UBC Thunderettes tonight and tackle Mt. Pleasant Sunday.

If it ever breaks down, you're in luck.

It could happen.

Even to a Volkswagen.

And although you may be far from happy, you'll never be far from help.

There are 285 authorized VW dealers across Canada.

Each dealer has enough parts on hand (or can get his hands on enough parts) to put together a brand new 1970 Volkswagen.

Or a brand new 1960 Volkswagen for that matter, since most VW parts are interchangeable from one year to the next.

And every one of our 285 Volkswagen dealers uses only specially trained VW mechanics, who in turn use only specially designed VW tools and equipment.

So you can get as good a job done in say, Vancouver, as you would in Halifax.

What's more, very soon every Volkswagen dealer in Canada will have the revolutionary VW Diagnosis and Maintenance System. (It can spot small problems before they become big ones.)

In fact, VW Diagnosis can electronically detect a possible breakdown even before it happens.

How lucky can you get?

With close to 300 VW dealers across Canada there has to be one close to you.

PERSPECTIVES AND PREJUDICES

'Want to Believe...In Anything'

By REV. J. A. DAVIDSON

In our society today there is a crisis of belief. Ours is an age both of far-ranging doubt and skepticism and of anxiety to believe. People are skeptical about traditional beliefs of all kinds—religious, moral, idealogical, philosophical.

And yet many are reaching, often rather frantically, for something to believe, something to wrap their minds firmly around — almost as though they think that in belief itself, any kind of belief, there is special security.

An actress is reported to have said that she always consults a horoscope before making an important decision. A friend commented, "I didn't know that you believe in astrology." "Oh yes," she replied, "I believe in everything — a little bit!"

Norman Vincent Peale, answering a question about how one can practice faith and come to peace of mind, gave this advice: "First thing every morning, before you rise, say out loud, 'I believe,' three times." Wow!

●

Christian belief seems to be having rather bad innings in our time. We sometimes tell ourselves that it is not so much what you believe that really counts as how you live. There is, of course, an element of truth in that — but it is not quite as simple as we may like to think it is.

You all know the amiable, self-assured fellow who will admit, even if you don't ask him to, that he is "a pretty good Christian" — as good a Christian, anyway, as those long-faced characters who take religion too seriously.

But he rarely has anything to do with the Church, and all that he really knows about the Christian religion can be written on the back of a postage-stamp.

On the other hand, we who profess to be believing Christians and who involve ourselves in the Christian cause, are often rather fuzzy in our beliefs and wavering in our commitments. I have a friend — My Irritable Friend, of whom some of you have heard — who on a gloomy Monday morning (most preachers find Mondays gloomy) penned what he calls "An Authentic Creed for Some Modern Christians." He has granted me permission to use it, and here it is:

"I believe in God the Father Almighty, because all right-thinking people do. I think that he is very good-natured and tolerant, and that he winks benevolently at our little sins because he knows that deep down we're really OK.

"I believe that Jesus Christ lived a very good life and that I should admire him very much. I try to go along with the teachings of the Sermon on the Mount — although I am sure that God is aware that much of it is pretty impractical for today's world.

"I believe in the Church, even though I may not attend its services very often or contribute very much to its support. But I know that the Church stands for something important in the community — and, of course, I want my daughters to have church weddings.

●

"I believe, sort of, in the life everlasting — at least, I hope that in the end everything will turn out all right for me and my loved ones: after all, God does look after his own. Amen."

Bernard Shaw once made a fundamental point about belief: "What a man believes may be ascertained, not from his creed, but from the assumptions on which he habitually acts."

Belief, then, is not merely in the making of affirmations: it is also in how we are prepared to act because we make those affirmations. The reality of our beliefs is not displayed when we sit in easy-chairs and think about them: the reality of our beliefs is displayed when something in life challenges us or threatens us.

As Jesus said in the Sermon on the Mount, "You will know them by their fruits."

'Signposts' Film Showing Set Sunday

The film, Signposts Aloft, a Moody Institute of Science production, will be shown in the Salvation Army Citadel, 757 Pandora Avenue, Sunday at 8:15 p.m.

"In this film the viewer seems to be sitting in the cockpit of aircraft No. N696T, and to be taking part in a search for a missing plane," says Major John Wood, citadel commander.

A civilian pilot himself, Major Wood is a member of Victoria Flying Club.

"Signposts Aloft is a really thrilling film. The historic space flight of Col. John Glenn is recalled as he and Dr. Moon discuss the relevance of faith in an age of science.

"You fly deep into the Libyan desert and land beside the Lady Be Good, a ghost bomber of the Second World War, then retrace the steps of a crew that refused to trust its own instruments.

"Signposts Aloft gives us a new understanding of why man needs a point of reference outside himself and what a commitment to God actually means."

Vaccine Arrives

VANCOUVER (CP) — Shipment of a new mumps vaccine, delayed for about a week, arrived in Vancouver Thursday and now is available to local doctors. The vaccine will be distributed throughout the province by Monday.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — An unusual kind of ministry, new to the modern world but actually ancient in its origins, is spreading quietly but rapidly today in American Christianity.

It involves a merging of secular and religious occupations. Many hundreds of clergymen, once doing only pastoral work, now are combining it with self-supporting jobs in the everyday world.

"The trend has been developing in this country almost unnoticed so far, but it has been growing tremendously," says Rev. H. N. Conley, an Oklahoma City Episcopal (Anglican) priest who also is an investment firm executive.

"It's the pattern of the future," he adds. "It means radical change in the structure and working of the church." He also sees major advantages in it in strengthening the ministry and making it more relevant to modern life.

He predicted that, with the present growth of the self-supporting ministry, 40 per cent of the clergy will be in that category in 10 years, holding secular jobs while continuing ministerial functions.

Under the present prevailing system, however, in which clergymen are employed and paid by the churches, those who move outside this arrangement often have been left in a kind of ecclestiastical "no-man's land."

But, as the extent of the practice increases, several recent study conferences have been held about it, and the Episcopal governing convention at South Bend, Ind., took steps recently to sanction it formally.

The denomination approved new canonical provisions to keep self-supporting ministries within the regular church purview, and also to ease theological requirements for ordaining devout, self-supporting men in deprived areas, otherwise without pastors.

Although breaking with the ordinary church system at present, the new approach actually was the common arrangement in early Christianity, when most pastors, as well as bishops, also did worldly work for a living, including the great missionary-evangelist, St. Paul, a tentmaker.

"For hundreds of years, there was no such thing as a paid clergy," Conley said. "Until the fifth century, most bishops and priests were self-supporting. Offerings of the congregation went to help the poor."

Now, with churches putting more resources into programs for the poor, there's a swing back to the old pattern. The modern movement started with Roman Catholic "worker priests" in post-war France, and has appeared increasingly in the United States in the 1960s.

Conley estimates that in American Protestantism as a whole, it now "involves several thousands and the number is growing." The Episcopal Church alone has 700 self-supporting priests, more than 300 still continuing regular ministries.

Gordon Head United Marks Anniversary

Gordon Head United Church on Torquay Drive will celebrate its eighth anniversary Sunday.

There will be a special service in the church at 9:30 a.m. and a pot luck dinner for all members of the congregation in the church hall Sunday at 5:30 p.m.

Rev. Dr. F. E. H. James, formerly minister of Metropolitan United Church, Victoria, will be the guest preacher.

It was on Sunday, Nov. 19, 1961, that the church building was dedicated and officially opened. The successive ministers have been Rev. Millard Alexander, Rev. Leslie Wallwark and the present minister, Rev. Franck Patterson.

'It's a Fallacy to Say Merger Will Bring About Big Savings'

By ROGER STONEBANKS
(Times Staff)

PARKSVILLE — Major arguements on both sides of the municipal amalgamation issue were attacked Friday night by a University of British Columbia professor.

Robert Collier of the UBC school of regional and community planning said he has not found a case where costs have been curtailed by amalgamation.

"It is a fallacy to say that amalgamation will result in some great saving," he told 65 delegates to an Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities seminar here.

"It will in the short run, but in the long run costs will be steady and go up slightly."

But he gave no support to the anti-amalgamation argument that there is somehow a loss of personal or community identity through merger.

"When amalgamation does take place, if your community has real meaning, that community will not disappear," he said.

HAS IDENTITY

Vancouver, itself the product of amalgamations, still has community identity — Kerrisdale, Point Grey, Vancouver South.

He presented a detailed background paper on costs and relationships of various services in different-sized communities.

He said cities with more than 15,000 population appear to operate and maintain municipal services more efficiently than smaller ones.

FIRST STEP?

Collier was questioned closely by delegates.

One asked if regional planning isn't a form of amalgamation.

He replied that regional districts don't have an amalgamation function except in providing services — it is not amalgamation in the political sense.

Wasn't the amalgamation of functions the first step?

"Services in many cases do provide the initial step to amalgamation," he replied.

The discussion turned to Greater Victoria, and Collier suggested the major municipalities sit down and talk about amalgamation even though it may be 10 years before there is meaningful action.

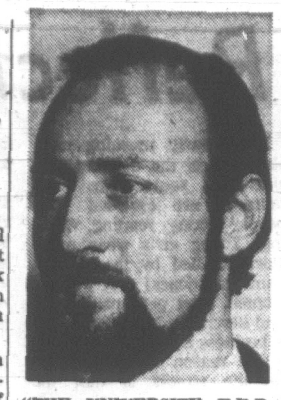
Victoria Alderman Tom Christie said amalgamation is "a dirty word" in the capital region. How would you get people to sit down and talk about it when anyone with amalgamation for his platform doesn't get elected?

"Is there anything wrong in talking about these issues without raising the spectre of amalgamation?" asked Collier.

Oak Bay Alderman Frances Elford said Greater Victoria needs all the firehalls it has. If there was one department a new super-structure would be added.

Collier said, as the area expands, it is faced with this anyway, whether it amalgamates or not.

"Victoria will require more sophisticated fire services. Adding in the superstructure will occur anyway," he said.



"THE UNIVERSITY FERMENT" will be discussed Monday evening by Frederick Edell, MFA, assistant professor of theatre at the University of Victoria in an address to the University Extension Association of Victoria Monday evening at 8:15, Room 144 MacLaurin Building. This is the fourth of a series on different aspects of the university included in the association's current program. The meeting is open to the public.

Ocean Experts Gathering For Week-Long Meetings

About 150 researchers, administrators and teachers from a wide range of disciplines involved in Canadian oceanography will gather Monday at the Empress Hotel for a week-long conference.

More than half of group attending the Canadian Committee on Oceanography's annual meeting will come from outside the province.

Originally scheduled for last April, the conference had to be postponed when arrangements were disrupted at the last minute by an Air Canada strike.

The Monday-to-Friday sessions will assess developments in the rapidly expanding field during the past year.

But adding considerable importance to this year's meetings will be discussions planning some of the details of Canada's participation in the International Decade of World Ocean Exploration which begins in January.

GUIDE RESEARCH

The CCO is composed of senior officials, from a variety of government departments, university departments and private industries, who have authority to commit their organizations.

Established as a co-ordinating group, it has the responsibility to guide and interlock the various facets of research and development undertaken by the various organizations in the undersea world — a big job in the country with the longest coastline in the world.

TRIP ON SUBS

The delegates specialize in such diverse disciplines as meteorology, physics and biology as well as the more obvious fisheries, hydrographic and physical oceanographic fields.

The North Vancouver-based International Hydrodynamics firm will provide two of their miniature Pisces submarines to take the delegates individually on 60-foot jaunts to the bottom off Brotchie Ledge during the conference.

When they come up for air — from meeting rooms or the ocean bed — Resources Minister Ray Williston and Mayor Hugh Stephen will give them an official welcome at a banquet Thursday evening tendered by the provincial government.

Chairman of the conference this year it A. T. Davidson, deputy minister (water) of the federal energy, mines and resources department. Official host is Dr. Michael Waldichuk, oceanographer with the west coast working group attached to the federal marine biological station at Nanaimo.

Teachers, Board To Arbitration

Greater Victoria teacher-trustee negotiations will go to arbitration after talks ended in a stalemate at the deadline Friday.

But school board spokesman George Curran said the door has not been closed on further negotiations, and if an agreement is reached on 1970 teacher salary scales before the arbitration board meets early in December, the board will probably give it approval.

Colin Glover, representing the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association, said Friday he was asking an eight per cent increase in salaries for the district's 1,300 teachers over last year, while the board was offering 5.7 per cent.

Both sides had earlier expressed optimism the Greater Victoria district would be among the first of the province's 81 districts to reach a negotiated settlement.

"I thought I was being fair," Glover said. "Some of the other negotiators around the province were starting off around 11 or 12 per cent, while I started off at 8.6."

"I really thought we'd get together, but I guess the board was just taken aback by the amount involved."

Curran said the final offer and counter-offer would have been "pretty hard for us to sell to our respective bodies."

Further negotiations could be influenced by early arbitration decisions in other districts, especially large ones on the Lower Mainland.

Fort Nelson and Vanderhoof announced settlements Thursday of 7.3 per cent and 8.6 per cent respectively.

By next Thursday in districts which apply for arbitration, teacher associations and school boards must appoint a representative to sit on an arbitration board.

The two nomineees must agree on a third person — the arbiter — to head up the board on or before Nov. 30.

The arbiter, having listened to arguments presented by both sides, must make a decision on 1970 salary scales by Dec. 31.

Bears Borne Off

HUDSON'S HOPE (CP) — Seventeen black bears, who had been feasting from garbage cans in this northern B.C. community, have been caught and released in a wilderness area miles away by officers of the B.C. fish and wildlife branch. Conservation Officer Gordon Gosling said Friday the bears had become accustomed to high living from scavenging from a dump built adjacent to camp cookhouses during construction of the Peace River Power project.

Beret Life Good

NEW YORK (AP)—Col. Robert B. Rheault, former commander of the U.S. Special Forces Green Berets in Vietnam, says he resigned from the army because his chances for promotion "were almost non-existent." In an interview in Life magazine, Rheault, one of eight Green Berets accused by the army of murdering an alleged spy but not prosecuted, says life in the Special Forces "was so great that it spoiled me for any other army service."

Universities Pushed To Society's Centre

Universities are being pushed "willy-nilly into the centre-stage position" of society, J. W. T. Spinks, president of the University of Saskatchewan, told 100 alumni members at a banquet here Friday.

Spinks, on a western swing to drum private support for the seven-year, $11.36 million campus building fund, said the tremendous cost of building and operating universities, coupled with the controversy that often surrounds them, have made them political entities.

He said in the past universities were quiet places, not heard from, with the role of preserving and passing on knowledge accumulated by past generations.

But during the past 60 years universities have played the key role in expanding new areas of knowledge, and are now at the centre of the "knowledge explosion".

Governments, at first reluctant to pour needed public funds into the campuses, are now starting to do so because they recognize society is dependent on scientists, teachers, artists and technically-trained personnel.

But he added tradition, atmosphere, respect for academic freedom and loyalty to the school "undoubtedly spell the difference between a good university and a great university."

FRANCE WOOING BENNETT

France's Foreign Minister Jean de Lipkowski, the man who recently upset Prime Minister Trudeau when he visited Quebec, is now wooing B.C.

In a letter released Friday by Premier Bennett, de Lipkowski said he looks forward to "intensified exchanges in the domains which can interest, at the same time, British Columbia and France."

The letter dated Oct. 24 and in reply to one sent by Bennett after the premier's recent visit to Paris added that France "has no desire in any way to interfere in the internal affairs of Canada."

De Lipkowski angered Trudeau when he visited Quebec without paying any courtesy calls to Ottawa.

Bennett said the letter "shows the goodwill the premier extends abroad when he works under the umbrella of the federal external affairs department."

Bulgarian Capital Reflects Trend to Urban Living

By ANDREW BARNES

SOFIA (WP) — Sofia is almost a metropolis and almost a village. Turkeys scrabble in the unpaved street in front of a new 10-storey apartment house. A herd of cows regularly stops late afternoon trafic on the beltway.

Bulgaria's capital has almost a million residents, but it remains oddly close to the soil. For instance, each new apartment house—and practically the whole city is new apartments—must by law have a room in the basement called the winter room.

In the winter room, bureaucrats and factory workers put down each autumn the winter's supply of pickled tomatoes and cucumbers. On a Sunday afternoon, the streets are full of families taking home nuts, wine and apples from "the village." Strings of red peppers hang drying over concrete balconies.

Sofia has grown so fast—tripling its population in the 25 years since the communists took over Bulgaria—that most people were brought up somewhere else, generally on a village farm. When Bulgaria became an independent country in 1878, Sofia had 20,000 citizens. There are now apartment complexes that big.

The apartments are tiny, over-crowded, usually shared, but the forces building Sofia are powerful: the pull toward the place where all decisions are made: the push away from a mud-floored village house. People come crowding in.

Sofia makes no striking first impression. The main square, Lenin Place (which, incidentally, has no traffic lights and needs none), is surrounded by depressing Soviet-monolithic buildings housing the party headquarters, the main department store, the biggest hotel.

There are a few dozen blocks of old city, the commercial core. Then out any road from the city's centre are hundreds on hundreds of acres of post-war apartments. Some are terribly drab, some are visibly shoddy. The newest are quite handsome.

The streets are convenient, planned in advance of the buildings. They are all lined with young trees whose greenery softens the new hardness of the concrete facades.

Every street is swept and flushed daily with almost fanatic pride.

Stores, both downtown and in each apartment cluster, have large stocks of a limited range of goods. Prices are high. The stores are jammed.

There are lines for bread, vegetables and opera tickets, but it seems to be because of the way the system is set up, not because of shortages. After a while, everyone is served.

From early morning until about 10 in the evening, the sidewalks, squares and restaurants are crowded with people talking, reading, walking. Young girls wear miniskirts (called by the French name minijupes) and the old women, long peasant dresses and kerchiefs. Men often wear a business suit but no necktie.

One reason why people are on the streets is that the apartments are so crowded. According to the census, there are 1.7 persons to every room in Bulgaria. That is not quite three times as crowded as Britain or the United States.

Put another way, each Sofia citizen has 10 square meters of space. That works out to the same space as a large American living room for a family of four to cook, eat, sleep, bathe, study and do everything else that needs to be done at home.

There are few pets in Sofia. There simply is no room.

Some 60,000 Sofia families have made down payments on co-operative apartments and are awaiting their turn. The city builds 9,000 apartments a year, including those for high-priority workers. The wait may be quite a few years.

Bulgarian Communism is highly centralized and planned, orthodox and all-controlling. Bulgaria has been Russia's most faithful ally. Dissent is squashed in its earliest stages.

Central planning and control has obvious advantages. It can dictate where and how apartment houses are built. The unpaved street where the turkeys strut will be paved. For a city that is one huge construction site, Sofia is tidy. The mayor is a young architect, Georgi Sholiov, which may be one reason why new buildings are handsomer.

What all the two-stage master plans cannot do, however, is build enough housing—not now, not in five years. A lot more money would do it, but resources are spread thin when a country moves a quarter of its population from the farm to the city in 25 years (Bulgaria now is about 50-50 urban-rural).

Bulgaria is trying to build heavy industry where there was none and where some important resources are lacking. Roads are being built where there were cart tracks. Tourism is a major industry in a country that practically nobody visited a decade ago.

Economic development is a delicate balancing of urgencies. Housing doesn't do anybody much good except the people who live in it. Rents, as a matter of policy, are low. An apartment building is a public expense. The same investment in a hotel will return tourist dollars.

Technical innovation is one asnwer, according to an engineer named Kourdalanov, chief of the department of technical science and progress at the ministry of construction. The more Bulgaria can mechanize, the more units it can build. Prefabrication is one answer. Half of Sofia's buildings are now prefab; in 1975, it will be 70 per cent.

Prefabs are cheap, Kourdalanov argues, and above all, they are quick. When a new factory goes up and workers must ride all the way across town on packed trolleys, quickness in building becomes important.

The disadvantages of prefabs are recognized, too. They offer little scope for the imagination, Kourdalanov says, and not enough isolation. The meaning of "not enough isolation" was clear in a cartoon in the weekly newspaper Observer:

Patient—"I keep hearing voices, doctor."

Doctor—"That's no cause for worry. You live in a prefab."

Money deposited by families awaiting apartments is used to speed construction, in much the same manner as an American savings and loan association. The buildings will be co-operatives, built by the state construction monopoly but owned by the tenants. The Bulgarians are proud that this pattern of co-operative ownership, which accounts for about half of Sofia's new building, has been copied by the Soviet Union.

An emphasis on frugality and saving for the future is very much a part of Sofia. Bringing in vegetables from the village, keeping a few chickens, denying himself cigarettes—saving a leva (50 cents) here and a leva there, a man hopes to give his son a better life.

Few families have more than one or two children and the birth rate has dropped steadily since the war. Both parents often work.

For all the demanding and conforming patterns of life, the misfits are not visible, drunks, bums, panhandlers and teen-age gangs are not to be found. There are no shantytowns around Sofia.

There are tiny houses that people have built for themselves in the out-skirts, but they are coveted and carefully maintained. They offer a little more space and a little more privacy than a family could expect in a shared apartment.

Every Sunday there is an exodus to Mt. Vitosha, a great wooded mountain a half-hour's ride from downtown Sofia. On a beautiful day, 150,000 Sofians will be hiking, picnicking or skiing on the mountain. Others go to garden plots they rent for two levva a year on the sites of future apartment buildings.

Your travel agent can save you a lot more than money. Maybe even your whole vacation.
Part of the fun of a holiday is going somewhere new. But how can you plan a vacation in a place you've never seen before?
We suggest that before you spend any of your holiday money, you spend a little time with your travel agent.
It will rarely cost you a penny more and your travel agent could save your whole vacation.
And your travel agent can tell you what different hotels, resorts and restaurants have to offer. And what they charge for what they offer. Then you can choose what's right for you and your budget.
They can help you rent a car or find a guided tour that goes where you want to go. They can even advise you on which clothes to take along, where to write for a passport and a hundred other details.
We at CP Air can fly you almost anywhere in the world. And we want you to have a good time when you get where you're going.
If you're like most of us, you don't get more than one holiday a year. So before you go, talk to your CP Air travel agent. It costs nothing more to get more for your memories.

B.C. Pavilion at Expo '70 Stirs Widespread Interest

By BRUCE LEVETT

Nine police forces had been tipped off. Everyone was ready—except for one drowsy little toll-booth attendant on the freeway.

Somehow, he had failed to get the message.

Suddenly, out of the darkness, came a convoy half a mile long. There were wrecking trucks, cranes, repair crews. There were television lights and cameras. All the stop lights went out of kilter at once as the big carriers rolled through, toting Douglas fir trees that would tower more than 150 feet high.

British Columbia had come to Expo 70.

"The whole operation of moving the logs from the docks to the site went so smoothly that no one noticed except that poor guy in the ticket booth," recalls John Southworth, commissioner for B.C.

"His booth was on a curve. The trucks with the trees rubbed their wheels along the far curb and still the butts of the trees swept past that booth with less than a foot to spare. The whole thing was the subject of a national television program shown throughout Japan."

For B.C., this was a bonus. Canada's westernmost province isn't at Expo to show Canadians what she has. She's here to get the message across to Japanese business and the Japanese people. To this end, the B.C. budget—which was $400,000 at Expo 67 in Montreal—is closer to $1,500,000 here.

Southworth is the man responsible for getting across the message.

From West Vancouver and married to a Japanese girl, he is fluent in Japanese and is trying to absorb the Japanese philosophy of patience necessary for dealing in the Orient.

"It's called soro-soro, or step by step. Whenever I find myself becoming involved in an argument, especially when dealing with Japanese, I call for some lemon tea. We go and talk about girls, cars or baseball, then back to the negotiations but avoiding the original pitfall.

"Possibly soro-soro translates better as slowly but surely."

AVOIDS CRACKS

Southworth is fitting into the complex social situation in Japan where you give your gardener his pay in one sort of envelope and your maid hers in an envelope of a totally different type.

"I live in a Japanese house with a tatami, or matting floor," he says by way of example.

"I wouldn't dare step on the cracks between the mats. It's just not done. The maids and your Japanese guests keep an eye on you to see whether you're trying to fit in. If you are, they open themselves to you a little more; if you're not, you're regarded as a tourist just here to see Fuji, the temples, geisha and the bullet train."

The tatami superstition dates back to the days when it was considered dangerous to sleep on the joints between the mats. The tough matting would turn aside the knife of the assassin who had crept under the house, but the one so rash as to sleep over the crack had had it.

Southworth feels that the breakthrough established at Expo 67, where emphasis was equally strong on content and buildings, has been extended at Osaka.

"It appears they're trying to go a step further. Many countries have similar products so great emphasis is being placed on some pavilions to reproduce the atmosphere of the region."

CONVEYS ATMOSPHERE

This is certainly true in the case of the B.C. pavilion.

"There has been a great attempt to reproduce the B.C. atmosphere of ruggedness by the use of timber, rock and water," Southworth says.

Six months ahead of opening day the Douglas firs that had terrified the toll-booth attendants sweep against the sky. The cliff down which a 35-foot waterfall will cascade is under construction. Visitors will be able to stand inside the miniature mountain with the water of the falls forming one wall.

"They can look up to water through a glass ceiling. They will stand on floating, tethered rafts. The sound of water will be all around them and pictures of our harbors will appear in bubbles."

The message of the pavilion will be that B.C. is rugged, yet sophisticated and polished.

The B.C. pavilion already has one staunch supporter in a venerable Shinto priest.

Southworth recently was "honored guest" at a moon-watching ceremony when the priest accorded him and the B.C. pavilion a special speech.

Searching for the proper phrase to describe the pavilion in English, the priest blurted, "Hot dog!"

He explained in Japanese this meant it was "delicious."

TOWERING FIR TREES litter the site at Osaka's Expo '70 of the British Columbia pavilion. The trees, more than 150 feet high, will symbolize the richly-timbered mountain slopes of this province.

$4,000 Mail Theft

VANCOUVER (CP)—Postal authorities reported Friday that a $4,000 sapphire bracelet has been stolen from the mail.

It was one of 54 pieces of jewelry being returned to Trayling and Waters Ltd. of Vancouver from a Kamloops store. When the registered parcel arrived it had been torn and contained only 53 items.

P & O Lines Plan Hawaiian Cruises

P & O Lines, the world's biggest passenger steamship company, will set sail on its first ever Aloha Cruise this January — a short 10-day Hawaiian voyage designed specifically for those with limited holiday time.

The Alohan cruise, on the 42,000-ton superliner Oriana will start from Vancouver on the evening of Friday, Jan. 16, returning to the same port on Jan. 26.

In effect, the 10-day cruise takes up only six working days making it available to many Canadians who normally do not have the vacation time for long voyages.

Donald T. Palmer, Vancouver manager, said the line feels this new cruise idea will have particular appeal to young working people who want to escape the Canadian winter.

"The days at sea will be filled with parties, dancing, special shipboard games, swimming, delicious meals and just relaxing in one of a number of bars and lounges on board," said Palmer.

On Jan. 21, Oriana arrives in Honolulu where passengers go ashore for a day of sightseeing. In the very early hours of the following day Oriana moves on to Lahaina, a different Hawaiian setting on the Island of Maui.

Cruising home is another round of music and dancing before the ship berths in Vancouver at 6 p.m. Monday.

Fares which include all meals, accommodation and entertainment on board, range from $250 tourist class and from $510 first class.

Bus Driver Beats Premier

CASTLEDAWSON (Reuters) — Maj. James Chichester-Clark, premier of riot-torn Northern Ireland, was defeated by a bus driver when he tried to run for vice-chairman of his local Unionist party club, it was disclosed Thursday night.

The premier, who attended the meeting, was beaten for re-election by Frank Taylor, 53.

David Dawson, club secretary, said that the changed reflected the feelings of members on recent decisions of the Northern Ireland government. The members had no grievances against the premier personally, but they felt that his policies were detrimental to Northern Ireland, he said.

Reform measures taken by the government, including the disbanding of the all-Protestant B-Special police forces, have been bitterly criticized by some hard-line Unionist party members.

Gardener's Tools Deserve Servicing Before Winter

By JACK BEASTALL

The decision we have now to make is whether to put the gasoline-driven power tools into mothballs for winter or keep them in operating condition for another few weeks.

Jack

It is not an easy decision. Those who have lived on the Pacific Coast for years can recall many a Christmas Day and New Year's Day spent cutting the lawn.

If we decide to keep tools in operating condition there is one point to remember: When the job is finished (whether it is tilling or mowing) run the engine until the gas tank and carburetor are dry.

This is particularly important when the gasoline motor has the carburetor mounted on the gas tank, as most motors have today.

Projecting from the base of the carburetor body to the bottom of the gas tank is a small brass tube with a screened end. Inside the lower portion of this tube is a small ball bearing which must be free to pulsate and thereby control the amount of gasoline sucked into the carburetor.

When the motor is left for any length of time with gasoline in the tank there is a settling of waxes which, to put it in proper terms, gum up the works. The result is an engine which fails to start when needed.

●

The remedy is to remove the carburetor from the tank, carefully pull out the brass tube with pliers, soak it in solvent, and clean it out with pressure from an air hose.

The cleaning job is not difficult, but it is time consuming. When the carburetor and tank are finally replaced and the engine running there is usually no time left for using the machine.

Taking the precaution to see that tank and carburetor are completely dry before putting the machine away makes it possible to keep operating all winter if necessary.

Some types of gasoline-driven garden tools are not used during winter months. These require complete lay-away servicing to keep the engines in good condition while idle.

For the average gardener it seems best to call a service shop and have the engine (and the whole machine) properly winterized by proficient mechanics.

It is quite normal human procrastination to push the machines into garage or basement covered with dried mud and dust, and forget about them until spring.

There was a time when we could call the service man in spring and be reasonably sure of having the machines in full operating condition within a week.

But things have changed in the past decade. Many families now have a boat equipped with an outboard motor, and these marine motors have forced the home gardener and his power tools to a back corner of the machine shop.

Service centres are no longer looking for winter work to keep their mechanics occupied. With hundreds of marine motors to be serviced during the off season the gardener is often told it will take several weeks before his pet power tool can be worked on.

●

This is aggravating when spring is in the air and everything perfect for starting work on the soil.

Therefore it is up to us as gardeners to move a jump ahead of the boat owners. We can do this by having our machines in the shop now while we have no need (or no desire) to operate them. The wise gardeners have already made this a regular fall procedure.

If you prefer to do your own servicing there are a few simple rules which manufacturers of power garden tools recommend.

1. Wash down the machine with a hose, then scrub with brush and soapy water to remove dirt and grease.

2. Apply a coat of good enamel, or touch up chipped areas, to prevent rusting of the metal.

3. Remove the engine to a bench. Drain the oil and gasoline. Decarbonize the head and reseat the valves.

4. Clean the outside of the engine.

5. Put clean oil in the base and pour enough of the same grade of oil through the spark plug hole to cover the top of the piston. This keeps the rings from sticking.

●

6. Oil the control lever pivots, and pour a little light oil into the armor of all cables. A little grease on pins and cotterpins that hold the various attachments will keep these parts free for easy removal and replacement.

7. Store the machine in a dry place, covered with a sheet of plastic film.

Most of us leave the old spark plug loosely screwed into the head, but there is a lot in favor of buying a new plug and keeping the old one as a stand-by. Spark plugs become easily fouled in single cylinder engines and quite often an old plug means the loss of considerable time in trying to start an engine after a lay-up.

It is always wise to replace gaskets when re-assembling the engine. We often look upon this as an unnecessary expense but it usually pays in saved time.

The point to keep in mind is that these power garden tools do yeoman service throughout the gardening season, saving us a lot of heavy manual labor. In return they ask only a reasonable servicing before their winter rest.

Tips for the Home Gardener

PASSION FOR GARDENING grips Mrs. J. R. Smallwood, wife of the premier of Newfoundland. She spends countless hours with her plants in the greenhouse adjacent to Newfoundland House, the Smallwood home 40 miles west of St. John's. Late-blooming roses outdoors in mid-October were obviously a great joy to her. (CP Photo)

Color Change Set For Canada Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — A color change for Canada's six-cent regular stamp and commemorative stamps honoring the Northwest Territories Centennial and Louis Riel have been incorporated into the Canada Post Office 1970 stamp program.

The six-cent stamp changes from orange to black and will be available Jan. 7, 1970. The new color will be easily detectable by electronic recognition systems used in new cancelling equipment.

The new stamps are the first results of the Design Advisory Committee, responsible for introducing several prominent Canadian artists to postage stamp design.

Release dates for the 1970 program are: Jan. 27, six-cent Manitoba Centennial and Northwest Territories Centennial; Feb. 18, six-cent international biological program; March 18, 25-cent Expo 70; April 15, six-cent Henry Kelsey; May 13, 10 and 15-cent United Nations anniversary.

June 19, six-cent Louis Riel; July 14, six-cent Alexander Mackenzie; Aug. 12, six-cent Group of Seven anniversary; Sept. 18, six-cent Sir Oliver Mowat; Oct. 7, Christmas issue; Nov. 4, six-cent Sir Donald Alexander Smith.

The Manitoba and Northwest Territories Centennial stamps will be available in those districts for a six-month period of sale.

The Expo and United Nations special issues will be available throughout Canada for three months from the date of issue.

'Hope for Crippled' Theme

By ROBERT G. OLIPHANT

Hope for the crippled and encouragement for their rehabilitation are the theme and purpose of a 6-cent commemorative to be placed on sale in a few days by the United States.

The first-day ceremonies will be held Nov. 20 in Columbus, Ohio, during the 50th anniversary convention of the National Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

●

Mark English, the creator of the U.S. 1968 Lucy Stone stamp, designed this multicolor. The vignette, simulating a stroboscopic photograph, shows four silhouettes of a boy — one sitting in a wheelchair, two rising from it, and one walking away. Below this, in capitals, is "Hope for the Crippled," and beneath it, also in upper case type, is "U.S. Postage 6 Cents." The colors of this vertical-in-format pictorial are: green, blue (two shades), yellow, red, white and black.

The U.S. will issue a 45-cent blue, red and white special delivery stamp Nov. 21 in New York City. Designed by Norman Ives, it features two arrows, the white one pointing to the left, and the blue one pointing to the right.

●

"Special delivery" in red is in the lower left hand corner, and inscribed along part of the right hand side is a blue "United States." All letters are in Gothic capitals. Appearing in the top right hand corner is a blue "45." The format is horizontal, and it was printed on the Giori press. (The U.S. special delivery rate increase from 30 cents to 45 cents went into effect last July 14.)

The Kingdom of Norway Nov. 26 will release two stamps commemorating the centennial of the birth of Queen Maud (d. 1938). She was a daughter of King Edward VII (1841-1910) and Queen Alexandra (1844-1925), and was the consort of Norway's King Haakon VII (1872-1957). The present King of Norway, Olav V, who was born in England, is their son.

On Nov. 17, St. Christopher-Nevis-Anguilla will issue 20c, 25c, 40c and 50c pictorials for Christmas.

Christmas adhesives from the Bahamas came out Oct. 15. The values are: 3, 11c, 12c and 15c.

The 24th world congress of the Junior Chamber of Commerce International was observed by three Trinidad and Tobago stamps issued Nov. 2. The denominations are: 6c, 30c and 40c.

If you obtain the Gibraltar military uniforms set released Nov. 6, I suggest that you take a good look at them. An inscription on each gummed side explains what is shown on the other side.

●

Philately can be rewarding, informative, stimulating and therefore a mode of escape from boredom, tension and depression. Also, the larger-than-life world shown on many postage stamps can be entertaining to the imagination. The preceding combined with other stamp attributes such as the many fields they cover, investment, compactness, and their general low cost and availability have made philately the biggest collecting pastime today.

Government To Move on Squatters

Legislation to remove squatters from crown land in general and Wreck Bay in particular is being prepared by the provincial government.

Lands Minister Ray Williston said Thursday the government has received complaints from residents in the Long Beach area about hippies living on Wreck Bay, just south of Long Beach on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

He said he wasn't clear precisely how the law would be changed to keep the squatters off the beach but that the measures would be contained in amendments to Land Act in the 1970 session of the legislature.

He said present laws of trespass don't provide adequate means of dealing with people who live on the beach in makeshift habitations.

Complaints about hippies were received from the Alberni-Clayoquot regional district board, Williston said.

BUILDING TRIPLES

NORTH COWICHAN — The value of building permits for October this year was nearly triple the corresponding month in 1968, clerk-administrator A. VandeCastyen said Friday.

Permit values were $446,983 compared with $159,000, he said. The total for the first 10 months of the year was $3,046,386, up $695,658 from 1968.

A total of 17 new homes were started, 16 in School District 65 and one in School District 67, for a total of $305,683. Residential repairs added up to $25,750.

Commercial building permits were $11,900 and repairs totalled $2,650.

WEEK'S WORK

Proceed with the planting of trees and shrubs. Put in accent plants of color and form such as pampas, giant-rhubarb (gunnera manicata) if large property, smoke-bush (cotinus coggygria) and even bamboo if it can be controlled.

If outdoor planters still empty, consider winter heathers and early crocuses planted at the same time.

Chrysanthemums should be cut to within two inches of soil after flowering, then lift roots and pack into coldframe covered with glass, but open to air. Plants will be source of cuttings in early April, or may be pulled apart for new plants in spring. Large plants left in the ground do not flower well next year.

Lily bulbs becoming available now should be planted at once if soil is suitable. If too wet, put bulbs into deep pots of rich sandy soil and keep cold somewhere outdoors until spring.

To lift parsnips with long roots — dig trench each side of row until full length of roots exposed. Then gently pry out. Remember this area will be choice spot for carrots or leeks next year.

If trees cannot be planted at once, and have bare roots, heel into a trench firmly, and water. Protect from hard frost.

Buffalo Sale Tempts Farmer When Sheep Fail

By MAUREEN DUFFUS

There was a story in the paper earlier this week about the less-than-successful results of buffalo farming. Buffalo present problems.

I was delighted to hear this, because a while ago my husband saw a notice in the paper about the sale of surplus buffalo and seriously considered switching from sheep.

Fortunately he remembered the fences.

Our fences aren't even sheep-proof, and would certainly not restrain buffalo.

The idiocy of even thinking of buying a buffalo or two is explained by the fact that all sorts of eccentrics who live in the country keep looking for a way to make money without actually working.

The insanity follows a similar pattern in most cases.

First, the gentleman farmer thinks it's time that rabbit meat had a popular revival, so he buys a few cuddly little bunnies and a book, Rabbit Raising Made Easy.

The bunnies grow up to be mean and dangerous, and the book forgot to mention you need a pair of chain mail gauntlets to handle them. It lied about other things, too, and so the rabbit raiser switches to poultry.

Disillusion sets in when the ducklings die of pneumonia because they can't get out of their dish of drinking water, and the hens start eating their eggs before the child who is supposed to do the chores gets around to collecting them.

Facts Misrepresented

Next come sheep, because somebody said they were no trouble at all.

Eager and hopeful, the gullible farmer tries again, until the year the lambs all die from exposure and the mothers end up in the freezer instead.

Next the high cost of beef makes it obvious that cattle raising is the only answer. A cow is acquired, and makes a nice friendly pet.

But again there is disillusion when Squire does the farm accounts and discovers cow has cost over $200 before she's even managed to get pregnant in spite of frequent visits to the bull next door.

So what next?

Buffalo?

Insanity must stop somewhere.

I'm glad there are so many drawbacks to raising buffalo. If someone had said they were absolutely no trouble at all, I shudder to think of the temptation.

Actually, there is no solution to the problem of making a profit on a small farm.

One time, during a phone call to an expert at the department of agriculture about a rare disease that had attacked the hens, I asked if there weren't easier ways of farming, preferably profitably.

"Ma'am," he said, "If you find any let me know. My wife and I have been trying to find one for years."

AROUND THE WORLD IN 365 DAYS

Portable accommodation for Doug and Carol Ann Kielau is this voluminous nylon tent. Carol Ann, 24, is holding the bag it folds into. They'll be pitching it in 40 different cities this year after they leave Monday for a world tour. Doug, 25, left his job as geographer with the provincial government and Carol Ann quit nursing at St. Joseph's Hospital so the two could carry out a life-long dream. "When I married Doug I gave up a trip around the world with a girlfriend. When he married me he gave up a trip with a boyfriend. Now, we're going together," says Carol Ann. (Photo by Robin Clarke)

Hotel With No Hot Water Favorite of the Famous

OTTAWA (CP) — Marie Kingston is a hotel manager with a difference. She copes with everything from publicity to plumbing on a hideaway island in the West Indies.

She has also organized hotel service with staff who had never seen a bar, a set table or beds with sheets and pillow cases.

When she arrived in 1967 to help open Hotel Frangipani on Bequia in the Grenadine West Indies, there was no electricity and there still is not hot water.

"But the customers don't get angry," the former Ottawa woman said during a recent visit to Canada. "There's something about the island—it's easy-going; nobody complains."

AGA KHAN, TOO

Non-complainers have included Canada's Governor-General Michener, who ate a whale steak "and enjoyed it very much," the Aga Khan and a number of British MPs.

To Miss Kingston's regret, though, the unsophisticated pace of the 4,000 persons on the island may soon be altered.

Signs of jet-set invasion include the house Princess Margaret is building on a neighboring island, the Onassis yacht Christina which has sailed by, and the sale of his home by Lord Avon, former British prime minister Sir Anthony Eden—token of the dying tranquillity.

Miss Kingston's path to her island home has been the route of an ambitious traveller. It started with an overseas trip right after graduation as an English major from the University of Toronto in 1961.

HASTY DEPARTURE

It has included some hair-raising adventures.

There was the wad of money she found on a path near the Oracle at Delphi in Greece. On spending it, she discovered it was counterfeit. The mistake resulted in her rapid eviction from the Hellenic haven.

Then there was the spear-throwing episode in Tanganyika when a tribe made war on the truck in which she was riding. Unhurt but mystified, she was unable to find out the root of the antagonism.

Beginning in 1964, Miss Kingston spent 18 months in the Kalahari desert as part of an anthropological expedition studying bushmen.

The expedition, sponsored by Harvard University, was a far cry from another interesting job she got relaying messages on the Johannesburg stock exchange in South Africa.

After her African visit, Miss Kingston returned to Ottawa to work in the information office of the New Zealand high commission.

In 1966 she decided to join friends, a married couple who were opening the Bequia hotel.

"I was just there to help my friends get the place off the ground. I had no intention of staying, but I'm still there."

Books

Dieters need all the help they can get and THE CHATELAINE DIET BOOK goes all out to help them. Editor Joan Fielden prefaces the recipes with articles (by herself and doctors) that are neither too encouraging nor too discouraging. Ninety per cent of all dieters regain lost weight, they say, but don't give up hope. The book contains all the information needed for an appetite retraining program. As well as 500 recipes (with calories per serving listed along with serving size) the book features sample menus with caloric values for every meal of the day, and food analysis information on 180 food products—by brand and serving size. The recipes themselves include everything from soup to after-dinner drink, alcoholic and otherwise. (McClelland and Stewart Ltd., $6.95.)

Maxis Prove Popular For Practical Reasons

SASKATOON (CP) — Despite predictions that the maxi-coat wouldn't be popular in Western Canada, it is currently the hottest item—or perhaps one should say warmest item — in women's-wear sales in the Prairie provinces.

One woman who has just purchased a maxi said she decided she was going to keep warm this winter, "and this is the answer."

Another purchaser said she is in favor of short skirts, but she, too, wanted to keep warm.

"And the long coat is the practical answer," she said. "It's better than high boots and cold knees."

Women's-wear buyers in Saskatoon, Edmonton, Winnipeg and Regina report unexpected numbers of women are buying the long coats. Calgarians are apparently responding more conservatively, a survey showed.

"When they start to wear them on the street, I think the maxi will sell very quickly," an Edmonton buyer said. "Funny, but once you see them worn you get to like the look."

In other years, new fashions have been slow to catch on in Western Canada cities, with styles sometimes two years behind Montreal and Toronto.

Another Edmonton buyer said perhaps the quick interest in the maxi-coat was because it is practical in the Prairie climate.

"Although you don't often associate women's fashions with practicability," he added.

He said it might be that long winter coats would be a lasting fashion, just as women's high boots have become.

Boots of a comfortable and practical winter length have established themselves in the market, he said. "Not the high, high boots, but those between two and four inches below the knee."

Mrs. C. L. Heath, assistant buyer for the Hudson's Bay Co. in Edmonton, said their coat department has been doing a fantastic business. They brought in a small test order, which sold out almost immediately, and have placed large orders twice since then.

Mrs. Heath says the coats are selling mainly to young women, but that a number of women in their 30s and 40s are buying them as well.

"The older women are buying the maxi as a second coat," Mrs. Heath said. "School girls and college girls are buying it as the one-and-only winter coat."

Another Edmonton buyer reported that his department store was selling them, although not many are seen on the streets yet.

He said women might accept the long coats for winter without having any major change in skirt lengths and continue to wear short, comfortable skirts on dresses and summer clothes.

"But I wouldn't place any bets on women's fashions," he said.

With DOROTHY FRASER

The nicest gifts come in Wilson boxes! . . .

Maybe you think of Wilson's as a great store to buy clothes . . . which, of course, it most assuredly is . . . but right now it's something more . . . a regular Ali Baba's cave of wonderful things for Christmas giving . . . things that have been gathered from the four corners of the earth . . . and whose common denominators are quality . . . unusualness . . . and genuine value for the money, whether the article costs $1 or $100! . . . So we do urge you to visit Wilson's soon and browse to your heart's content . . . Just to mention a few things which would make delightful gifts . . . Liberty and Jacqmar scarves in heavenly colors and designs . . . Cashmere and mohair stoles . . . Wool scarf and gloves sets from Switzerland . . . the former long and skinny for that extra dash of winter smartness . . . A big new shipment of gloves . . . lined with wool or silk . . . wool gloves with leather palms, or warm driving gloves with crocheted backs . . . devastatingly smart gauntlet gloves . . . Liberty compacts . . . Floris pomanders and pot-pourri jars and perfumes . . . English bedroom slippers . . . some new quilted nylon dressing gowns femininely befrilled . . . Onyx marble cigarette boxes, vases and ashtrays from Italy . . . Hand-made candles from Austria . . . complete with a metal holder for only $5 . . . And these are just a sampling of gift suggestions . . . Go see them all at . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government Street, 383-7177.

Exciting hats . . . smart coats . . . at sale prices . . .

We do think it nice when stores put things on sale before Christmas . . . instead of waiting till afterwards, by which time some of us have spent all our money . . . So those of you who'd like a smart new hat . . . or a really nice winter coat . . . can say "thank you" to Miss Frith's right now . . . then hurry in to the store to make your selection . . . All of Miss Frith's "better" hats . . . and we saw some downright exciting ones when were in on Thursday . . . have been reduced by one-third . . . so you can allow yourself to succumb to temptation with a clear conscience . . . Then there are two other groups of millinery with price tags snipped to $8.99 and $5.99 . . . We noticed one-of-a-kind hats in velvet, soleil, moufflon, satin . . . petals and feathers . . . (one beautiful emerald moufflon reduced to a ridiculously low $13.32!) . . . Do get yourself a new hat for the holiday season . . . you'll look twice as smart as the hatless gals! . . . Miss Frith's have put a number of lovely coats on sale, too . . . at one-third off the regular price . . . Many are collared and trimmed with mink in various shades . . . or with white or Norwegian fox . . . all in the height of fashion . . . Miss Frith Millinery & Fashions, 1619 Douglas Street, 383-7181.

Cardin's latest is a fringed knit throw slung over the hips and worn as a skirt.

Boots for all ages . . .

No question about it, boots are fashion's darlings . . . and here's one instance where high fashion and practicality and cold weather vie for the upper hand! . . . This year Munday's have their biggest selection of boots ever . . . a few pairs going all the way up to size 11 . . . There's a very smart, knee-high boot that's guaranteed waterproof . . . sole and upper are made in one piece . . . of vinyl which looks exactly like antiqued brown leather . . . Cuban heel and pile lining . . . and just $17.95 . . . If your feet get extra cold, you'll like the sheepskin-lined, suede boot by Clarke . . . very warm, and also guaranteed waterproof . . . $29.95 . . . We saw some quite terrific Brevitt boots . . . one high one of beautifully soft, brown leather with elasticized and gored back . . . another mid-calf height boot in black or brown . . . with gored instep . . . and a polished antique leather with lower heel . . . For the popular wet look there's crushed patent (really vinyl) in a very soft and well-fitting boot with foam cushion lining . . . and fashion colors like gold, beige, tan, white and black . . . $28.95 . . . Some handsome Bandolinos from Italy . . . a low pant boot and a couple of others in mid-calf and knee heights . . . One very popular style is mottled camel shade . . . knee high with elastic in the top . . . and leather soft as butter . . . $39.95 . . . Munday's, 1203 Douglas Street, 383-2211.

There's an acute shortage of women's panties in Czechoslovakia . . . a problem given front-page space in the Communist press.

New books full of drama and excitement . . .

Know something? . . . If you've got the kind of family and friends who have a taste for reading . . . you could do your entire Christmas shopping in one fell swoop at the Book Nook . . . because Book Nook have got all their new books in now . . . and they're all marvellous . . . and there's something to delight every member of the family! . . . What sports-loving man or boy would not go for "Hockey" . . . a gloriously exciting book with 140 full-color action photos by Harvey Barclay and text by Trent Frayne? . . . Another humdinger is "The Canadian Indian" . . . an illustrated history of the great tribes of Canada, by Fraser Symington . . . A "must" for anyone interested in Canadian history . . . is Bartlett's "Canada" . . . a completely fascinating book full of steel engravings and drawings showing the land our pioneers knew . . . Other new books we could hardly bear to tear ourselves away from are J. B. Priestley's "The Prince of Pleasure and His Regency" . . . Farley Mowat's "The Boat Who Wouldn't Float" . . . a ribald, personal adventure that's pure fun . . . Gerald Durrell's "Birds, Beasts and Relatives" . . . a delightful book everyone, including us, is simply dying to read . . . and two dramatic Indian legend books by Elizabeth Cleaver . . . "How Summer Came To Canada" and "The Mountain Goats of Tsimshian" . . . Children as well as grown-ups will love these! . . . The Book Nook, 10 Centennial Square, 386-0813.

Patent leather handbags should be cleaned with a mild solution of vinegar and water . . . polished with a touch of vaseline on a soft cloth.

Here's something unique for Christmas giving . . .

Browsing around Montague Bridgman's the other day . . . in search of "ideas" . . . as the saying goes . . . we came across something we think would make a dandy Christmas gift . . . It's a one-unit pepper mill and salt shaker which hails from Denmark . . . and there's probably nothing else like it in Victoria because Mr. Lort came upon it himself when he was in Denmark earlier this year . . . This . . . or rather, we should say these . . . because there are a number of them . . . in either teak or dark polished rosewood . . . are quite unique . . . Held right side up, they grind your pepper freshly (and you know how much better freshly-ground pepper tastes!) . . . turned upside down, out comes the salt . . . The teak ones are in two sizes . . . the smaller about four inches high, the other, nearly eight . . . and they're priced at $5.95 and $6.95, respectively . . . The rosewood shaker is in the small size only, and this costs $6.96 . . . It's always so nice to discover something that has the triple qualities of being different, useful and easy on the pocketbook! . . . P.S. . . . if you're anything like us, you'll want to snag one of these all-in-one salt shakers and pepper grinders for yourself, too! . . . No use leaving everything to Santa Claus! . . . Montague Bridgman Ltd., 811 Government Street, 383-0821.

Sweater dresses . . . in every color of the rainbow . . . are enjoying ever-increasing popularity.

A "beautiful" gift . . .

We don't know about you . . . but one of the most welcome gifts we've ever received was a gift certificate to spend in any way we liked at a really good beauty salon back East . . . a memorable experience even after all this time . . . so we're happy to tell you that such gift certificates . . . in denominations from $5 to $25 . . . may be purchased from the House of Glamour . . . certainly one of Victoria's nicest salons . . . and used to pay for any beauty service your little heart desires . . . or as part payment on hairpieces or wigs, etc. . . . (You might make a note of this on your Christmas list . . . or maybe just circle this paragraph and leave it lying around in a strategic spot?) . . . You could get a lift with a completely new hair styling or color . . . manicures . . . facials . . . in fact, any beauty service you can name . . . terrific booster for the feminine morale! . . . If you haven't already got your own favorite stylist at House of Glamour, do try one of the new gals . . . There's Grace . . . one of the most talented young hairdressers in Victoria . . . now in the H of G downtown store . . . and Irene, an award-winner from Calgary . . . Both are featuring the longer look in hairstyling . . . and they're really GOOD! . . . House of Glamour, 658 View Street, 386-6188, and 1639 Fort Street, 386-7715.

To scent lingerie, put a few drops of bath oil in the last rinse water.

Colorful coats for petites . . .

Plaids and cheeks and boldly patterned tweeds are very attractive and very much in the forefront of fashion this season . . . but let's face it, they're not everyone's cup of tea . . . and petites often look better in plain fabrics . . . So when we saw some new topcoats at the Madam and Eve Shop this week, we immediately thought of you smaller women who like uncluttered styles in solid colors . . . These new coats are really pretty . . . small collars, set-in belts . . . mostly single-breasted with patch pockets . . . We noticed white, rose, yellow and red as well as turquoise and green . . . one coat is a lovely deep grape shade . . . All of them are pure wool, and warm enough for winter's worst . . . If you're thinking in terms of maxi coats . . . M and E have several that are worth a second look . . . One very smart brown maxi has pants with it, and a separate, long-fringed scarf . . . Another maxi coat we like is styled like a trench coat, belted at the waist . . . and there's a grey one in size 13, and a brown, size 9 . . . Among M and E's accessories are some very intriguing perfume rings . . . which can be worn either as scarf rings or finger rings, depending on your mood . . . The big "jewels" open up on a receptacle containing solidified perfume . . . Nice! . . . Madam and Eve Shop, Trounce Alley, 383-7177.

Housewives' Panel Fights Discrimination

TORONTO (CP) — Molly Posen, an attractive blonde grandmother, is demonstrating how one woman with neither funds nor professional experience can help combat racial and religious discrimination in her own community.

With four or five housewives of diverse racial and religious backgrounds—known as the Panel of Canadian Women—she appears before several public gatherings a month.

"We tell them what it's like raising a family when you're a Jew, an Indian, a Japanese or a black."

She says audiences find it easy to identify with the panel because they are ordinary people, rather than experts in discrimination.

The setting can be a church hall, a service club, an ethnic club or a home-and-school meeting.

The meeting opens with each of the panelists giving a brief talk.

"We come as friends and neighbors," says Mrs. Posen in her opening remarks. "Only by frank communication can we dispel fears, myths and misconceptions about people of other races and religions."

She says Canadians are mostly unaware of their prejudices and seldom utter racial slurs in public.

"But what's really important are the things said or demonstrated behind closed doors. Children learn prejudice at home."

She tells how a six-year-old playmate of her daughter's explained that they were moving "to get away from the Jews."

Catherine Searles, a dentist's wife, tells how her parents tried to protect her from anti-Negro sentiment.

"But they weren't around all the time to stop the name-calling—names like black cloud, coon, nigger and chocolate face. When I was a kid, I'd become furious and fight back. My children today get called the same names but I advise them not to respond by fighting. I tell them that all people are different in some way and get called names at times. But I think it's a sad commentary that I have to make these weak excuses for bigotry."

Rose Atkinson, a Cree Indian brought up on the eastern shore of James Bay, tells how her parents placed her and her brother under the care of missionaries when the family faced starvation.

PAY WAS LESS

"Often I cried myself to sleep, knowing that my parents still slept in a leaky tent or perhaps at the very moment were on the verge of starvation."

Kimmy Takimoto, a Japanese who now instructs handicapped children, recalls that she was paid $50 less than an equally qualified colleague because a principal felt he was taking a chance hiring her.

Apart from a donation of postage and printed matter, as well as encouragement from the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, the panel has paid its own way for two years.

Now they want to expand their activities to other Canadian communities. They are looking for more panelists, among them poor people.

"The poor are also an abused and misunderstood minority," says Mrs. Posen.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Silence Is Cruel

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 and have a problem I can't solve. I asked my mother and she said to ask you.

About a month ago my best girl friend (I'll call her Pam) introduced me to her steady, Tom. I liked him, but considered him unavailable, so I did nothing to encourage him. Tom must have liked me, too, because he started calling me. Since then we've been seeing a lot of each other. He never told Pam that he was seeing me, but Pam started telling me that she is worried about losing Tom because he hasn't been calling her lately. Naturally I didn't think it was my place to tell Pam why.

I asked Tom to tell Pam that he's been dating me but he says he just can't hurt her that way. I don't feel guilty because I didn't try to get him away from Pam. It's just one of those things that happens. A boy gets tired of a girl and finds another one.

I don't want to lose Pam's friendship as we've been close friends for years. And I really like Tom and don't want to lose him either. What should I do?—In The Middle

DEAR IN: You'd better make up your mind whether you want Pam's friendship or Tom, because as I size it up, you can't keep both. When Tom first called you, knowing he was Pam's steady, you should have refused to date him until he leveled with Pam. As for his reluctance to hurt her by telling her the truth—horseradish! He'll hurt her more by not telling her. And you'll have been a party to it. Shame.

DEAR ABBY: I am 21 and my fiance is 22. I am living at home for the first time in three years, am going to school and hope to be a teacher. My fiance is presently working on his master's degree.

My problem is my parents who refuse to leave my fiance and me alone together for more than ten minutes. After three years we have accepted that fact although we are made to feel like a couple of juvenile delinquents.

My parents are planning to go away on a two-week vacation, but they insist that I go, too. They won't let my 17-year-old brother stay home either. They won't let me stay with my girl friend, even though I promised I wouldn't let my boyfriend in the house. This puts me in an awkward position since I know how much they want to visit the relatives, and how much I don't.

My fiance and I have never given my parents any reason to doubt our moral standards. We don't even hold hands in the presence of others. They say they trust us. Their cry is, "What will the neighbors think?" What do you think, Abby?—Nameless, Please

DEAR NAMELESS: I think the neighbors couldn't care less, and if that's the reason for you parents' unrealistic attitude, shame on them.

TRY THIS

By PAULINE GRAVES

Imagination Goes to Work

Why settle for the same kind of a house that everyone else has, when yours can be different? All you need are ideas and an open mind. If a room has no architectural details, add them. A room seems too small, install mirrors, boldly. And if you limit your budget, you will stretch your imagination and exercise your brain. Try it and see.

In this bedroom you see a prime example of imagination at work. Instead of the usual headboard and tables arrangement, boxlike floor to ceiling cases on each end of the wall create a recess between them, planned, of course, for the width of a bed.

A mirror makes the recess seem even deeper, and the imaginative touch is the wrought iron suspended from the ceiling on sturdy hooks. This could have been a part of a gate, a fence or a railing, but it was the right size and of interesting design!

The cases provide the architectural detail that the room missed. Each is 53 inches wide, the wall in back covered with pink textured cotton. One by twelves come out from the wall on each side of the bed, and facings of 1x8s on the sides and across the tops give a box-like appearance. One by one's support glass shelves.

The bottom shelf, however, looks heavy, built out 4 inches from the front, with a 7-inch facing to hide the fluorescent tube behind. The light shines down on the floor and up through textured glass, illuminating the clear glass shelves above also.

SEW SIMPLE

By EUNICE FARMER

Dear Eunice Farmer,

My daughter will be married just after Christmas and I have offered to make the dresses for the bridesmaids. We have spent a lot of time looking through the pattern books and can't find the kind of patterns that are shown in the brides' magazines. Why don't the pattern companies have more patterns for weddings?—Mrs. C.-W. T.

Dear Mrs. C. W. T.:

They have explained to me that patterns are designed according to the demand. Perhaps if there were more complaints along this line, you would find more of these patterns.

I would suggest you choose any kind of pattern that you would like and simply extend the skirt full-length. Often a dress that is pictured in the long version looks perfect in a shorter version and the reverse of this would be true also. Try to get your ideas from the brides' magazines and then perhaps you will have to combine two patterns for the desired effect. Above all keep the bridesmaids' dresses simple, because you don't want to detract from the bride.

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I found a perfectly beautiful pattern that was just what I had been looking for and then to my disappointment found that the pattern only came in half-sizes. Could I possibly make some adjustments and still use this type of pattern?—Mrs. M. M.

Dear Mrs. M. M.:

Yes, in most cases you can use a half-size pattern. The main difference between these sizes is the length of the bodice from the shoulder to the waist. Since very few patterns have an actual waistline, you should compare your measurements from the shoulder to the waist and add additional length if necessary. There is also more ease in the bustline than you will find on most patterns.

The Wonderful World of Animals

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: The other day, my husband tried to give our dog, Shann, a dose of mineral oil. He held Shann's head to the side and almost straight up, pried the mouth open and dumped it in. Shann held his breath till he turned purple, tried to gasp for air, and then spit the oil all over my husband. He was furious! And Shann wasn't much happier. I don't think he got any of it down. There must be an easier way to give liquid to a dog?—T.T.

DEAR T.T.: Your husband was putting it down the right end. But beyond that he wasn't doing much right. First, the head should be in a comparatively straight line with the body (kinking it to one side makes passing of anything down the esophagus difficult or impossible). Then the head should be raised slightly — just above level. Raising it too high makes it about as easy to pour the liquid into the trachea as into the esophagus. (Have you ever tried to swallow with your head tipped way back?)

It's far better to pour in the medication at the side of the jaw, and in the pocket formed by the juncture of the upper and lower lips. Medicine placed here will flow between the teeth into the mouth and can be swallowed leisurely and easily by the dog. (Another neat trick is to try swallowing with your mouth open—that doesn't work very well, either.) And one more thing: when using plain mineral oil, flavor it a little by shaking in something tasty. The oil has no flavor and might slide down the "windpipe" and cause choking before Shann is even aware it is in his mouth.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Swivel is my girl's pesky pet owl. Two things about him fascinate me in particular: (1) How, when his eyes are so big, can he have room for anything else in that little head of his? (2) How far can he actually turn his head around and why is it set on so loose?—J.McK.

DEAR J.McK.: The more nocturnal the animal (at least those with good vision) the bigger the eyes become. This night-adapted eye tends to have a large, nearly spherical lens, a large pupil, and a large anterior eye chamber. But there isn't necessarily room in the head for the entire eye to assume a nearly spherical shape. As you've observed, Swivel's head is too darn small to hold a set of eyes that big—and still leave room for essentials—such as a birdbrain.

He solves this problem by coming up with a tubular shaped eye, considerably larger in front than in the back, and somewhat elongated! This kind of eye cannot move about as yours can. To compensate for this restricted field of vision, Swivel is able to rotate his head at least 270 degrees. This capability obviously eliminates blind spots as long as Swivel's dome doesn't stop rotating. Even with this degree of flexibility, his head is surprisingly well-secured.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Having discovered my lovebird prefers eggshell to cuttlebone, I wonder if I'm doing the right thing in giving it to him? I can't imagine why not. It seems a more natural source of calcium for a bird than the backbone of a squid.—A.A.

DEAR A.A.: Eggshell is, indeed, a good source of mineral for your lovebird. But because eggshells may carry potentially harmful organisms, it would be prudent to bake the shells, and any attached bacteria, in the oven for a while prior to proferring them to your psittacine pal.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Slaves Found Freedom

By BOB BOWMAN

While Negroes, Indians, and others have suffered from racial discrimination in Canada, it is true, nevertheless, that the north star led many Negro slaves to freedom in Canada. Many dramatic stories could be written and filmed about the "underground railway" that got 40,000 slaves across the border between Niagara and Windsor. One of the leaders was Reverend Josiah Henson whose experiences inspired Harriet Beecher Stowe to write "Uncle Tom's Cabin." He settled near Dresden, Ontario. Another leader was Reverend William King who founded the "City of God" near Chatham, Ontario.

The end of slavery in British North America quickly followed its abolition in Upper Canada in 1793.

A number of Negroes made colorful places for themselves in Canadian history. Deas Island in the Fraser River Delta, now part of an express highway between British Columbia and the U.S., was called after a Negro foreman of a fish cannery there.

Grant MacEwan, now Lieutenant Governor of Alberta, devoted an entire chapter to John Ware, in his book "Fifty Mighty Men." He was one of the greatest prairie pioneers.

The Maritimes were also a mecca for Negro slaves, many of whom managed to get there after the War of 1812. On November 15, 1857, Able Seaman William Hall of Avonport, N.S., was awarded the Victoria Cross for valor in the relief of Lucknow, India. Hall was a son of one of the slaves who got to Nova Scotia from Virginia. He was the first Nova Scotian, the first Canadian sailor, and the first Negro ever to win the Victoria Cross.

Hall served in HMS Rodney during the Indian Mutiny and volunteered to go ashore as a member of a gun crew to help break the siege of Lucknow. His position came under heavy fire and men were killed all around him. Hall kept the gun firing and one of his shots made a hole in the defences that enabled the British force to get through.

Hall later served on board HMS Hero that brought Edward, Prince of Wales to Canada in 1860.

Walk by Torchlight Part of City Protest

More than 125 people participated in the Victoria Moratorium Committee's torchlight walk from the Legislative Buildings to the City Hall in the grey Friday night fog.

The walk was to outline to elected representatives the local concern for ending the Vietnam war and specifically, Canadian involvement in United States foreign policy.

The foggy evening walk finished a day which started at the University of Victoria Student Union Building where films and a teach-in were conducted. The local moratorium coincides with similar protests in the U.S. over the last three days.

A panel discussing Canada's role in the war Friday afternoon at the university pointed out Canadian submersion in American policy.

Panelist Bob Munroe, a student at the Institute of Adult Studies, said Canada is involved in the Vietnam war due to economic subjugation by the Americans and a decisive break should be made by Canadians in establishing "a policy in the eyes of peace."

Canadians "seemingly accept death", panelist Brian Campbell of the University of British Columbia pointed out, by upsetting the ecological balance through biological warfare research.

Dr. Charles Burchill, a panelist and Royal Roads history professor, dismissed a militant solution as "a romantic idea." He contended that giving up the affluent way of life, which makes Canada a part of the American economic and political systems is a better solution.

Dr. Ron Kirkby of the Uvic philosophy department urged a cultural revolution rather than a militant one.

"Maybe we should abolish the English language and speak French," he suggested, in creating a different culture.

Moratorium activities wrapped up today with a half-hour silent vigil at the cenotaph in front of the Legislative Buildings.

Store Stabbing Jails Shoplifter

A 19-year-old youth was sentenced in Victoria court Friday to six months in jail for wounding a store detective with a spring knife after he was caught shoplifting.

John G. Flett of 840 Victoria Avenue was also sentenced to six months for being in possession of a dangerous weapon and three months for theft over $50.

The sentences will run concurrently.

Flett was said to have stabbed store detective Gordon Manthorpe in the stomach causing a wound about three-quarters of an inch deep and half an inch wide.

The wounding occurred in the Bay parking lot on Sept. 30 when Manthorpe apprehended Flett for stealing five pairs of trousers valued at $64.88.

"Manthorpe made a perfectly legal arrest," said Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre, "and what does the accused do? He stabs him."

The judge said the fact that Flett pulled out a spring knife and used it was more than a momentary aberration.

"Why does he carry a spring knife? For potential use like other people carry a revolver."

Judge de St. Jorre said the shoplifting charge was bad enough, but he would have considered a period of probation had it been the only charge.

"This is a very serious crime," he added. "Manthorpe's body is worth more than all the goods of the Bay together, and he is entitled to protection from the law."

Judge Accelerates His Parking Tickets

Vernon Kohan of 3605 Cedar Hill Cross Road was fined $66 on Friday for non-payment of nine parking tickets.

"I'm going to accelerate these fines a bit," said Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre.

He fined Kohan $3.50 for the first two tickets and $5 for the next two. The fifth and sixth tickets cost him $7.50 each; the seventh and eighth, $10 each; the ninth, $12.50.

"We'll add $3.50 for the warrant that was issued against you, making a total of $66," the judge said.

"You seem to regard this as a sort of joke, but it isn't."

Steak, Mushrooms

A woman was convicted in court Friday of stealing four steaks, two cans of mushrooms and three pairs of socks from Eaton's store.

Margaret McArthur, no address available, told a store detective she was broke and her husband was not working.

Judge William Ostler remanded for her sentence until Nov. 21 and called for a presentence report.

Music, Dance And Skit

A great variety of talent ranging from 11-year-olds to young adults, filled the McPherson Playhouse stage Friday night, entertaining a large audience with music, dance, a skit and baton twirling.

The contest was the third annual event sponsored in aid of the Children's International Summer Village and directed by Jerry Gosley.

Prizes were awarded in two categories — 16 years of age and under, and over 16.

Winners in the first category were folk singer-guitarist Valerie Denford, classical dancer Gillian Regehr and accordionist Rolf Gilstein.

In the senior category the Alumni Singers came top. This group which formerly sang under Don Kyle, now direct themselves, performing with song, movement and some accordion accompaniment.

Second and third winners were soprano Joyce Stratton and the vocal duo of Ron Webb and Barry Ruddick.

The Reg Stofer Memorial Trophy which goes to the contestant — individual or group entry — showing most personality and effort, was awarded to the Alumni Singers. The presentation was made by Eric Stofer.

Judges were Barry Bowman, Rodney Webster, Sylvia Hosie, Audrey Johnson and Al Denoni.

The show was emceed by two popular entertainers, Irene Henderson and Art Budd and was opened by the Smile Show Gang and Jerry Gosley in a number entitled Down With Frowns.

Special guests were the Amity Singers who closed the program with a group of songs conducted by Rodney Webster.

Weddings

Crowther — Fuller

Gordon United Church, Langford, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, October 31, 1969, at 8 p.m., when Karen Nancy, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Fuller, 3029 Glen Lake Road, became the bride of Mr. Raymond Scott Crowther, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. George Crowther, 2962 Pickford Road. Reverend G. G. Smith officiated. Soloist Mrs. Betty Winter was accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Bea Temple.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in a traditional bouffant floor-length lace gown with full hooped skirt featuring scalloped scoop neckline trimmed with seed pearls and pearlized sequins, lily-point sleeves. A two-tiered scalloped lace train attached at the shoulders flowed to the floor. Her four-tiered chapel length veil was held by a headpiece of lace petals outlined in seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses and white feathered mums backed by a lace fan. Maid of honor LouAnn Lund and bridesmaids Janet Hiscock and Marcia Howe wore identical floor-length empire style gowns of chartreuse brocade with large matching sparkling organza bow attached at the waistline and falling to the hemline. The same organza was styled in a floor-length empire gown for flower girl Carol Robinson. The attendants carried bouquets of yellow feathered mums with ribbon streamers. All wore single strand pearls, gifts of the bride. Best man was Mr. Jim Moir and ushers were Mr. Lloyd Crowther, brother of the groom, and Mr. Ken Fuller, brother of the bride. Murray Fuller, young brother of the bride, was ring bearer.

A reception followed at the Royal Colwood Golf Club, where Mr. Reg Fleming proposed the toast to the bride. Mr. Don Robinson acted as Master of Ceremonies and music was supplied by Len Acres Orchestra. For her going away outfit the bride chose a deep mauve dress of lace Rochelle with a fur Bubble cape and matching fur hat. Following the reception the couple left on a motor trip to Florida. Upon their return they will make their home in Victoria.

McLeod — Lewis

Belmont United Church was the scene of a double-ring ceremony at 7 p.m. on Saturday, October 11th, 1969, when Barbara Judith, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Trevor Lewis, Victoria, became the bride of Mr. Ronald Ellis McLeod, son of Mrs. Jean McLeod. Reverend Murray Henderson officiated. Soloist was Mrs. Phyllis Hill.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a floor-length gown of embroidered lace over taffeta, featuring a chapel-length train and three-quarter length sleeves that flared at the elbows. Tiny crystal drops studded the stand-up collar. A coronet of orange blossoms held the double layer veil trimmed with lace and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses with white stephanotis and ivy. Matron of honor, Mrs. Bev Price, sister of the bride, and bridesmatrons Mrs. Norma Blower and Mrs. Lynn Muirhead, wore identical floor-length gowns in lime green featuring stand-up ruffle necklines. They wore crystal and pearl drop tiaras and carried bouquets of yellow roses and white carnations. Mr. Alan Spring was best man while Messrs. Barry Holmes and Dave Osland ushered the guests. Following a reception at Hollyrood House, where Mr. Alan Craig proposed a toast to the bride, the couple left on a honeymoon trip to the Interior.

Flaten — Kavanagh

A quiet, autumn wedding was solemnized at 5 p.m. on November 8, 1969, in All Saints' Anglican Church, View Royal, when Reverend C. E. Lonsdale united in marriage Margaret Irene, daughter of Mrs. E. L. Kavanagh, 2080 Lansdowne Road, and Mr. Ronald Christian Flaten, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Flaten of New Westminster, B.C.

The bride was given in marriage by her grandfather, Mr. W. H. Gates at the double-ring ceremony. Bridal attendants were Mrs. Robin Peacey of Campbell River and Mrs. Robert Jones of Victoria. Mr. David Mercer of Vancouver was best man.

A dinner reception was held at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel for immediate family and close friends. Mr. Robin Peacey proposed the toast to the bride. Following their honeymoon spent at Island Hall, Parksville, the new Mr. and Mrs. Flaten will reside in Vancouver, where they are on the teaching staff of the Burnaby and Vancouver School Boards.

Rates for publication of Wedding or Engagement notices, with or without pictures, available on request from the Advertising Department (Special forms to assist you in writing copy also available.) There are no true bargains in diamond rings

Today, all diamonds have a determinable value. And if a stone has any worthy quality to it, a jeweller can obtain the standard price for it and doesn't need to sell it to you "wholesale". In fact, many so-called bargain diamonds have first been marked up in order to be "slashed down".

Birks now has an expanded range of diamonds, with stones of different qualities. And because Birks has people who can properly evaluate the stone you select, you know you will be paying only for the quality you are buying—and no more.

Be guided by Birks. You will never regret it

From Harry:
She troubled no one, her wants were few,
And Dear Lord she has come to you;
Take care of her as she takes her rest.
For the one you have taken was the very best.

The Family:
A cheery smile, a heart of gold
She suffered much but never told
Till God above knew what was best,
He took her home and gave her rest.

8 CARD OF THANKS

27 TEACHERS WANTED

ADVERTISEMENTS IN THIS CLASSIFICATION MUST COMPLY WITH THE BRITISH COLUMBIA HUMAN RIGHTS ACT SEE COLUMN 1

SIMON FRASER UNIVERSITY
DEPARTMENT OF PROFESSIONAL FOUNDATIONS

Applications are invited from teachers interested in securing an appointment as Associate of the Department of Professional Foundations. Appointments are for two semesters (8 months) beginning in late August, 1970.

Persons appointed as Associates assist Faculty in the Professional Development Program for teachers through school visits, by counselling, instructing and assisting students both in schools and on campus.

Minimum qualifications for the position are an appropriate degree and five years' teaching experience. The salary paid to Associates is commensurate with the salary scale for the district in which the appliean is currently teaching. Neither administrative nor other allowances are taken into account in the salary calculation.

As it will be necessary for successful applicants to arrange for leaves of absence from their current positions, it is suggested that interested teachers write for application forms immediately. The deadline for receipt of such forms in this office is December 15, 1969. Applicants will be informed of the results by February 1, 1970.

Enquiries should be addressed to:

Dr. Selma Wassermann,
Acting Chairman
Department of Professional Foundations
Simon Fraser University
Burnaby 2, B.C.

SCHOOL DISTRICT No. 47
(POWELL RIVER)

Applications are invited for the undernoted position with appointment effective January 1, 1970.

PRINCIPAL

Principal required for the new, three-hundred-fifty pupil Gordon Park Junior Secondary School located in the municipality of Powell River. This is a modern open-area school providing all facilities to handle its junior secondary population. The school will be under construction in the early spring of 1970. The Board is interested in making an early appointment in order that the principal may have the opportunity of participating in decisions regarding such matters as accommodation, equipment, supplies, organization, staffing, etc. Applicants should possess professional advanced B.C. certification or its equivalent, be knowledgeable of modern educational trends, methods and techniques, have some experience in school administration and an understanding and appreciation of the potential of open-area instruction. The Board is looking for a promising young administrator who possesses good leadership qualities to head up this staff and student body.

Applications with testimonials should be addressed to H. C. Ferguson, District Superintendent of Schools, 6906 Duncan Street, Powell River, B.C. not later than Monday, November 24th. This position is open to both district and non-district personnel with preference given to local personnel where qualifications, experience, etc., are equitable.

SCHOOL DISTRICT No. 47
(POWELL RIVER)

Applications are invited for the following position effective January 1, 1970.

Teacher Librarian — to operate resource centres in three elementary schools. Applicants must possess valid B.C. Teaching Certification and have as a minimum 12 units of recognized library training. Application accompanied by usual testimonials should be addressed to H. C. Ferguson, District Superintendent of Schools, 6906 Duncan Street, Powell River, B.C.

SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 61
GREATER VICTORIA

Applications are invited from professionally certificated personnel for Junior Secondary Home Economics teachers, duties to commence 5th January, 1970.

Apply to District Superintendent of Schools, School District No. 61 (Greater Victoria), P.O. Box 700, Victoria, B.C.

100 CARS FOR SALE

WE HAVE A USED CAR PROBLEM—a very unusual one! We opened a nice new used car lot and in the very first week we sold almost all our used cars. So we're in the embarrassing position of having a used car lot with very few cars on it — that's our used car problem. Mind you, what we lack in quantity we certainly make up for in quality.
In fact, if you're looking for a Ford or a Chev we have the nicest answers imaginable! The Ford is a 1968 Galaxie 500 sedan with only 7,000 miles on it and the Chev is a 1966 Impala 4-dr. hardtop with only 23,000 miles. Both are automatic with power steering and brakes, and radio. The Ford is priced at $3,150 and the Chev at $2,500.
You're probably sick of reading the hackneyed phrases we all use to describe our cars so suffice it to say that if either of these is the kind of car you're looking for you should come in to

LOVELY AND DESIRABLE
HOME

TO THOSE WHO SEEK A DEGREE OF PERFECTION RARELY OBTAINABLE:
The home is on Henderson, separated from the main traffic theme. From the garden fences to the patio, to the daylight basement and to the roof, inside and out, this residence is beyond reproach. It offers family living, with nearly 1400 sq. ft. of main floor (three bedrooms). A superb, delightfully lighted and professionally finished family recreation room about 29 ft. long with fireplace and another very large panelled room which can be divided or used as a pool or ping pong room. Double plumbing. A very adaptable home in absolutely perfect condition. Owners will be leaving for the mainland. First time offered for sale. 10 years young.

UNEXCELLED VIEW

This nearly new home has a breathtaking "sea and sky — valley and vale" view. You can see the cruise ships enter the harbor by day, and fairy setting of lights by night. The lot is worth about $22,000 with subdivision possibility. Driveway, cementing and blacktop would cost another $3,500. Now add the cost of this big 2 storey house with 2500 feet of living space, with a spacious sundeck. All in all, it is well below replacement. The house has a large "L" shaped living room with 36' of Thermopane windowing, plus a lovely raised hearth fireplace and w-w carpeting. The dining area has sliding doors to sundeck. The kitchen has ample cupboards. The family room is huge. The bedrooms are on the ground floor, plus a large utility room. The owner is building an in-law suite out of the utility room and a bedroom. The first mortgage is $17,000 at 6¾ per cent at $169 P.I.T. A small second of $3800 can be assumed at 9 per cent Trade of 4 bedroom home may be accepted. Deputy District Registrar.

Leading Everton Held to 1-1 Draw

LONDON (CP) — Everton drew 1-1 with Chelsea today to maintain a six-point lead at the top of the English League soccer standings over Leeds United and Liverpool.

Jimmy Husband put Everton into the lead in the sixth minute, but Peter Osgood squared things for Chelsea six minutes later.

Southampton held Leeds United to a 1-1 draw and Liverpool came back into contention with a 2-0 victory over West Ham United.

Mike Jones sent Leeds United, England's representatives in the European Cup of National Champions, into the lead in the seventh minute.

Leeds still led with only 20 minutes to go. Then Ron Davies turned a half-chance into a superb goal with a left-foot shot from 12 yards.

Liverpool went into the lead on Chris Lawles's goal in the 27th minute. Bob Graham got the second goal.

Senior Staff Changes Made In Highways

Reorganization of the provincial highways department has resulted in a number of senior staff changes, Highways Minister W. D. Black said Friday.

The department has been divided into a headquarters section based at Victoria and four regional sections based at North Vancouver, Kamloops, Nelson and Prince George. These contain 38 highway districts.

Staff changes include the appointment of J. A. Dennison, formerly Senior Maintenance Engineer, as Chief Highway Engineer; E. B. Wilkins, formerly Design and Planning Engineer, as Chief Planning Engineer; R. G. Harvey, formerly Senior Bridge Engineer, as Senior Design Engineer.

M. G. Elston, former Regional Highway Engineer at North Vancouver, transfers to Victoria as Senior Planning Engineer and D. F. Martin, who held the same position at Nelson, comes here as Senior Maintenance Engineer.

Deputy Minister H. T. Miard and assistant deputy F. A. MacLean continue in the top department positions. The department has about 7,000 employees including B.C. Ferries staff.

Bishop Running

PORT ALBERNI — Mayor Fred Bishop will seek re-election to put an end to rumors he was in ill health, moving away or retiring from civic politics.

Bishop, mayor of Port Alberni since it amalgamated with Alberni two years ago, was an Alberni alderman for 10 years and mayor of Alberni for six years.

A battle for the mayor's seat began to shape up earlier this month when Ald. George Dunbar resigned and announced he will run in the December elections.

Read Poetry

Diane Wakoski, one of the most prolific young poets in America, will read her poetry at the University of Victoria in a noon-hour appearance Wednesday.

A graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, she has published six books of poetry since 1962 and has five more planned for 1969.

Since last month Miss Wakoski has been poet-in-residence at the Mediterranean Centre operated by Dowling College (N.Y.) in Majorca.

The Victoria date is her fifth appearance in the 1969-70 Northwest Poetry Circuit. She will continue on to colleges and universities in Oregon.

Choir

The choir at Sidney Silver Threads Centre, 9760 Fourth Street, will meet Monday at 2 p.m.

Classes in novelties and knitting will be held Tuesday from 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.; ceramics and oil painting classes begin at 1 p.m.

Wednesday at 2 p.m. films; Thursday 1:30 p.m. bridge club; Friday at 2 p.m., Jacko.

Message

Dial 479-4711 for a recorded inspirational message.

The new telephone service, entitled Life At Its Best, is operated by Victoria's Seventh-Day Adventist Church and is available all round the clock.

The messages, one for each day, have been recorded by Pastor Harold Reimche of the Adventist Church.

"They are designed to give help and hope in these perplexing days," he said.

Old Boys'

A new executive for 1969-70 was elected at the recent annual meeting and dinner of the Glenlyon Old Boys' Association held at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

John Manning is the new president and Michael Kennaugh, the vice-president.

Treasurer is Jack Rowe and secretary, James Taylor.

The directors are Peter White, John Sturdy and Mark Fellner.

Correction

The president of the Calvin Christian School society was incorrectly referred to as Paul Juncker of 1607 Ash in the Oct. 27 edition of the Times.

Juncker is assistant professor of geography at the University of Victoria.

The school society president is John Junker, 61 Hampton Rd.

Walkers Surging Along

Crowd estimates varied between 10,000 and 15,000 early today as participants in Victoria's second Miles for Millions walkathon surged along Dallas Road promptly at 8:30.

By 10 a.m. marchers were deluging the second checkpoint on the route, adjacent to Oak Bay Marina on Beach Drive.

Several who opted to run the 25-mile route were passing the University of Victoria by 10:30 and crossed the finish line at the Legislative Buildings before noon.

The co-ordinating committee of the march has a $130,000 objective, half of the money raised to go to local charitable agencies, the other half to international agencies serving underdeveloped countries in Asia, Africa and South America.

Today's walkathon is expected to break records established by a similar march in 1967 when 12,000 persons brought in $108,000 the largest per capita amount of any Canadian city.

Youthful Tone to March

Adults were the exception in the swelling mass that packed around the starting line at Dallas and Cook. Tone of the march was overwhelmingly youthful—most of the marchers were from local elementary and junior secondary schools.

From every direction they streamed down to the starting point, and as the crowd got bigger volunteers wielding loud hailers urged them to stay back out of the path of traffic at the intersection.

At 8:30 a.m., without a word of command, the assembled thousands suddenly began to move, and within five minutes most marchers were on their way.

No one could confirm whether former lieutenant-governor G. R. Pearkes actually fired a starting gun at 8:30 as scheduled. He apparently got lost in the crush at the line.

The 81-year-old Pearkes did get a Saanich Police escort to the starting line, and was reported still walking at noon.

Late registrants continued to enter the march after 9 a.m.

Many walkers, remembering the 25-mile ordeal two years ago, came equipped with bandages, foot powder and extra pairs of shoes and socks.

Some carried portable radios, and as they moved out they listened to broadcast descriptions of the spectacle of which they were a part.

Pavement was rain-soaked, the sky was overcast and a cold wind was blowing. But at 8:35 the sun broke through with a promise of intermittent sunny periods throughout the day.

Civic Leaders Turn Out

A Gordon Head Junior Secondary mixed relay team put their extensive cross-country training program to good use and finished the walkathon first—at a full run—in three hours.

The 13 team members, who passed the baton at checkpoints, were: Debbie Reid, Peter Sivertsen, Nancy Griffin, Ian Hatter, Al McGillivray, Bob Boyd, Christopher Orme, Wes Mann, Margo Hall, Adrian Williams, Dave Hajnal, Barry Kelly and Don Nemeth.

School track coach Bob Shires said the runners were sponsored by the whole school and seven runners returned to the starting point to walk the 25-mile distance.

A number of civic leaders were out:

Mayor Hugh Stephen was sponsored at $1 a mile by Esquimalt Mayor Ray Bryant, who wasn't in the march because he opened a new Esquimalt drive-in restaurant today.

Oak Bay MLA Scott Wallace, representing the Oak Bay municipal council, was sponsored by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark and Premier Bennett, who happens to be one of Dr. Wallace's constituents.

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis and Minister of Municipal Affairs Dan Campbell walked.

Greater Victoria school board chairman Dr. C. B. Jameson and district superintendent A. J. Longmore were on hand.

There were several men among the leading group who left the main mass far behind. Larry Mann, 48, of 1381 Service, said he is an experienced jogger.

"I'm sponsored for a dollar a mile, and double if I make it under four hours," he panted at the Oak Bay Marina.

ANTI-WAR GATHERINGS LARGEST EVER

Peace Now! Engulfs U.S.

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — With President Nixon secluded in a sealed-off White House, more than 250,000 flying the Stars and Stripes and chanting "Peace now!" marched down Pennsylvania Avenue today in the biggest anti-war demonstration in U.S. history.

Refused access to the immediate White House area, the marchers deposited 12 flower-decked coffins containing placards with the names of nearly 40,000 Americans killed in the Vietnam war on the lawn of the executive mansion.

The crowd flowed down the wide "avenue of presidents" and massed on the grounds of the Washington Monument for a rally and folk-rock concert.

The police chief estimated the crowd at more than 250,000. And peace marchers were still pouring in by the tens of thousands at the time that estimate was made at mid-afternoon.

The largest previous peace march took place in New York City on April 15, 1967, when an estimated 125,000 persons followed the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. from Central Park to United Nations headquarters.

While the Washington march was nearing its end a second major demonstration was beginning in San Francisco where tens of thousands had converged from western U.S. centres.

Busloads of demonstrators began arriving Friday night from as far away as Denver, Seattle and Los Angeles for the seven-mile march through San Francisco to a rally in Golden Gate Park.

The influx was so great that Mayor Joseph Alioto and aides held emergency meetings to discuss the possibility of opening public buildings for visitors unable to find housing.

Backers of the moratorium expected 40,000 persons to come from Los Angeles alone, many of whom planned to arrive just before the march today and leave immediately after the rally.

POLICE READY

But police minimized the size of the turnout. They anticipated only 60,000 persons for the march, although they assigned 350 uniformed officers to be on duty, including 50 motorcycle patrolmen and the 12-men horse patrol in the park.

Today's march down Pennsylvania Avenue — and the one in San Francisco — climaxed three days of demonstrations in support of an immediate, complete U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam.

The Pennsylvania Avenue march was sober and orderly. Complying with terms of their parade permit, leaders cut off the flow of marchers entering Pennsylvania Avenue at 12:41 p.m., and diverted the thousands still waiting to a more direct route down the grassy mall to the monument grounds.

Protests Staged Around World

From Times News Services

Symbolic protests against the Vietnam war were staged in all the continents Friday night and this morning to express sympathy with the moratorium demonstration in Washington.

Riot police wielding clubs repeatedly charged demonstrators protesting the Vietnam war in crowded Paris streets today.

More than 500 protestors were arrested.

At least 15,000 people took part in different demonstrations in Paris in defiance of a French government ban. Protests also took place in 42 other cities throughout France.

The police charges here were restricted to the fashionable Rue de Rivoli area where about 5,000 demonstrators mingled with shopping crowds.

Shoppers and bystanders dashed for safety in nearby cafes and department stores as the police clashed with the demonstrators.

Anti-Vietnam war groups staged protest demonstrations in London and other cities throughout Britain today.

About 1,000 demonstrators, mostly students, marched round and round Grosvenor Square in front of the United

MARCHES A RED PLOT CHARGES GOVERNOR

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — California Gov. Ronald Reagan claimed Friday night the Vietnam moratorium demonstrations actually were planned in Communist East Berlin earlier this year with representatives of North Vietnam present.

Reagan, a strong backer of the Nixon administration's Vietnam policy, told a local Republican fund-raising dinner:

"I'm sure many young people have been deluded into believing that they're trying to save lives.

"Unfortunately, these moratoriums were planned last June in a meeting in East Berlin with North Vietnamese present."

$50,000 Drug Haul; 3 Persons Charged

Two young men were charged in court today with possessing narcotics for trafficking, following seizure of about $50,000 worth of hashish in two police raids Friday.

Allan Lee Sawin, 22, of 3255 Glasgow, and Stephen Partridge Nichols, 20, of Berkeley, California, were remanded until Monday for plea.

Sawin was represented by lawyer Robert Price.

Judge William Ostler set bail at $10,000 for Nichols and $7,000 for Sawin.

Immediately after court adjourned, a juvenile was charged in connection with the same incident before judge in chambers. He was also remanded without plea.

The three were arrested after RCMP, assisted by city and Saanich police, raided two homes Friday afternoon.

The raids were the result of a month-long investigation conducted by Cpl. Dan Creally of the RCMP, chief of the drug squad.

Cpl. Creally said 4½ pounds of hashish were seized when police raided a Victoria home, and 6½ pounds during a rair on a Saanich home.

He estimated the value of the haul at about $50,000 on the street.

Hashish is a common name for cannabis resin. It is a derivative of marijuana, and is dark brown or grey.

The largest previous haul of narcotics on the Island has been eight ounces of hashish.

Cpl. Creally said Esquimalt police forces also assisted in the investigations.

The hashish, he said, usually originates from Europe.

Yankee Clipper Sails to Moon—Minus Major Safety Feature

By HOWARD BENEDICT

HOUSTON (AP) — Resting after a hectic first day in space, the Apollo 12 astronauts raced today beyond the halfway point of their journey to the moon and prepared to eliminate one of the major safety features of previous lunar voyages.

Charles Conrad Jr., Richard F. Gordon Jr. and Alan L. Bean reached the mid-point at 1:39 p.m. PST—their spaceship Yankee Clipper 129,833 miles from both earth and moon—shortly after they were to awaken from a long sleep.

They retired about 2 a.m. after an 18-hour day in which they shook off the effects of a frightening electrical surge during their Friday launch at Cape Kennedy.

Commander Conrad, who said the surge may have been caused by lightning, and his co-pilots thoroughly surveyed the command ship and the attached lunar-landing craft for possible damage from the electrical problem, which caused a brief loss of some systems 45 seconds after launch.

They found all systems intact and Apollo 12 continued toward the moon and man's second lunar landing.

At 3:15 p.m. today the astronauts were to fire their spaceship engine to alter their present course, which would automatically return them to earth if they took no further action.

Apollo 12 was launched on this so-called free-return trajectory, which was flown by the three previous American moon missions, Apollos 8, 10 and 11. On this path the spacecraft whips around the backside of the moon and then is pulled automatically by earth's gravity back to a landing in the Pacific Ocean.

The earlier Apollo astronauts used this trajectory to ensure getting home in case their spaceship engine failed to fire when they attempted to brake into lunar orbit.

Now, after three flights, the space agency has enough confidence in the engine to attempt the non-free-return trajectory on Apollo 12.

The 10-second burst from the engine today increased Apollo 12's speed by 44 miles an hour and adjusted its arrival point at the moon so astronauts Conrad and Bean next Wednesday can attempt a pinpoint landing on the eastern edge of the Ocean of Storms near an unmanned Surveyor spacecraft that has been there 2½ years.

Even if the main engine failed to insert Apollo 12 into lunar orbit, the astronauts could fire the lunar-lander engine to break out of the non-free-return path and head back to earth.

On the remote chance that both engines failed, Apollo 12 would loop around the moon and head back toward earth, but would miss by 58,000 miles and speed out into permanent, fatal orbit around the sun.

The only bothersome problem, Conrad reported, was ice between the triple-layered window of the command module, the viewport vital for the critical docking and for lunar photography.

The 39-year-old commander said ice was forming on the inner surface of the outside window.

"I don't know where it came from," Conrad told the ground.

Conrad and Bean are to spend 31½ hours on the moon, making more detailed exploration of the surface than was possible for Apollo 11's. They also hope to make a pinpoint landing so future flights can be made to more rugged moon terrain.

'Sleeper' Sparks Market Activity

By NICK FERRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Much to the surprise of about everyone, Canadian stock markets this week received the federal government's white paper on tax reforms with a stunning welcome.

For the previous two weeks, markets drifted lower in anticipation of what reforms the white paper might propose.

But the capital gains tax proposal and suggested reductions in tax concessions in the oil and mining industries apparently were discounted in advance as markets rocketed to their best advance on record Monday, following up on Tuesday with their second-best advance.

Profit-taking Wednesday began to nibble away gains although markets came through with solid advances.

However, the profit-taking moved into full gear Thursday and markets recorded large losses. The reversal seemed to die away Friday as small gains were posted.

But it was a sleeper in the white paper—a proposal to credit shareholders of widely-held Canadian companies with one-half of the corporate tax paid by the companies on profits from which dividends are paid—that touched off the barrage of buying of Canadian dividend-paying stocks.

The result of the proposed plan could be a tax rebate from the government for taxpayers in a less-than-50-per-cent bracket.

Ginter Wins Legal Fight Over Label

OTTAWA (CP) — Brewer Ben Ginter of Prince George, won from the Supreme Court Friday the right to continue using the term "Pil" for his product, over allegations by Carling Breweries B.C. of copyright infringement.

The court decided in favor of Ginter's Tartan Brewing Co. immediately after hearing the case. The reasons for judgment will be written and made public later.

The Carling Breweries B.C. case included the fact that it uses the word "Pilsner" on its labels.

---

In Vancouver, Ginter said he will institute legal action a gainst Carling Breweries B.C. Ltd. for damages as a result of its action.

Bond Market Depressed

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian bond market's future was not improved during a week of moderate trading, as some issues declined almost two points.

The government's white paper on taxation released last week proposed taxing capital gains, thereby removing the tax advantage of discount bonds and adding further to the already depressed state of the market.

Prices were generally down ¼ to ¾ of a point.

Most Toronto dealers feel that the market will see a further decline before a rally comes.

Bill Mavor Joins Truck Loggers

The Truck Loggers Association has appointed former Victoria reporter W. J. Mavor as public relations officer.

Mavor was with the Council of Forest Industries, and before that worked in public relations for B.C. Telephone and Alcan Ltd.

The Truck Loggers Association, based in Vancouver, represents more than 300 members engaged in the logging industry.

U.S. Holds to Policy Despite Recession Risk

By HOBART ROWEN

WASHINGTON (WP) — Unexpected recent strength in key economic indicators has persuaded the Nixon administration to stay with its tough anti-inflation policy a bit longer than it had hoped, despite the risk of recession.

"We have no alternative but to risk over-staying with policies of restraint," economic council chairman Paul W. McCracken said in an interview.

Thus, contrary to the urging of such diverse economic minds as Prof. Milton Friendman (an unofficial Nixon adviser) and former council of economic adviser chairman Walter W. Heller, the administration believes the time is not yet ripe to press the Federal Reserve Board to ease its tight money policy.

Meanwhile, the stock market edged down on rumors, so far not confirmed, that major banks plan to raise the prime lending rate (to best customers) from 8.5 to 9.0 per cent.

Maintenance of stringent monetary policy would tend to hold morgage and other interest rates at their current record or near-record level — in some case, the highest in 100 years.

Both Friedman and Heller have warned that continuance of the present reserve board posture, which allows virtually no growth in the over-all "stock" of money, invites recession in 1970.

But the administration is lining up almost solidly behind McCracken's current assessment. Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy is said to be even more of a "hawk" on the issue. The one exception is Labor Secretary George Shultz, who has reservations along the Friendman-Heller lines.

Until recently, the administration had been encouraged by various signs that the economy was slowing down. Chief among these are a reduction in the rate of real growth; an increase in the unemployment rate; accumulation of inventories, promising a future reduction in output; and sluggish retail sales.

But in the past couple of weeks, contrary evidence has been accumulating also, diminishing the administration's anxiety to reverse the direction of policy.

Moreover, these are indications that the FED is becoming increasingly disturbed by prospects President Nixon will have a difficult time balancing the fiscal 1971 budget, and an even harder time trying to duplicate this year's projected surplus of $5.8 billion.

Without a continuing restricted fiscal policy, the federal reserve appears reluctant to consider any significant easing of monetary policy.

Gov't Cancels Crown Reserve

The provincial government has cancelled a crown reserve covering the northwest portion of Graham Island in the Queen Charlottes, including some offshore parcels, to allow Union Oil of Canada Ltd. to explore for oil and natural gas.

Cancellation of the reserve was approved by cabinet order-in-council released Thursday.

Mines department officials said the cancellations of the reserve now allows approval of an application for permits for exploration by Union Oil covering 1,150,000 acres on Graham Island and the continental shelf.

As the referendum bylaw requesting funds not exceeding $2500.00 annually through the regional district by tax levy —for the operation of certain recreational facilities, including the Community Centre, went down to defeat on Saturday, Nov. 1st., we, the directors, now must appeal to the community as a whole for support both monetary and personal.
The Community Centre is in need of extensive repairs to windows, foundations, washrooms and kitchen facilities, the public beach and Centennial (1958) Park also need a lot of work done on them. A full-time caretaker is needed for the hall. It is unfair to expect a few people —just bcause they are directors of the recreation commission—to do all the caretaking, make repairs and then try to raise funds to keep the hall open for the community to use.

They Were Stepping High —For the First Few Miles

A ribbon of noisy humanity wound its way around Ross Bay in brilliant sunshine this morning.

The beginning of the Miles for Millions walkathon could only be described as exuberant.

There is a warm intensity about thousands of people jammed shoulder to shoulder with a common task.

Whatever their personal reasons the marchers were united in purpose, to walk 25 miles for charity.

•

Perhaps the weather had something to do with it.

The day began with a slight shower, but by the end of the first mile, the sun had broken through.

Cries came up from hoarse young students, proclaiming the presence of their high schools on the march.

Some carried banners and others had knapsacks crammed with enough food and supplies for a week's march.

Most were teen-agers, but among the thousands were retired couples and entire families.

Many wore black arm bands.

"It's to stop the war in Vietnam," 14-year-old Gloria Tweed, an Esquimalt Junior High student, explained.

Several of the marchers brought their pets with them, among them a goat.

By all a.m., most had passed the seven-mile mark at Cattle Point.

There was less jubilance then, and the high intensity had faded.

The marchers were concentrating on ignoring blisters.

"Wore the wrong kind of socks," said Earl Levy, freshly down from his United Appeal perch in the Mayfair Centre clock tower.

"But I'll be there at the finish if I have to come in bare-footed."

•

Susan Pauwels, a 10-year-old Metchosin elementary school student, admitted that her feet were a little sore too. "But I'm going to keep going," she said. "I'm getting 69 cents a mile."

Footwear varied from heavy boots, to running shoes, and all the marchers were prepared for rain. Several carried an extra pair of shoes.

Along Gonzales Bay, several teen-agers decided to walk along the edge of the water and found themselves with wet feet.

Empty march patrol cars and army vehicles indicated there were few dropouts during the first miles.

•

Many stopped at Uplands Park for lunch and a change of socks.

The spirit could be summed up by 14-year-old Guy Finnegan, a disabled child at George Pearkes School.

"Twenty-five miles is a long way. But it's a beautiful day for a walk."

One retired couple said they went for walks each day and decided to see how far they would be able to go today.

"We're not planning to complete the whole route," they explained. "We'll just see how we feel."

After eight miles, they were still walking and at a brisk pace.

Crime Rate Rockets in City

Stolen property in Victoria hit a whopping $157,766.50 at the end of September, more than double last year's total.

This is just part of the rocketing crime picture shown in statistics released by city police Friday.

Other older figures compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show Victoria ranked eighth among 30 cities in the 50,000 to 100,000 population in number of Criminal Code offences.

TROUBLE SPOT

The only bright note from the DOB figures is that the city police are showing the way in solving crime. Victoria ranks first among the 30 cities in number of offences cleared by charge.

Biggest trouble spot is break-ins — 542 of them in the city to the end of September this year contrasted to a total of 281 in 1968.

Both the city and Saanich are currently suffering a rash of break-ins.

Last year city police cleared up 22 per cent of them, recovering almost $24,000 in stolen property. To the end of September the files had been closed on 24 per cent and recovery has been over $27,000.

In addition to the 92 per cent leap in break-ins in the first three-quarters of the year, crimes of violence are up 46 per cent and false pretences offences have climbed 28 per cent.

Detective-Inspector William Andrews said Friday he is unable to point to specific reasons for the surge in crime.

"We'd like to alert people to keep closer watch, on homes, apartment buildings, and to report to police immediately they see anything suspicious."

Deputy Chief Ray Maitland added that merchants can do their part by insuring their premises have secure locks and dark alleys are better lighted.

Other statistics contrasting crime in the city this year and last:

- Two murder cases this year, one of them solved, in contrast to no murders last year.
- Six rape cases to the end of September, three of them resolved, where there was only one (unsolved) in 1968.
- Fourteen robberies, four of them cleared, compared to 11 all last year, one of which was cleared.
- Two hundred sixty two assault cases, with files closed on 208, while last year there was a total of 182 with 124 cleared up.

Gun-Wielding Bandits Rob Hotel Night Clerk

Two men held up a night clerk at the Queen Victoria Inn, 655 Douglas, early this morning and escaped with $270.

They wore silk stockings over their faces and entered the lobby through a north side door, city police said.

One man pointed a .22 rifle at the clerk, Leslie J. Thompson, and said "give me the money."

Thompson, who lives at Suite 203, 934 Collinson, told police they forced him into the office behind the desk.

They then attempted to open the locked cash register.

They failed and told Thompson to open the till.

Police described the men as being in their early 20s. One was about five feet 10 inches, the other five feet, seven. They wore brown clothes.

Bigger Bonus Ruled Out

Esquimalt Mayor Ray Bryant has been told the provincial welfare department won't increase its Christmas bonus.

The mayor was trying to arrange an appointment with the new welfare minister, Phil Gaglardi, when "responsbile provincial authorities" told him not to bother. They said the department had already decided the $10 for heads of families and $4 for single people they gave last year is enough.

NOT ENOUGH

But the Greater Victoria municipalities decided last year the grant was too small and increased the $10 to $14. They wanted the province to do that this year, and sent Bryant to ask for it.

"I'm disappointed in the decision of the government not to increase the grant because at its present size it is obviously inadequate," Bryant said.

He said the fact that municipalities had to give a supplement is proof of its insufficiency.

Driving Laws 'Confusing'

The tough new laws aimed at drinking drivers which the federal government puts into force Dec. 1 are confusing and will take court decisions to clarify.

That's the opinion of J. W. Anderson, senior prosecutor for Greater Victoria.

"The more you look at it the less clear it becomes," he said Friday of the Criminal Code amendments.

One of the problems is that two new sections don't provide for more severe penalties if the accused has a history of drinking and driving offences.

MAJOR CHANGE

They deal with the major change — authority for police to demand a breath test of a suspect.

The question then is: can an impaired driving charge be laid under the old section which does provide more severe penalties for repeaters if a breath test has been conducted under the new law?

Anderson does not see a clash between the amendments and the section of the provincial Motor Vehicle Act which provides for roadside suspensions where there is evidence a driver's blood-alcohol reading is .08 per cent or higher.

Such a reading is now a federal offence under the new law.

The Criminal Code changes are being put into effect while other related provisions approved by Parliament are being delayed.

This has the effect of introducing law altered from that approved by government, Anderson points out.

The provisions yet to be introduced require the accused be given a breath sample so that he can have it analysed himself.

But as Justice Minister John Turner explained Friday, no suitable container is yet in existence although it is hoped one will be available in the not too distant future.

Ask The Times

Q. Who holds the Canadian and world calf roping championship and what was the time? J.G.Y.

A. The Canadian champion is Jim Gladstone of Cardston, Alta., while Dean Oliver of Boise, Idaho, is the National (U.S.A.) Finals Rodeo champion. Championships are not determined on a time basis—since conditions vary from one rodeo event to another — but according to total winnings. This year Gladstone won $4,603 and Oliver won $37,634.

Arthur Mayse . . .

WE HAVE WITH US TODAY a large, personable Texan, Kelly Covin by name, who—in January of 1968 launched himself on a race against time. He had a book to write, and enough money socked away to finance 18 months of family living.

It was a close race, but I'm glad to report that Kelly Covin has won it.

His documentary novel, The Thirteenth Juror, has been accepted by Dell Publishing Company of New York, with a hard-cover edition scheduled for next September.

Advance on royalties is $6,500, and the prospects are bright for sales that may give the book a place on best-seller and book club lists.

★

But that isn't all. Motion picture rights to The Thirteenth Juror, an exploration in depth of Alabama's notorious Scotsboro Case, have been bought by Aurora Productions of Hollywood for $50,000.

And that isn't quite all, either. The chances are better than so-so that author Covin may also be signed to produce the film script — a chore that would bring down another golden shower.

★

Meanwhile, in his home by a lake deep in the Saanich Peninsula Highlands, Covin is jockeying into position for a run at his next book. This will be a non-documentary novel.

Lest anyone be tempted to think that such breaks as I've outlined just sort of happen, here's how Covin goes about writing a book or a television play.

First, he kicks his ideas around for a while.

Then he writes a plot outline.

Next, he works out capsule treatments of his characters. He adds assorted bits of business, snatches of dialogue, and any diagrams or maps necessary to the project.

He emerges from these preliminaries with a file that may run to 100 pages.

Only then does he begin the actual first-drafting of his piece. While he's on a project, he works at least four hours a day, including Sundays. If this daily stint seems short, you may take it from me that a writer can function effectively only for a limited stretch.

When his time is up, Covin goes for a brisk two-mile walk.

★

The next stage of the job is revision. When all's as it should be, Carroll Covin — who by this time has read her husband's latest endeavor and offered useful criticism — types a send-away draft.

Finally, the manuscript is mailed off to test its chances on a U.S. market that rejects far, far more than it accepts.

I have omitted the worries, doubts, occasional mental anguish and spoiled paper that are also the lot of a writer at work.

Covin, now 47, was a teen-ager in Los Angeles when he first pondered the case of nine Negroes variously sentenced for rapes which he believes they did not commit.

★

He got his introduction to writing on a high school newspaper. When he was nineteen, he managed to persuade a Hollywood agent into reading his first script.

"The worst play I ever read in my life," was the agent's verdict, "but keep writing."

This Covin did, as and when his earlier years as a salesman allowed. Twelve years ago, persuaded by a Vancouver Island-born neighbor who kept talking about this earthly paradise, the Covins moved north to Nanaimo. Kelly opened an office equipment store there. Three years later, he shifted his business to Victoria.

The writing break-through came in 1966, when he sold his first three series-scripts to American television. But he had not forgotten the Scotsboro injustices, and in 1967, he turned out a TV documentary on the subject. CBC rejected it with pious zeal.

"They told me they didn't want to appear to be attacking a friendly country," Covin explains.

In 1968, he sold his share of the office equipment business to his partner, and as a free-lance writer, buckled down to his book.

When we talked shop over coffee on Friday, Kelly Covin was on top of the world, but still firmly in possession of his cool.

★

If the screenplay contract comes through, he expects to go down to Hollywood on a short-term contract. But to him, as to Carroll and their 15-year-old daughter Carin, Vancouver Island is home, and so it will remain.

Three Seasons on Podium Prove Gati's the Man

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Back in British Columbia's centenary year and in the 26th season of Victoria Symphony Orchestra, the Symphony Society was seeking a conductor. Otto-Werner Mueller had resigned after the start of the season.

Notice in appropriate publications had brought a flood of about 40 applicants. Of these four were invited to appear as guest conductors at regular concerts and a fifth conducted a special concert on the university campus.

Laszlo Gati was the first of the five guests to appear.

Now he is in his third season with the orchestra and it has become abundantly clear that his selection by the symphony committee was a question of finding exactly the right conductor for this orchestra in this community at the particular stage of its development.

★ ★ ★

On Sunday and Monday, Nov. 23 and 24, on one of its rare occasions without guest soloist, in a program of familiar music, audiences will have an opportunity to savor fully the great progress the orchestra has made under Gati.

At its greatest strength numerically, the Victoria Symphony now has many more permanent professional players and has virtually escaped its dependence on importing key players from the Mainland.

Intensely dedicated to the well-being of the orchestra and its enrichment, with his keen ear for string quality — he himself is a fine violist—one of the formerly weaker sections of the orchestra has improved out of all recognition.

★ ★ ★

As a result, public interest which has grown steadily since the Hungarian-born Montreal conductor established himself here, is now at an all-time high.

As a tribute to his work and to the orchestra itself, which has responded admirably to his presence, it would be fair and right if there were not one empty seat at the Royal Theatre when the spotlight swings fully onto the orchestra next weekend.

The program:

Rossini—The Thieving Magpie.
Khachaturian—Gayane Ballet Suite.
Borodin—In the Steppes of Central Asia.
Dvorak — Slavonic Dances Op. 46, Nos. 1, 3 and 8.
Moussorgsky — Night on the Bare Mountain.
Liszt—Les Preludes.

Jules Feiffer Film Next for Nichols

NEW YORK (NYT) — Mike Nichols, who has been caught up with "Catch-22" for over two years, is about ready to graduate to another film project.

He will direct "Carnal Knowledge" for Joseph E. Levine's AVCO-Embassy pictures, beginning here in April.

"What's 'Carnal Knowledge?'" It's an unproduced play by Jules Feiffer about the relationship between two men over a period of several years.

"Nichols will be the boss — the director and the producer — for the first time," said Levine. And he richly deserves it," he added, perhaps thinking of those $40 million receipts from AVCO-Embassy's "The Graduate." "We don't even care who's in the film. We don't need stars in a Nichols' film."

Nichols agrees. "Joe Levine's right," he said. 'No big name stars, but we have been talking with Jack Nicholson, who did such a fine job in 'Easy Rider.'"

PROMOTION for Victoria actor, Anthony Jenkins, from professor to king has been achieved by Victoria Operatic Society. A University of Victoria professor in real life, he played Professor Higgins in VOS production of My Fair Lady last spring, will go on stage at McPherson Playhouse Nov 25-29 as the king in The King and I, being directed for VOS by Allan Purdy and Tudor Jones.

New Musical Fad Looms From Depths of Africa

By HOLLIE WEST
The Washington Post

America may be on the brink of a new musical fad. It's all contained in a small wooden instrument, no larger than a cigar box, with attached metal keys called reeds.

The device, a kalimba, produces a chime-like sound similar to that of a music box.

"But it's not a music box—it's voluntary and the music box is mechanical," said Dr. Hugh Tracey, who designed the instrument.

Already more than 20,000 kalimbas have been sold in the U.S. and sales continue to soar, said Tracey. He adapted the native African instrument to Western musical concepts about 15 years ago.

WESTERN, TOO

Tracey said his small workshop in Johannesburg, South Africa, cannot keep up with orders for the instrument. He has four Africans constantly working there.

"Look, I can play Bach on it," said Tracey as he plucked a distinct baroque melody. "Any western music can be played on it because I have given it the Western diatonic scale."

The kalimba got a big boost in this country three years ago when Tracey's sons, Andrew and Paul, played instruments of the kalimba family in the musical revue, "Wait A Minim!" which the two wrote.

Most persons find it easy to play. "Anyone who is all thumbs can manage it," said Tracey.

500 YEARS AGO

The kalimba is a native African instrument that can be traced back at least 500 years and it may go back 1200 years. "We know of it being used in musical ensembles 400 years ago, or during the time of Henry VIII," said Tracey, who has studied African music since 1931 when he left his native England.

Tracey never has studied music formally in the Western sense. "I studied in the bush," he explained. "I got my doctorate the hard way."

The original instrument is designed to fit the African musical concept: It does not change keys or modes and produces a fuzzy sound. Many of them currently are being used by American jazz musicians in western contexts and are called African thunb pianos.

SOFT SOUND

Tracey worked 10 years perfecting his adaptation. The western-styled kalimba can change keys by having its reeds adjusted and it has a clear, soft sound. He uses a special African wood with a high resonating capacity.

The wood comes from the pterocarpus tree, which is found in semi-tropical regions. To make the reeds, Tracey uses a special high grade steel.

"I used a scientific approach in making the instrument," he said. "The Africans use a scientific approach in making many of their instruments, but their way is more empirical."

Tracey said his main purpose in introducing the instrument to the west is to acquaint people in Europe and the United States with African music.

He is in the U.S. primarily to promote interest in this music. He lectured at the University of Maryland and spoke to a class at Howard University. Tracey was in Montreal recently at a joint meeting of the African Studies Associations of the U.S. and Canada.

GRANT HELPS

He founded the African Music Society in 1947. Its purpose is to encourage the study and composition of African music. His current work includes supervision of a codification and textbook project for gathering African musical materials. The project is financed by a $145,000 Ford Foundation grant.

"The recognition by whites of African material is a calm little point in our work," said Tracey. "Everyone knows about the sculpture, which has been overemphasized. There are so many grotesque things being shown. People need to know more about the music. This is important for the intrinsic and essential recognition of the African people."

Pied Piper Coming

Two forthcoming Bastion Theatre productions have been cast and one—a full-length holiday musical for family entertainment—will soon be in rehearsal.

The Pied Piper is Marge Adelberg's version of the popular fantasy and will have Bill Hosie in the title role which he has already played in a special short adaptation during a 1966 school tour.

Others in the cast are Sylvia Hosie, Marge Bridgeman, Margaret Martin, Stuart Kent, Murray Price, Valerie Smith, Tom Cox, Barry Flatmand and Mark Smith.

MATINEES

Howard Denike will conduct the orchestra and Wynne Shaw's dance studio will provide ballet numbers. Director is Peter Mannering.

The Pied Piper will play matinees Dec. 26, 27, 29, 30 and 31 and Jan. 1, 2 and 3, with evening performances on Dec. 26 and 27 and Jan. 2 and 3.

First of three spring productions will be Shakespeare's comedy, As You Like It, which will be seen in February with Karen Austin playing Rosalind and Barry Flatman as Orlando.

Others cast in lead roles will be Stuart Kent, Colin Bowen, Don Jacobs, Hugh Henderson, Bill Hosie, Kyra Smitz, Anne Crawford and Susan Belford.

There will be special performances for junior and senior secondary school students under the Youth Series plan which has been made possible by financial assistance from the Greater Victoria School Board.

Jane's Back

NEW YORK (Reuters) — Actress Jane Russell, 48, will return to the screen after a two-year absence, co-starring with Rod Taylor in a suspense movie called Darker Than Amber. Miss Russell's last movie was called Born Losers.
